THE BULLETIN BOARD HABIT.

In order to keep posted on the happenings of the University, it has been urged from time to time that the students read the notices on the various bulletin boards in the buildings and on the campus. Notices of all meetings, rallies, convocations, vespers—everything in fact which is of interest to the student, may be found posted in conspicuous places in every campus building.

The bulletin boards are attractive, too. Notices are no longer confined to common-place printed matter, but they have taken on an almost artistic aspect, with their gay and inviting posters. The pictures attract, to be sure, but do you always pause to read, as well? Also, do you read the notices in the columns of the Daily Nebraskan?

Keep posted on the doings of the school. Get the Bulletin Board Habit. It's a good one.

OUR TIME.

The excuse given more often for the failure on our part to accomplish a result, to accept an obligation, or to perform a service is that we do not have the time. Whenever we wish to avoid an unpleasant task or to drop an uninteresting subject the excuse that we give is, "I do not have the time." The man who fails most in his school work is the man who claims that he did not have the time for work.

The real reason for the failure is not the lack of time but the lack of proper utilization of the time that we have. For some, the time just naturally seems to slip away—we don't know where it goes. The opportunities to waste time in college or infinite. It is generally very easy to find a good show, or a talkative roommate.

Perhaps the reason that some of us waste so much time is that we are given the freedom of our actions and do not bind ourselves by any set rules.

The most practical way is to divide the day into three equal parts, giving one-third to sleep, one-third to eating and recreation, and one-third to class attendance and study. In business we have a regular schedule of hours. Why not consider our going to the University the business of getting an education and have our regular time for business hours?

The Cornhuskers are off. Starting the season with a 55 to 0 victory over Wesleyan, great prospects are in sight. But stiff opposition is to be encountered and Coach Dawson and the team cannot meet it alone.

Fellow Nebraskans, let's be with the team from now on. The co-operation of the student body is necessary to ound out a victorious football season. Let's root and yell, sing and fight for Nebraska until every team on the 1921 schedule has been defeated.

How many Nebraska students know the official field song, "The Cornhusker." That is a very embarrassing question, isn't it? But it shouldn't be. Every man and woman enrolled in this institution should know the old song by heart, and stand and sing with bared head on all occasions. This is a mighty good way to build up a strong Nebraska spirit. Let's learn "The Cornhusker."

Nebraska students stood yesterday and sang the Cornhusker while the football men were going off the field. It was a tribute to the team, and a tradition worth following. Yesterday the team won, but sometimes, though we hope not, we may have to stand and sing while the team goes off the field defeated. But let's honor the team by giving them a chance to get to the gym and into the shower baths without being compelled to fight through the crowd to get there.

Tuesday is election. There are not many candidates, but let your vote be dictated by fitness, not by a love of some particular combination of Greek letters.

Punctuality is a habit that all of us might well get into. It does not make any difference whether we are going on a date or whether we are going to class. The important thing is that we ought to get there on time. The habit of punctuality is one that we must get into if we are going to make a successful life. Let's be on time, Cornhuskers.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

(The Michigan Daily)

ADVICE WORTH FOLLOWING.

Life, says the philosopher, is made up of experiences, some contributing to the development of upright, steadfast character, others affecting rather the negative than the positive side of one's mental, moral and physical makeup. Every day we have these encounters with fate, some of which we must meet with snap, hasty decision, while again we are confronted with other problems which require more careful deliberation and thought before we can permit ourselves to answer them. This is especially true of university students, where daily questions concerning academic, personal and worldly matters which play important parts in our lives are constantly being brought up.

How to meet these experiences, how to solve these problems; these are the real problems. President Marlon L. Burton, last night speaking to at least five thousand members of the student body in Hill auditorium, gave to his audience three words of advice which are well worth taking to heart, in the phrase of kindly warning, "TAKE YOUR CHOICE." Upon choice depends character, for a well-planned choice between two opposite forces strongly contending against each other, and between which the chooser must act as referee, will undoubtedly raise the ideals and moral standard of the individual. A poor choice, in like manner, made because it is easier and more convenient, leads to a lowering of ideals and moral standards.

No man has ever achieved success that counts unless he has deliberately sifted out the evil and left only the good, the constructive, and the beneficial in his life's experiences. How, then, can we as students, who some day in the near future hope to leave the portals of Michigan to fight for higher things in the world of men, afford to ignore President Burton's advice: "Take Your Choice?"

The Exhaust

Be it known that this is the first appearance of "The Exhaust," which is a column of college wit.

Many college dailies have similar columns. The Daily Nebraskan has always ranked high among college publications. Therefore let's introduce a column of live wit in our daily.

The "Line O' Type" which was successfully executed by the late B. L. T. in the Chicago Daily Tribune might well be our pattern. "The Off Hour" in the Columbia Spectator, "The Campus Whistle" in the Daily Maroon, and "Skyrockets" in the Daily Cardinal have proved their worth and have received hearty support.

Only by the means of your support can this column attain success. Bring us hope not, we may have to stand and sing while the team goes off the field defeated. But let's honor the team by giving them a chance to get to the gym and into the shower baths without being compelled to fight through the crowd to get there.

Be it ever so crude,
There's no wit like your own.

If a concoction of varnish and Jamaica ginger is Moonshine, then is a tackled football player a Son-down.

The freshman can say he has learned a lesson in economics, when after losing his last five-spot on a football game, he has gained a knowledge of financial depression.

DATES

Most any man,
Can kid a girl,
And get a date or two,
But it's a job,
To pull the gob,
And make her stick right true.
It's easy, mate—
To have one date,
And spend a heap of dough,
But the guy is there,
Without hot air
Who can date without a show,
Or do, perchance,
Skip a dance,
And hold the porch swing down,
Or fuss by moon
Or music room,
Not even walk down town,
I'll say that he,
By golly gee,
Is one sweet looking bird,
Who'll cage the girl,
Without a whirl,
And spill the toothsome word.
—By Pep.

ORCHESTRA OFFICERS ELECTED FOR SEMESTER

At the meeting of the orchestra Thursday night the following officers were elected for the ensuing semester: President, Norman L. Cramb; vice-president, Irene Faulder; secretary and treasurer, Charles Novotny. Plans are in progress for a get acquainted party in the near future.

Since its foundation four years ago, the orchestra has steadily grown in size until it has now nearly forty pieces and a quite varied instrumentation. Prof. Quick is well pleased with the showing made and expects to have one of the finest organizations of its kind.
