ELDRIDGE LOVE

IT'S TOUGH, BUT I LIKE IT.

The attitude of the majority of the students toward their work is very commendable, but there are a few that have the wrong idea. Occasionally we hear the remark, "How I do hate that subject." The chances are that "that subject" is a hard one and they begrudge the time that is required in the preparation of the assignments. It is foolish to expect all that is undertaken to be easy or that it should all readily unfold before your eyes. What a queer world this would be if everything was easy! Oh, ye of little nerve! the elevator does not work and you refuse to take the stairs. A difficulty cannot be overcome nor a high goal attained unless you use your own power and put on plenty of gas in the form of honest endeavor.

THE CHICAGO PLAN.

In a recent issue of the University of Chicago Daily, a plan was proposed whereby greater friendliness would be brought about among members of the student body. The idea is so simple that it is queer that we have not used it here in Nebraska in the years past.

It is proposed that every member of a class consider himself introduced to every other member of that class. With the exception of the formal introduction they are, for the members of a class know the names of their classmates, they listen to an expression of their ideas, they are all perplexed by the same problems, in fact have many things in common, and yet in many cases do not speak to each other when they meet on the campus.

A cheery "Hello" brightens the walk between classes a companion as you walk downtown or back will make the walk shorter, and perhaps the actual discussion of the points brought out in the classrooms will be beneficial from a scholastic standpoint.

Lets all try to speak to all our classmates today to see if it won't make the day a little brighter for us and perhaps cheer up some one that needs a little brotherly sympathy.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

(University Daily Kansan)
MENTAL HYGIENE.

There is no disease in existence that is as contagious as our moods. They are more catching than the flu. The time will come when we will be careful enough to pay as much attention to mental hygiene as we now do to physical hygiene. Then, when we perceive that we are suffering from a grumpy, grouchy, pessimistic, accompanied by a dark brown pessimistic taste and other such symptoms, we shall be humane enough to quarantine ourselves in our rooms and hang out a sign on our door to warn other people away till the attack is over and the danger of infection past.

None of us are immune to the moods of those about us. We start out in the morning feeling well and cheerful and convinced that this is a wonderful world to live in.

Then we meet two or three people who tell us that they think it is going to storm, or that diphtheria is spreading fast, and unconsciously, we begin to feel cooler and our throats feel just a little sore. Then another friend comes along afflicted with the worst of the many varieties of "blues"—Before we know it our mouths sag at the corners.

Then comes along the pessimist who passes on to us great clouds of gloom.—the country's going to the dogs, the old school isn't what it used to be, the Professors are all hard-boiled, all men are crooks and all women are liars—everything's rotten! And before we leave them we are ready to second everything said. Or the reverse of this hap happen. We start the day feeling half sick, worried, and depressed. We are thrown with people who radiate health, and pep, and good cheer. Immediately we buck up and soon find ourselves telling a funny story instead of going to the doctor or shedding tears of self-pity in our handkerchiefs. For cheerfulness is just as contagious as the blues!

Slogan.

"We must stick together,"—Associated manufacturers of glue.
One of our stellar co-eds when narrating her social activities of Friday, Saturday and Sunday was heard uttering the famous line "It's a great life if you don't week-end."

Well! Well!

Willie: Mother, my Sunday school teacher never takes a bath.
Mother: Why, Willie, who told you that?

Willie: She did. She said she "save the surface and you save all," quoth the laundry queen as she applied a second coat of paint to her nap.
'Tis a wise cork that knows its own "pop."

Some of the low-brows of our alma mater find amusement at the football games in "razzing" the cheerleaders. We must ask you for their pardon. These "rah rahs" might better matriculate in the oatmeal school of thought.

"THE BUTTON BUSTER"
AWGWAN'S GRAND DAD
AS HUMEROUS PAPER

Didn't know it had one did you? Well 'way back in the early 80's some of the Palladian "Pep" bubbled out in the form of the University's first humorous publication "The Button Buster." Unfortunately none of the copies have been preserved but two of the gems published therein have come down to us, and in spite of years, do not seem to be as antique as some of the jokes one hears on the campus these days.

"From a Soph's Album."

"May your life glide down
The stream of time
Like a bobbed tailed chicken
On a sweet potato vine."

"Our Favorite."

"She's a tall, slim girl, without bang or curl
But garbed in becoming apparel.
She can give you askance a withering
glance
As sour as a vinegar barrel."

PROFESSOR TO LECTRE AT DUCHESNE COLLEGE

Prof. J. P. Senning will deliver a lecture today at Duchesne College, Omaha. His subject will be "The Evolution of Government." This lecture is the second of a series arranged by the department of political science.

Quality Clothes

The Prince George Has
Style and Individuality

HERE is an overcoat with style and quality in every line. Made of rough, soft, fleecy fabrics, it has the roomy luxury of true comfort you should have in your winter overcoat. This is the newest Stratford model. Use it for your guide in determining the style tendency of the day.

It pays to buy the best.

COHN RISSMAN & COMPANY
CHICAGO

The new Stratford styles for Fall and Winter definitely attest to the fact that Stratford designers are anticipating America's style trend. Stratford Clothes are distinguished by several vitally important and exclusive designing and tailoring features. For instance, the life of Stratford overcoats is greatly prolonged by the Namsirr Method, a process of strengthening the texture by totally stitching the cuffs and continental patch pockets with very fine silk.
