TO PROMOTE HIGH SCHOLARSHIP.

A committee from the College of Arts and Sciences consisting of Prof. John P. Senning, chairman; Dr. Winfred Hyde and Prof. Jacob Warslaw, has been appointed to examine the methods used in other universities in order to maintain and promote higher scholarship and to make recommendations for the Arts College at the University of Nebraska.

It is a familiar criticism of this University that the students who are graduated with an average of only slightly above the minimum are sent out into the world with the same honors that are allotted to students who have worked hard and have received high averages in their work. If the scheme is successful, this status of things will be changed in the College of Arts and Sciences. The school will await with interest the report of this committee, by which we hope some method of giving additional honors at graduation to the student who has received high grades will be worked out.

It has been suggested that we hold a dandelion party on the parts of the campus that are inhabited by blue grass. Invitations will be sent out to everyone. But still there are those who say that a yellow-dotted landscape is picturesque! We wonder if the element of laziness enters into their opinion.

Where is the old-fashioned student who goes home every week-end? Perhaps, however, railroad fares are one drawback. Miles mean dollars nowadays, unless you are one of the fortunate ones who are proud to claim the ownership of a flier.

Remember that if more than 1,000 students—and that means 1,001—sign up for the trip to Omaha May 6 the University will be closed for the day. And also remember that twelve hours spent in observing industrial plants, art galleries and various places of special interest to the members of particular colleges within the University is a day well spent and an education in itself.

These spring days have made the traditional courses in campesty as popular as ever.

A LEADER IN SPORTS.

The University of Nebraska is now to be recognized as a "power" in the world of sports, as the telling effects of Director Luehring's mighty athletic expansion program are being brought home to each student. To have participated in a sport at the Cornhusker school will mean a distinct honor in the days to come, because she now rates as one of the leading universities in the country in athletic circles.

We look out our East window and see the thirty tennis courts thickly inhabited by energetic Huskers. We read of a tennis tourney that is being planned. A glance at the University Notice column tells us that the Golf Club is already at work preparing for the Missouri Valley Golf Meet which will be held soon at Nebraska.

Nebraskans are performing sensationally on the cinder path and three hundred University men are on the track each day for training. The baseball team has played air-tight ball so far this season and not a single defeat has been chalked up against them. Spring football is already under way, under the guidance of the new head mentor, Coach Dawson. During the basketball season the Huskers romped away with nearly all of the many games that comprised the schedule, despite several serious reverses and handicaps.

And the co-ed is participating as much as the men. Swimming meets for women and baseball are taking the attention of the athletic Nebraska girl. During the year she has competed in hockey, soccer, basketball and yes, even track.

With this record, Nebraska is sure of a place on the all-American team of colleges that are giving each sport—major or minor—its proper place on a definite athletic program.

TEST FOR SUITORS.

The Daily Kansan enlightens us that a Kansas City police court judge recently handed down a decision that a father has a right to thrash his daughters suitors and more than that—a perfect right to choose them for her him self.

The following examination for suitors by careful fathers which might be supplemented to the legal interpretation of the case is so amusing that a reproduction of it might afford readers some little enjoyment.

Test 1. Grasp young man by collar, escort him to door, propel him with pedal extremity to sidewalk; if he returns, score fifteen points for him—perseverance.

Test 2. Lay out a copy of Literary Digest, Poetical Lore, Life, and Police Gazette. If he chooses Police Gazette, mark up fifteen scores—culture. If he chooses Life, seven points—lack of humor.

Test 3. Present him with an empty Bull Durham sack, a corkscrew, a pair of crooked dice, a rolling pin, a stove poker, the coal bucket, a picture of Ring Lardner, a ten dollar bill, a perambulator, and a mop. If he succeeds in naming them and their uses, score fifteen points—intelligence and experience.

Test 4. Borrow twenty dollars from him, send him to the neighbor's for their lawn mower, have him take children to the show with his date, invite him to Sunday dinner, show him the family album, sit around with him every evening, tell him how to dress, and bawl him out for smoking cigarettes. If he shows no resentment, slap him on the wrist and make a face at him. If he does not fight then, score fifteen points—good nature, even temper, docile.

Test 5. Show him well-stocked collar and hiding place of key, the pantry the childrens penny bank, a bottle of hair tonic, and a picture of Lillian Russell. If no deprecations occur in the immediate future, score twenty points—honesty, reliability, and temperance.

If young man passes all qualifications, ask him to marry daughter. If he fails to qualify, make him ask her himself. This concludes the test. If she refuses to consider him, adopt him; as there is only one in a million that can successfully pass such a stiff program.

Everybody Out May 14

It has been the aim of the committee in charge of the Senior May Ball to put on a class affair of class—the largest, peppiest party of the year. The city auditorium has been engaged for the evening, there will be refreshments, decorations and the music will be furnished by the famous Southern Rag-a-Jazz Band. Every student in the University is welcome to attend and help make the Senior May Ball the crowning event of the year.

Tickets will be on sale in a few days by members of the committee and at the Student Activities office.
