THE CALENDAR.

Yesterday we began the daily calendar of events occurring in the University. After a semester of experiment we feel that the best way to handle this feature is to put nothing in the column which is not brought to this office. Formerly we would regularly schedule meetings, and interview the Dean of Women for lists of parties.

We want to make this column as accurate as possible so will ask the secretaries of organizations bringing notices to this office to be sure and include the time and the place of meeting. It was surprising, last year, the number of inaccurate notices that were turned in. We can't be accurate if you are not—so please help us.

AN APOLOGY.

It has been brought to our notice that the reporters of this paper have been inaccurately calling the college of Agriculture the "State Farm." As they say, we have no more reason to call them that, than we have of calling the College of Medicine the "State Hospital" or the College of Law the "State Court Room."

Nebraska is mighty proud of the college of agriculture. The type of men that take work there are well worth knowing. The agricultural college is more than generous in their support of all university activities. Their own activities are mighty interesting and the school enjoys them, and we want to co-operate.

If the Daily Nebraskan has offended—we're sorry. We promise that it won't happen again.

"THE TODAY" HABIT.

Habit is a grip upon an individual which makes him do automatically things which he is accustomed to do. Perhaps some of us do not realize that every habit is the result of our usual actions under similar circumstances.

Some students in the University have acquired and some are apt to acquire the habit of doing things in a happy-go-lucky manner. To get the task off of their minds is their sole ambition. If we form the habit of doing things in a slovenly manner while here at school how can we expect to do them in an efficient manner when we are out of school.

To succeed when out of school is our main reason for coming here. We must succeed in school to succeed after we get out of school. Today is the time to start to succeed. We say to ourselves we will do better tomorrow but unless we do better today we cannot expect to do better tomorrow.

Form the habit of doing things right and doing them today.

THE GOOD OF POLITICS.

Politics in the University play a very important part in the student life. Politics inspire competition, one of the essentials of all good business. However, there are some students who instead of getting the good out of the game, are really hindering themselves and their fellow students. Politics can be made the means of a strong character, one of the strongest and best assets that a man can possess. On the other hand they can be made the means of the destruction of character, if a man so chooses. To slander another is one of the things that will weaken character. In selling goods there are two ways of getting your goods to the other man. One way is by showing the superior qualities of your own goods and the other is by knocking your competitor's goods. The knocking salesman does not succeed in the business world. When we leave school we will all have something to sell in the way of services. Let us then practice those principles of conduct which will help us succeed when we finish school.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

Smile Power.

Who can gauge the power of a smile?

Science and modern knowledge have enabled men to measure the horsepower of an engine, the voltage of an electric current, and even the "kick" per cent of all beverages lawful or otherwise.

But never has man been able to accurately gauge the power of a smile given at the right place and at the right time. In truth its power is almost unmeasured.

The opening days on the Hill see smiles in their gala attire. The friendly grin rises consciously or unconsciously with the handshake given the old timer or pal. At such times smiles have their power.

But it is the smile which is given two months from now, to the same person that you greeted with a grin today, that scores the home-run and registers the deepest impression. The smile with the follow-through is the one that wins.

Consistency in smiling is the greatest producer of solid friendship that the world knows. One cannot smile consistently without being sincere. And all friendship is based on sincerity.

What will the power-gauge register on that smile of yours a month from now?

HEAD SETS TYPE

Miss Laura Hadley, daughter of President Emeritus Hadley, of Yale University, New Haven, Ct., has begun to learn the printers' trade at the plant of the Yale University Press, working eight hours a day with other employes.

She began by learning how to set type by hand, and she has progressed so fast and devoted herself so diligently to the trade that she is now ready to take up the linotype.

Miss Hadley was graduated last year from Vassar. For years she has been interested in printing and publishing, and at the beginning of the summer, instead of accompanying her family to their summer home at Sandy Hook, decided to work in the University Press plant.

PLANS TO START DAILY

The first step towards a daily newspaper for West Virginia University, at Morgantown, W. Va., was taken when arrangements were made recently for changing the Athenaeum, the student publication of the university, from a weekly to a bi-weekly paper. The editor is J. L. Snyder, jr., of Shepherdstown, and the assistant editor, Miss Gertrude Dotson of Richwood.

The news gathering is handled by the first year pupils of the newly established department of journalism who will be taught the art of news gathering and preparation, while the second year students will edit the copy and write heads. The department of journalism under Professor D. I. Reed has shown marked progress since its inception a little more than a year ago.

Two golfers sliced their drives into the rough and went in search of their respective balls. They searched for a long time without success, a dear old lady watching them with kindly sympathetic eyes.

At last, after the search had proceeded for half an hour, she spoke to them.

"I hope I'm not interrupting, gentlemen," she said, sweetly, "but would it be cheating if I told you where they are?"

At The Lyric.

"The Sign on The Door," at the Lyric is a splendid picture. Norma Talmadge is ably supported by Charles Richman and the story holds interest to the last fadeout.

At The Liberty.

The Liberty theater with its mixed bill offers an entertaining evening. The Lind Brothers are clever ladder balancers. Billy Miller and Co. draw several clever laughs with a rapid fire skit. Stanley, Tripp and Martin are novelty jugglers and handle Indian clubs and hats with dazzling speed.

Capitalistic.

"She isn't exactly pretty, but she has that indefinable something—"
 "So I hear; her father has piles of it."—Judge.

Call Draft.

Strict father—If I should die you would have to beg for moeny.
 Son—It sure would come natural.—Michigan Gargoyle.

A man was walking along the street when he drew near to some laborers, who were engaged in building a house. As he passed the scaffolding a brick accidentally fell, striking him on the shoulder. Looking up to the men, who were two stories high, he shouted indignantly: "Hi, up there! You've just dropped a brick on me."
 "All right!" responded one of the bricklayers. "You needn't trouble to bring it up."

One mother told us that several neighbor children came over to play with her small son
 the other day
 and they organized a "club"
 just like their brothers.
 They wore their brothers' hats and upon electing a "president"
 her son showed the DUNLAP label in his brother's hat and got the office
 without opposition!
 Dunlap hats here only in this city.
