- President of Freshman Class: Edith Replogle, Pi Beta Phi, Giles Henkle, Phi Kappa Psi.

That the women are mixing into politics this year, because they have woman suffrage, or for some other reason, is shown by the fact that there are candidates in every class. At that, the men will have a hard race to make against the women. It will not be a question of dates, this election, but a question of the most ability.

Candidates this year have been making plans in the dark, and have been for a long time laying their wires and lining up their votes. The unorganized element in school will be more of a force in the election this year than it has in previous years despite the fact that no non-fraternity members are registered for the running.

The wise candidates have been gunning for the votes of the organizations in school not classed as fraternity or sorority, such as the home clubs, the literary clubs, and the various other social clubs. These clubs all have a definite place in the school activities, and the vote will count this year for the candidate who shows the most ability and is best fitted for the job.

The election will be held under the auspices of the student council and will be held in the social science building. The event will be carried out as nearly like a national election as it is possible to do. Regular election booths have been procured and the polls will be open continuously from nine to five.

The Home Economics girls will be allowed to vote at the College of Agriculture polls.

ART DEPARTMENT PLANS NEW TEXTILE EXHIBIT

The exhibition of Printed Fabrics for Home Decorations which has been shown in the Art gallery for the last three weeks, will be replaced by an exhibition of Textile Designs and Fabrics. This process exhibition, is the bringing together of original drawings, working drawings and printed fabrics, both printed and woven, and contains many trials for colors, weaves and textures, which are made in American factories. It is a most valuable exhibition, from an information viewpoint, ever gathered by the Federation of Art.

A feature of the exhibit at the Art Gallery is a group of five paintings by Miss Ethel Coe of the Chicago Art Institute. The subject matter for these pictures was procured at Taos, New Mexico, where Miss Coe has spent the past several summers at the artists colony located there for the study of Indian paintings. The pictures are fine canvases in oil, good in composition and color and portray various phases of Indian life with characteristic backgrounds such as sunny open landscapes, setting off the figures and the adobe against the mountains which surround the pueblo. Even the characteristic hollyhock may be seen in her pictures.

YOUNG WAR VETERAN TALKS TO KOMENSKY

Pretty folk dances were studied by the Komenksy Klub at its initial meeting Friday evening in Faculty hall, as a prelude to actual study of these dances with a possible view of giving the Beseda, the national folk dance of Czechoslovakia, as one of the numbers of University Night next spring.

No business meeting was held. Several musical numbers preceded a talk by Miro Marek, youngest war veteran, upon some of his experiences of the world war; how he came to enlist, some of the harrowing things which he experienced, and how he came to be a student at the University.

Establishment of a University Press and School of Journalism Looked For in the Near Future

By Joe Pekar.

A University Press, a School of Journalism—these two things have long been the desire for the University by those whose heart is in newspaper work—by the men and women publishing newspapers in Nebraska, by students in the University who are studying the journalism courses now offered, and by members of the faculty who have a vision, which reads in the future the establishment at Nebraska of a School of Journalism and a University Press which will rival the establishments of similar nature at other universities in America.

For several years there has been an insistent demand from newspaper men in the state to add to the journalism courses now offered, a course in printing, and this soon will be done. When the trade school is established, there will be taught the various steps of printing, from composition and job work, down to book binding. What equipment will be used, precisely what courses will be taught, and such details these have not been decided. But the main thing is that there will be courses in printing.

The courses in printing will lead to great things, beyond any question. There are many ways in which the course will work for benefit with the other courses in the University.

There are now a number of journalism courses taught. Many of the students who come here to study newspaper work plan to go out into the small town field, many of them to the city field. But the fact is that many do not have any knowledge of the mechanical end of the newspaper game. It is always taught by good newspaper men that the man or woman who wants to enter newspaper work on the editorial side will be a better worker by virtue of the fact that they know something about the mechanical end of the work. The more the editorial worker knows about the mechanical worker, the better can he work in harmony with the latter, because he will understand his problems, the limitations of his ability, and will not attempt to overtax the strength of the "back room."

The courses in printing will teach to students of journalism this familiarity with the mechanical end of the newspaper work. It will give them the opportunity to do with their own hands some of the things that they will call upon their assistants to do later on. They will better be able to understand the work of the newspaper office, because they will really know the meaning of the many words which the newspaper writer uses in reference to the "back room."

With the University Press into which the courses of printing will naturally develop, will come some important changes in university publications, without a doubt. Of these the most important change will probably be this, that The Daily Nebraskan, editorially and mechanically, will be produced on the campus by students, who will receive full credit for their work in university hours, for their (Continued on Page 4.)

W. S. G. A. CAMPAIGN FOR MEMBERS STARTS

Want Every University Woman to be Active Member of Organization

Every University woman an active member of the Women's Self-Governing Association is the slogan of the campaign for members which begins Monday and will continue through the week. Payment of 50 cents for the semester dues will make one an active member of the association.

The W. S. G. A. or Women's Self-Governing Association is the one University organization to which all women of the University belong. Upon registration a woman becomes automatically an associate member of the organization. The W. S. G. A. is an organization for all women and in order that its work may be carried on most effectively it is necessary that every woman student become an active member of the association. Active membership carries with it the privilege of voting and holding office.

To uphold the rights and welfare of the women in the University is the especial duty of the W. S. G. A. Through its governing board and a council made up of one representative from each house in which four or more women live house rules are made for all women students. The board members are elected by the active members of the W. S. G. A. The council members are chosen by the women in the respective houses which they represent.

Th W. S. G. A. also gives parties several times in the year for all University women. A loan fund is maintained to which half of the dues go.

The University Cadet band marched on the field at 2:10 P. M. followed by the Cornhusker aggregation five minutes later.

FIRST-YEAR MEN TO MEET ON THURSDAY

Freshman Convocation Postponed Until That Day—Luehring and Engberg Will Speak

The explaining of university traditions combined with tryouts for Nebraska cheer leaders for the coming year will be combined in a special convocation for freshmen men to be staged Thursday, October 6, at 11 o'clock a. m. in the chapel of the Armory. This convocation was postponed from last Thursday because of the fact that the first-year class did not show enough school spirit to get a sufficient number of men at the meeting.

The University band will be on hand next Thursday morning and will give a preliminary concert in front of the Armory at 10:45. All fraternities are asked to have all freshmen at the convocation.

This convocation, an annual affair for both men and women, is held to acquaint the new students with life at the University and to teach them college traditions.

Director Luehring, of the Department of Athletics and Physical Training, and C. C. Engberg, executive dean of the University will speak to the men next Thursday. These men who wish to try out for cheer leader at games for the coming year will lead the gathering in songs and yells. In this way, their ability can be assured by the audience and by the innocents society, which decides on the successful contestants.

The innocents will have charge of the men's convocation.

Mr. Metzgar was active in school affairs and a member of Bushnell Guild. Last year he was an active member of the innocents and president of the Student Council.

SENIOR DIVISION CLASSES CROWDED

The new rules applying to division of classes affected this fall have practically trebled the enrollment in classes of the senior division. The new rule provides that juniors and seniors must take at least two-thirds of their work in classes of the senior division or sacrifice their credit. All classes numbering one hundred or above in the university catalog are classed in the senior division. Previously the enrollment was always much larger in the junior division. The obvious purpose of this ruling is to prevent upper classmen from loading up their courses with freshmen and sophomore subjects.

Coach Dawson had every man that has been on the Varsity squad thus far this season out in suit and the Scarlet and Cream warriors made a commendable showing. "Jack Best, who has helped condition Nebraska's athletes for the last thirty three years, was with the men during the entire contest.

The Wesleyan squad, twenty four strong, trotted on the gridiron at 2:20 P. M. and immediately got into action. Coach McCandless' warriors made a strong impression on the minds of the Cornhusker followers. The Methodists presented a husky bunch of athletes and the University Place men looked good in their workout just before time was called.

Captain Swanson and Captain McCandless tossed a coin with the Methodist leader winning the toss. Nebraska kicked off and the massacre was under way. Nebraska scored in the first few minutes of play in the first quarter when Wesleyan lost the ball on a punt and Dewitz went over on the fourth play. Captain Swanson missed the goal kick.

Soon Score Again

The second touchdown came after a series of plays with the entire backfield carrying the ball. Preston, Husker quarter, displayed good generalship and convinced the Husker spectators that he could run the team as well as make good gains by carrying the ball. Preston went over for the second touchdown and Dewitz booted the goal. Time was called before the Huskers succeeded in securing the third counter.

Pucelik, who sustained an injury to his shoulder was forced to leave the game just before time was called and his position was filled by Wenke. The big Husker tackle displayed his old time form and did good work while in the game. The third touchdown came late in the first quarter with Preston and Dewitz covering most of the distance.

Noble Intercepts Pass

Noble intercepted a pass and after sprinting 35 yards through a broken field succeeded in planting the pigskin behind the goal line. Noble's run was one of the sensations of the afternoon. This brought the Huskers total up to 27 while the Wesleyan contingent had to be satisfied with a goose egg. The remainder of the quarter was a see-saw with Nebraska and Wesleyan exchanging punts and losing the ball to one another quite frequently. The Methodists succeeded in holding the Huskers for downs only twice during the entire contest.

The final half was played with a number of substitutes in the Husker lineup but the scoring machine worked just the same. When time was called at the end of the contest the Huskers had 55 with 0 for the Methodists.

Every man on the Husker team did good work considering the heat and earliness of the season. Captain Swanson and Scherer worked the end positions with their old time surety and the big line failed to yield over one or two yards at a time and most of the time held like a stonewall.

Coach Dawson seemed well pleased with the showing made and will spend the next two weeks in ripping up the first year men in preparation for the Haskell Indians.
