GAMENESS.

Yesterday afternoon Nebraska saw the finest exhibition of gameness that she can expect to see for a long time. The Haskell team, although outweighed and outplayed, was never for a moment outfought. Man after man was hurt yet their very grit in trying to play the game after these injuries won for them the respect and admiration of the spectators.

Up to the last minute of the last quarter when even a miracle could not have beaten our splendid team, they fought with a determination that kept even the most blasé of us in the stands until the last whistle blew.

Nebraska takes off her hat to our opponents of yesterday. They were sportsmen through and through, and although beaten, they will be long remembered at Nebraska as men who played the game all the time and played it fairly and squarely.

THE BORROWING HABIT.

We are all intimately acquainted with that well known nuisance—the borrower. We all have him spotted, we all know his habits.

Some of us are strong enough to refuse him flatly, but most of us sigh resignedly when he asks us for the loan of this or that, and rather than be uncivil, we keep him in money, cigarettes, in tooth paste or in soap. When he thanks us blithely and assures us of prompt repayment, we smile and say goodbye forever to our belongings.

But this type of man is a joy compared with the borrower who takes without asking. It has become a common occurrence to most of us to plan on wearing a certain suit or dress only to find that some fair brother or sister has raided the closet before us, or perhaps to see our favorite necktie adorning some dear brother.

Perhaps we, ourselves, are guilty of these same thoughtless actions and if such is the case let's start with ourselves and exterminate this useless pest—the borrower.

Some time ago Henry Ford startled the intellectual world by saying that: Most men dig their graves with their teeth. Of course Mr. Ford did not mean this literally but what he wished to bring out was the intemperance in eating which exists today. Not only does this apply to eating alone but to intemperance in general.

We as students should be, above all, temperate in our habits. This includes our eating, general expenditures and various things we do during leisure hours.

This year many students have returned to school with allowances much smaller than in previous years. This in itself is sufficient reason for us to start training ourselves to be temperate and rational in all things. By training ourselves now along these lines, we will find it invaluable to us in years to come.

RECOGNITION SERVICE OF Y. W. C. A. TUESDAY

The candle lighting service for the Y. W. C. A. will be held at Vespers, Tuesday, October 18, 1921. This is the regular recognition service of the association.

The central feature of the service is the lighting of candles by every member, which is symbolic of the spirit of Christianity which pervades the organization.

Miss Winnifred Wygal, field student secretary for Nebraska university, is to be the speaker. The Vesper choir will furnish special music for the service.

This is to be one of the most important meetings of the year and every member is urged to be present.

The Exhaust

In the state teachers' examination, the plurals of a number of words were asked for. One unsophisticated applicant gave for the plural of Forget-me-not the unusual plural Forget-us-nots.

We wish to be informed why dormitories which have a proctor don't have a gamble also.

"Do girls want to marry?" is the heading of an article on a women's page. We aren't looking for trouble so we haven't any first hand information, however we all have our theories. We rank this with Edison's queries along with "Is water wet?"

Do your room-mate's clothes fit you? They should. If they don't, you have made a poor selection.

Slogan.

The order of ditch diggers have announced their new slogan "Let's get down to work."

Only the other day a man of our state hurt himself quite seriously when he cut off his eyebrow with an axe. This ought to be a lesson to you girls, you simply must be careful.

Headline in daily paper: "Americans in Egypt are Having Sleepy Nights." Really, now, we never thought of anyone sleeping at night in that land.

Sciences are very good, to build a fertile brain. 'Tis counted high to know a lot and scatter wisdom's grain. Smiles come, and smiles go, and leave the sad heart lighter. Tasks call and folks stall, but all still love a fighter. Great men and little men are shown up every day. Money comes and off it flows—unless you make it stay. Straight is the narrow path and broad the other way. Students work and study some, but mostly they just play. So the world goes round and round, but what's the point of his? Nothing, only life is good, just too darn good to miss.

"None are so blind as those who cannot see," quoth the blind beggar as he strained his orbs to see. For 'twas a windy day.

Friends, Thanx.

Greetings and salutations, blessed be Allah. May the "Egyptians Deities" show mercies unto you.

We hope you'll have another "Lucky Strike" and share the aroma with us. What we are trying to do is express our appreciation for the way you have been supporting this Kolym. We especially thank Half Wit and Witty Cism and we would further extoll Humor.

—Yours, Bottled in the Bond.

UNI. PROFESSOR HAS ARTICLE PUBLISHED

Professor Maurice H. Weesen of the English department is the author of an article entitled "Can Spelling Be Taught," which was published in the last issue of American Education, a national journal published at Albany, N. Y. The article consists of a plan for the study of spelling, lists of test words, and some statistical results showing that a great improvement in spelling is possible even to the poorest of "just naturally poor" spellers.

READING ROOMS IN TEMPLE OPEN TO ALL

Students will find at their disposal two large and well equipped reading rooms in the Temple building. The leading magazines have been ordered and are being placed in folders. In addition to this various college papers are on file so that the student can get a glimpse of college life outside of that of our own university. A Victrola is also maintained and students will find these rooms a very desirable place to spend their time between classes and during leisure hours.

Only the best of eggs and milk can be used in making any of the pastry sold at the Sunlite Bakery. Ever eat one of those pies?
