UNIVERSITY OPINIONS.

The Daily Nebraskan is the official publication for the University of Nebraska and as such should represent all phases of student life both from the viewpoint of the students and of the professors. The paper will be glad to print in its Student Opinion column, letters pertaining to University affairs. In its regular news columns there is always space for articles of general interest to readers written by professors and students.

Already suggestions are coming in for the betterment of the paper. The reporter, with what is known as the nose for news, is the one we want on this paper—but unfortunately we haven't all the people with such talent on the paper, and as a result we are losing out on interesting features of our school life because more suggestions are not given us. Don't be afraid to step on our toes for it's done often and it helps us put out a better paper.

CLASS FOOTBALL

Why not have class football? During the athletic ticket sale campaign the expression of the students was that football was the most interesting of college sports. In days past, class football was a mighty interesting feature of the fall athletic season. Is Nebraska going to let this tradition die?

This form of competition brought forth a spirit of keen rivalry between all classes, which worked for the good of athletics in general and was doubly interesting for football fans were acquainted with all the participating players.

There is no reason why football of this kind should not be encouraged and practice commenced at once. There is a great deal of splendid material going to waste here in our school and class competition would not only intensify class spirit but might bring out possible Varsity material that up to this time had been dormant.

Practice should be started early so that the competing teams would be in good fighting condition. This old tradition of Nebraska should be revived.

HARMONY

Harmony is the essential foundation of every successful business, of every enterprise, of every great organization. It forms the basis from which the spirit of good-fellowship and democracy arise.

In the great industrial organisms, in order to insure success, there must be good will—harmony—from the lowest worker to the highest official. The tiniest cogs in the great mechanical devices which daily send forth their products to the waiting world, must be in harmony, in exact working order with the other more important cogs and wheels of their organized machine.

In this school of ours, then, how very necessary it is to build this strong footing of good will—harmony. Rushing is over, let us forget it. Class elections are near. Let us work thru them, and then forget them. If the other fellow gains the honors, wish him luck and forget your disappointment.

We are urged to stand back of our athletics, to support our school activities, and to work for Nebraska's banner year. We are going to do it. We are going to show the world that Nebraska students stand together as one, that the spirit of good fellowship and democracy prevail. And we are going to do this in—harmony.

REAL SPIRIT

We heard about a real case of "College Spirit" last week. A freshman girl was solicited for a subscription to the Daily Nebraskan, and anxious to get into the run of things, paid her dollar. A little later, another worker approached the same girl and asked for a dollar for a "Rag" subscription—which she obtained without any trouble.

For the benefit of Nebraska's yearlings—the "Rag" is the Daily Nebraskan. The word has become a tradition among Nebraska students and few upperclassmen call the daily by any other name.

Leo W. Petree, '21, of Oregon, Mo., is visiting at the Sigma Nu House this week. He has just returned from Tampico, Mexico where he has been connected with an oil company. Glen Rodwell is visiting this week and at the Sigma Nu House.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

(University of Washington Daily) WHEN CRITICISM FAILS.

If you have the interest and welfare of the university at heart, do not criticize it. It is better to praise, even when praise is not overly due, if you wish to see the fault corrected. To criticize does not have the effect of stimulating interest in the thing criticized, and thus bringing about the correction of the error. Instead it discourages those interested and tends to make them abate their efforts. But if they believe that their enterprise is succeeding, even partially, they are given an incitement to further efforts.

Students are prone to bring up little points about the University which are personally distasteful. People who hear these petty criticisms do not realize that they are merely the overflow of that critical spirit which is in every one of us. Instead they come gradually to hold the opinion that the University is somewhat of a failure. Now, logically, realizing the shortcomings of their venture they should redouble their efforts to make it what it should be, but as a matter of fact quite the opposite is true. Along with the rest of the world, voters are prone to try anything once, but only once. If it fails that once, why waste time and money on a losing proposition?

The danger of indiscriminate criticism is apparent. The only time when criticism is justified is when it will help to remedy an error. At all other times it is willful malice, or ill nature. There is no moral law which requires that one be critical merely for truth's sake. And in this case criticism defeats its own end. Praise, on the other hand, fills the function of criticism, interests people in a cause which is surely deserving of interest and assists them in seeing the good qualities of the state's venture in education. For the good points are there, in such measure as to predominate, and any dwelling on the errors is nothing but malice under the circumstances.

NO SPECIAL SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE

The movement started by the state statute commission for a special session for the purpose of repealing many obsolete and duplicate laws is really checked by the announcement of Governor McKelvie on Monday when he replied to a query on the subject: "Nothing doing; not so far as I am concerned."

Whatever duplicate and obsolete laws there are now on the statute books will be reproduced in the new statutes.

H. C. Lindsey, a member of the statute commission, desired the governor to call the law makers together for the purpose of repealing the superfluous laws. The duplicate laws were passed by the legislature of 1919 for fear the code law might not be passed in the last hours of the session. The legislature of 1921 was not asked by anyone to repeal them and it made no effort to do so.
