OUR ROOTERS

For some time there has been criticism in university circles regarding Nebraska's methods of placing students in the rooting sections at the football games. At present the girls are in one group on the fifty-yard line and the men are split up, half of them on one side of the women and half on the other.

The result of this seating arrangement is lack of co-operation in the cheering commences. This is very apparent from the grand stand, for one section will finish much ahead of the other two, or one section will have no part in a yell while one or both of the other sections are on their feet.

The logical solution for this would be to combine all the men and thus have unified cheering at least from the men. In the past the head cheer leader has been located in front of the fifty-yard line. No matter how able his assistants are, they cannot keep in time with him and as a result the sections, no matter how attentive, cannot work together.

In Notre Dame they have one man to lead the cheers and the football fans returning from there tell how successful he was. Nebraska has the spirit to make their cheering a success and all they need is the proper organization. Is this plan worth a try?

HOMECOMING DAY.

On November 12, Nebraska celebrates its annual Homecoming Day. The schedule for the day is enticing and from the minute the Freshmen start their battle with the sophomores early that morning until the last dance is history, the day will be lively with things to see and places to go. All the old grads would like to see the annual Olympics. Their blood would be stirred by the band playing Cornhusker songs, the spirit of their college days would return to them during the battle with Kansas, our greatest rival, at the parties that night and the mixer to be given in their honor, they certainly will be amused, and last but not least the refreshing of their friendships with men of their days would make them glad that they again returned.

Right now is the time to begin "selling" them the idea of that day. It can't be as successful as we would wish if the alumni don't return. We are the ones that must bring them here. Can it be done? Certainly.

Most of us have friends and relatives who attended Nebraska. The best way to reach these people is to write them. If they are told of the plans we are making for them, and if our program can be made appealing to them, they will come. If each student would write one enthusiastic letter to a Husker of days gone by, we would have such a crowd in Lincoln that the hotels would not hold them. We would create such a spirit for our school that our expansion dream would come sooner than even the most optimistic have hoped for.

The dream of a school bounded by Vine street and Seventeenth with the magnificent new athletic stadium will soon become a reality if we arouse enough spirit in the men of our state who will have the power and influence to do it.

"Like pie Jack?"
"You sezzer?"
"Fine! Let's go over to the Sun-lite Bakery and take one home with us?"

Contemporary Opinion

(Uni. Daily Iowan.)
FROM OPEN HOUSE.

Several hundred men met several hundred women yesterday at open house, some of them for the second or third time since their coming to the university. And the girls who has been at open houses, numbers one, two, and three, was probably delightedly charmed to remember that she had met the man who has attended open houses, one, two, and three times. She remembers him very well; she couldn't forget him. And the poor fellow passed on down the line to others who had met him last year, wondering why they had not remembered him as an acquaintance from open house to open house but did not know him between times. If they were such close friends why did they not recognize him on the street or in the class room and speak to him. He had remembered them, to be sure, but—and he smiled as he thought of it—what opportunity had been given to show it?

Yesterday he met those same girls again but—back to the state of the stranger. Snobbishness is a nasty word. It does not please the ear and does not look well in print. If one were able to gather all of the near-synonyms for snobbishness and derive a representative extract from the lot that would result in a smooth and pleasant sounding word, he might not hesitate so much in its use.

Our man of four seasons of open houses has heard from different angles and sources that women should speak first, but he is still uncertain for want of proof in the actual working out of the idea. He has come to the conclusion that the university man does not need even that much—perhaps the prelude to a smile or anything that will show the slightest inclination to recognition—but the woman of four seasons shatters all hopes on this basis. Ah, well; and as he selects the old flannel shirt he calls down stairs to Jack for a date to the theater.

The Exhaust

We suggest that Mike Miles appoint a committee on flowers.

Who always rolled down her hose;
But when it got cold,
She was both brave and bold
For, believe me, she darn near froze.

—Ohio State Lantern.

The latest thing is the fur garter. There is nothing like being practical and it's nice to be prepared for the wintry blasts.

The Kappas will plunge headlong into a week-end of revelry beginning tomorrow night. The freshmen have been divided into three sections because of the lack of accommodations for one party. One group will entertain Friday night at Ellen Smith hall, another Saturday night at Ellen Smith hall, and the third Saturday night at the Lincolnshire. It is believed that the three-night system will allow all of the young Kappas to join in the fun. The other freshmen or the university are holding a mixer at the armory on Friday night.

Talk about economy—everybody knows about that. Most everybody uses it and has the facts down pat. I know a bunch of co-eds who buy one gown a year. But each has twenty changes, a whole wardrobe, my dear. I've heard of folks who little eat, until invited to a treat. And wifey must cut down on hats so hubby will have cigarets. Some folks will toil by light of day and when night comes they hit the hay. Others jazz by light of lamp, and ask their Dads for postage stamps. But of this fable here's the cream, and you'll admit it too, I ween. There are two sisters fair and gay, each drives her own car too, they say. They drive them fast, and drive them far, and each one twinkles like a star. But, oh, bright endig to this tale, these maidens too, do save the kale. In school supplies they do conserve, and bought one set of books, I've heard.
—Teddy Bear.

ENGINEERING NOTES

F. C. Holtz, E. E. 1914, visited the engineering department last week and attended the Haskell-Nebraska football game.

Mr. Holtz after graduation was instructor in the electrical engineering department for a year and is now chief engineer for the Sangamo Electric Co., of Springfield, Ill.

The Sangamo Electric Co., is the largest company in the world which manufactures electric meters exclusively. It has branches in Canada, England and Japan and is now considering the installation of a branch in Germany.

Mr. Holtz is doing development work on new electrical devices including transformers for ammeters and a new synchronous speed motor.

Luther R. Branting, C. E. Feb. '17, was a recent visitor on the campus. Mr. Branting is now chief engineer for the American Bauxite Co., at Bauxite, Arkansas. Bauxite is an important ore of aluminum and the company is a subsidiary of the Aluminum

CAN ATTEND MILITARY CARNIVAL IN CIVIES

The plans for the first annual military carnival which will be held on Saturday, November 5, at the armory, are being perfected this week by the committees. The carnival is to be an all-university affair at which uniforms will not be worn.

Ample entertainment facilities will be provided for everybody. There will be dancing and also forms of entertainment for those who do not wish to dance during the entire evening. The decorations are to be unique in themselves and a general scheme will be followed for the entire party.

The carnival is sponsored by Seabard and Blade, the cadet officer's honorary fraternity. The members of this organization have been working on the details of the party for the last few weeks.

The tickets for the carnival, which are being sold for thirty-five cents, can be secured from any of the cadet officers. The price of admission, includes a paper hat and a drink. Payment for a good sized crowd because of the way in which the tickets are being sold.

Mr. Walter Locke, of the Nebraska State Journal will speak on "The Disarmament Conference" at a meeting of the young people's society of the Unitarian church, 12th and H streets, Sunday evening. All students are cordially invited to attend both the talk and the informal supper which will precede it at 6:30 o'clock.

SEVEN MUSICIANS IN THIRD RECITAL

PSYCHOLOGY
The dictionaries and universities have much to say on this subject, but we say PSYCHOLOGY is only human nature in a new dress; and if the proper study of PERFUMES is woman—lovely woman.
When a woman contemplates the purchase of toilet articles, she first smells them. Therefore, get a good Bouquet. O.K.? You have one?
