SMILES.

No matter when or how they are applied, smiles always work wonders. Smile in the morning and the day starts right, keep smiling and it goes right. If things do not go quite as you should like them to go, don't neglect to smile for that is the best tonic for all kinds of mental depression. Smiles are always associated with success, frowns with failure. Which do you reflect? It is possible to be serious without being solemn so while you are developing creases in your brain do not develop in your forehead or a frown between your eyes.
A person who goes about wearing a frown never creates a very favorable impression. One would not think of posing for a photograph with his features contracted in an expression of despair. To go about looking like a thunder cloud is to contaminate the atmosphere and spread gloom. Gloom never boosted anybody or anything, it paralyzes pep and has a corrupting influence.
Smiles are very contagious and spread rapidly. You may be doing a kindness to a friend to smile when you meet him for he may not be in the best of spirits and he may catch the germ from you.
Don't be a "killjoy" and spread gloom, keep smiling and radiate cheerfulness and the world will go right with you.

DON'T BE DISCOURAGED.

We have all gone through the freshman stage—that period of discouragement and seemingly useless endeavor. We have all felt, at one time or another, the fruitfulness of our efforts, and have seen that dim, distant A. B. grow even more dim and gradually fade off into the distance.
Perhaps one of the hardest things in the life of the first-year student is the adjustment to his college surroundings. University life is entirely different, in most respects, from the preparatory training received in high school. The methods of study are strong, the college courses are difficult, and the whole school system seems a "mystic maze."
But don't be discouraged, freshmen, for it once you get on to the "ropes," all will go well. We all have days when everything seems to go wrong, but there are better ones ahead, always. Just keep digging and soon there will be a clear road ahead. The rest of us have been through it all. Most of us survived, and some of us, in fact, are really thriving.

YOST-ISMS.

Some days ago, Coach Fielding H. Yost, in an address before the members of the freshman engineering class, gave out a group of maxims whose observance need by no means be limited to those who were present to hear the gridiron leader's words. Coming as they do from a man's man who has himself gone through varied experiences, who has spent his life making football eleven's famous, and who has more than brought victory to Michigan through his dynamic influence, these bits of epigrammatic advice, first given to football men about to enter the scrimmage and but recently given to the yearling engineers, should be of importance to every one who wishes to get somewhere in college or after life.

Says Coach Yost, "You can't win on what you did last Saturday,"—a truth applicable alike to the football player, the student in college, and the successful graduate. Past accomplishments may build up an enviable reputation but life's battle is not won with one blow; it is a campaign against successive obstacles. The man who thinks he will ride along on what he has done in the past is bound to be outdistanced in anything he undertakes.

"Do your part. The plays are planned for eleven men, not ten," another of Yost's maxims, points out the student's duty in taking part in campus affairs as well as the athlete's obligation to his school and team-mates. In the aggregate little things like attending class meetings, giving support in athletic contests, and intelligent voting and thinking in regard to campus affairs, become as important to Michigan's welfare as the crucial moments in a football game, and it is essential that every man should be in every play.

"Leaving it to George, gives George the credit," "In the game is going against you, keep your head up, set your jaw, go to it," and "It's not what you get but what you give," contain in a few words the meat of the fighting philosophy that has made Michigan great on and off the gridiron. In spite of the prevalent discount on "proverbial wisdom," whoever makes Coach Yost's epigrams a part of himself can't help but end near the top and also be a benefit to his college before graduation and his community afterwards.

Forty Sig Alphas left with the team to handle the program sales campaign at Notre Dame.

A certain laundry queen has asked us to find a young man who was a wonderful dancer. She says that he gave the name of Jack Delta.

Now and Then.

What is the biggest thing you can get in college??

These are some of the answers we would expect to receive:

Ward Randol says he thinks being editor-in-chief of the Cornhusker is the biggest thing that can come to one at Nebraska.

Harriet Ford says the greatest thing at Nebraska is leading the laws at the football games.

Floyd Reed says, "I consider that there are two great things a man can do at college; they are wrestling and wearing a big sombrero."

Gert Moran says that the biggest thing a girl can get out of college is an engagement.

Harlow Coy says, "The biggest thing I see about going to college is wearing corduroy trousers. It's great stuff, especially when worn with patent leather hair."

Two worms were eating in dead earnest, poor Ernest.

IN YEARS GONE BY.

1909.

Nebraska outplayed Minnesota in a 6-0 struggle and an enthusiastic rally was held in Memorial hall in honor of the gridiron heroes.

1911.

The girls of the normal department and physical education department held a picnic feast in Penn Woods.

Why Be a Mere Dancer?

A few hours with a "Specialist" will put that professional "snap" to your dancing. Mr. Carroll "Specializes" upon private, personal instruction. This imparts that "Smartness" and "Modernism" which denote style. Engage the services of a Specialist in place of employing an ordinary teacher.
