SELLING NEBRASKA.

Some twenty members of the University of Nebraska football squad, together with the squads of the Nebraska basketball, track and other teams, have been the salesmen of the Cornhusker school for many years—Every place they go they receive praise, not only for their ability, but also for their manly qualities displayed.

Members of university teams of all kinds as a rule are splendid members of the school's student body. Wherever Nebraska's teams have gone abroad they left a lasting impression of the greatness of the University of Nebraska. But do the rest of the members of the student body also do their share toward advertising the school of their choice?

Within the last year or two American schools have not only critically surveyed the teams of their opponents, but have examined the school backers who have taken the interest and made the effort to be with their teams in victory or defeat. We learn much about our neighboring schools, as much through defeat as victory, for it takes good men to be losers as well as good winners.

Nebraska's football team is going to take a trip Saturday. They will invade Iowa and meet the powerful Ames eleven. On that day thousands of Ames older men and women will be back to their alma mater to participate in their annual homecoming celebration. They are eager to see Nebraska in action, and as eager to see what sort of a representation our school will send with our team. We have to make good with them or they will feel that something is lacking at Nebraska!

Our store has to stand back of the men that reserved that big block of seats to be used by the rooters Saturday. Get behind the Ames special and BOOST!

INTER-COLLEGE FOOTBALL.

In the last two weeks the university has witnessed two football contests between college teams. Disregarding the scores let us see if inter-college activities pay.

When the two teams met on the field of football battle, they were fighting for their college that that college might carry off the honors of the entire university. Behind them on the sidelines were students from both colleges urging them to more strenuous efforts. They were all enthused with a spirit for their college as a part of the University of Nebraska.

But why is college spirit a good thing? Is not university spirit enough? It is not.

Spirit for the university is too big a thing entirely for it to start spontaneously. So the natural place for it to start is in the college. When a student gets behind his college he is bound to get behind his university.

The principle is that of business men getting behind their town's business and then behind the state's business. If they tried to boost the state and not the town, where would they be? They would make a miserable failure of it.

The same thing applies in the university. If the students try to back the university without believing strongly in their college their university spirit dwindles and dies. So the more college activities there are the more university spirit there will eventually be

IN FLANDERS FIELDS.
By Lieut. Col. John McCrae.
Canadian Expeditionary Force.
In Flanders Fields the poppies grow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky

The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved; and now we lie
In Flanders Fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from falling hands, we throw
The torch; be yours to lift it high!
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders Field.

AMERICA'S ANSWER.

R. W. Lillard, in New York Evening Post.
Rest ye in peace, ye Flanders dead
The fight that ye so bravely led
We've taken up. And we will keep
True faith with you who lie asleep
With each a cross to mark his bed
And poppies blowing overhead,
Where once his own life blood ran red.
So let your rest be sweet and deep
In Flanders' Fields.

Fear not that ye have died for naught,
The torch ye threw to us we caught,
Ten million hands will hold it high
And Freedom's light shall never die!
We've learned the lesson that ye taught
In Flanders' Fields.

AFTER AMERICA ANSWERED "IN FLANDERS' FIELDS."

(Reply to "In Flanders' Fields," by Lieut. Col. John McCrae, Canadian Expeditionary Force, and "America's Answer to 'In Flanders' Fields,'" by R. W. Lillard, in New York Evening Post.)
Yes, we caught the torch. We held it high
While Freedom's light lit land and sky,
And blazed in breasts where heart-beats blend
With tramp of millions. Came the end.

Across the earth a soul-worn cry,
From anguished hearts that wars wrung dry,
Straggled Heavenward: Thou Most High!
Lead men—that endless peace descend
On Flanders' Fields!

In Flanders' Fields again we'll meet,
Nations—hand in hand to greet
The rising sun of earth's new dawn—
Pledge light to mortals groping on,
And faith to you who lie asleep
In Flanders' Fields.

(Captain, Engineers, U. S. A.)

STUDENT OPINION

Nebraska at Ames.

"When you are in Rome, do as the Romans do." The origin of that saying is not known to the writer, but it suggests another one. When you are at Ames do as Nebraskans do. Remember that you represent a great institution in a concrete way, and what you do or do not do will have more influence upon Ames' opinion of us than volumes of literature we might publish about our high standards. In other words, what we really are, speaks louder than what we say we are. Will Ames have a correct conception of the true worth of the University of Nebraska or will she congratulate herself that she is not like us. You students who are fortunate enough to be able to go to Ames—upon you we place the responsibility of Ames' opinion of us. You are the basis of her judgment. Will you make that judgment favorable?

AT THE THEATRES

Orpheum.
An unusually entertaining bill is appearing at the Orpheum. Two well known movie stars appear in a beautifully staged one-act play; Bushman and Bayne in "The Poor Rich Man." The setting is entirely artistic and is beautiful for its simplicity. A capacity house greeted these two famous picture stars.

As to the rest of the bill; well it's simple fine. Bennett Sisters stage a lively boxing bout which went well. Everyone has hummed JaDa and this week the writer is with us. His partner is easily the most captivating little lady that has graced these boards in many moons. The audience was with her and for her all along.

Neal Abel did a good single and then helped the Quixey Four win the most applause of the matinee. The boys don't really need any hip as they sing very well indeed.

Geo. McKay and Otte Ardine have a first class song and dance act. Their jokes were new and Miss Ardine's dialect was a decided relief. The Juggling Nelsons are masters of juggling.

And then; not content with giving the regular bill in its entirety, everybody assisted McKay in his imitations. The jugglers sang, danced and drew pictures. One of the actors gave a reading. And finally the entire bill with the exception of Bushman and Bayne gave a chorus number. Naturally the audience liked it. It wasn't the extra amount of show received, but the spirit of whole-hearted fun that the actors exhibited. Mr. Billings, the resident manager of the Orpheum remarked after the show 'that it was a great idea.' And the audience received the innovation with the utmost enthusiasm. The bill is a real success.
