The Bee's Sport Page.

On Sunday morning, November 27, the sporting page blackened itself with Nebraska sport fans. Just three days before this paper appeared, the Huskers finished a most successful season by overwhelmingly defeating the Colorado Aggies. Game after game, during the pigskin season, the Cornhusker aggregation battled its way to Missouri Valley supremacy, and nationwide recognition.
On Sunday morning, November 27, the entire front page of the Bee's sporting section was graced, not with Nebraska's victorious team, but with Eckersall's All Conference Eleven. The only recognition Nebraska athletics received was a short basketball story bewailing the fact that the loss of Nebraska's stars of last year very greatly handicapped the squad.

Nebraska met two of the finest football machines in the country during the season just past, Nebraska emerged a decisive winner in one of them and lost the other by a small margin. The Husker eleven is classed as one of the greatest in the country. Eastern and Western newspapers of prominence very highly praised the material, the coaching and the results achieved by our men. What has the Bee done? Perhaps tis true that a prophet is without honor in his own country, but even if that is true it hurts. What ever the reason, however, the Bee did not back up Nebraska athletics as it should have.

Is This True?

Several days ago an editorial appeared in this column on democracy at Nebraska. Shortly afterwards a letter intended as a student opinion was received in reply to this editorial. Well written and in all sincerity, it should give every loyal Cornhusker man and woman food for thought; if what it says is true immediate steps should be taken to remedy the condition; if false, the letter should be forgotten. The letter follows, do you think it's right?

Student Opinion.

The Daily Nebraskan.
"Democracy, that thing which means so much but which is hard to explain, is by no means jacking in the Husker school. Every student in Nebraska University stands on a par with every other student—there are no class distinctions of any kind"—The Daily Nebraskan.

How nice. Isn't it indeed a lovely picture which is depicted here? Fraternity men hob-nobbing with baro students, sorority members chumming with non sorority members, all for the glory of the scarlet and cream. Sorority "open houses" really open, not limited to fraternity men. Membership in the honorary (?) class societies based on worth alone, certainly not on any Greek letter connections. Positions on committees—but why go on? Surely we have here Utopia, the Perfect Democracy.

But have we? Does every student in Nebraska University stand on a par with every other student? Are there no class distinctions of any kind? True a man whose father is worth a million may come to school in corduroy trousers and a leather vest, but doesn't it make all the difference in the world whether or not he has a little jeweled pin under that leather jacket? Maybe not; but it seems to a great many students that this is exactly the case. "Hello Day," when the great condescend to greet the "also attend," only to snub the poor, disillusioned creatures the next day.

There is one argument of the aristocracy which they take to satisfy their own consciences. "The Greeks do all the work, why shouldn't they get the credit?" Far be it from me to destroy some hardworking fraternity man's excuse for accepting with blushes another position to add to his extensive collection of school activities, but who save the Greeks get a chance to do anything for the school? Now for the chorus "Everybody has a chance." Here, I think, is a shining example which could be very appropriately used in the proof of the proposition that "What is true in theory is not always true in practice."

Supprising as it may seem, there are barbarians who love Nebraska as well as any Greek loves her. But when they read that there is in this great University perfect democracy, they react in a way that cannot easily be imagined by those who have not actually felt the reaction. Is it sour grapes? Are they knockers? Some will say yes; others will think a while and then take steps to remedy an evil that, sour grapes or no sour grapes, is certainly present in the home of the Cornhuskers.

"QUID NUNC."

Weekly Reports.

Many students complain that while at the University they lose the personal touch with their instructors that meant so much to them when in high school. They say that from semester to semester, little thought is given whether the work is completed or not. Such is not the case.

At twelve o'clock every Saturday noon a weekly report is due in the executive dean's office from every class in the University. Every absence is recorded and from this report transferred to permanent cards in the dean's office.

Following the absence report is a "standing" column in which is placed the grade and present standing of every pupil absent or down in his work. In an additional column are the "remarks" which, as the form reads "may be of assistance in determining the status of students."

The permanent cards are carefully inspected and when the danger point is reached, steps are taken to remedy the condition that causes the trouble.

With 4,700 students to control, it is a far harder job than with the several hundred attending an ordinary high school, but the task is accomplished, and while there may not be a personal acquaintanceship, there is a careful watch given the standing of every man and woman attending Nebraska.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

By George Matthew Adams.
Today is what you have. It is also what you are. And again, Today is what you do, and if you haven't anything and aren't anybody, and do nothing—why, then, for you there is no Today.

For Today is music. Today is art. Today is literature. Today is joy. Today is work. Today is play. Today is life.

Yesterday is no problem—for it is past. Tomorrow is no problem—for it isn't here. Today is supremacy. Today is the world. Today is—opportunity! Crowd in upon it then. Today—take hold upon its faintest chance. Spread your stales—Today. Be game—Today. Be glad and great—Today.

Today is the day—your day.
Today is Time and Change doing its job. Are you a vital part of the play? Today you may start out all anew. Today you may put to use what you learned a day ago. The center of your entire life may revolve about—Today.

But, above all things, do not fear—Today. And let all worry slide. All things that do not count—let them go, too. Work and help and love—Today.

For this Today will never dawn again.

Balcom—Say, Schmidt, help me write a letter to my best girl.

DEPARTMENT OF ANIMAL HUSBANDRY EXPERIMENTS

The department of animal husbandry has an interesting experiment under way at the present time. This experiment consists of tests wherein three-year-old, two-year-old, yearlings and calf steers are compared. All lots are receiving corn and alfalfa which two feeds comprise rations used in fattening most cattle in Nebraska. The object of the experiment is to ascertain the relative rate and economy of gain of cattle of different ages. These cattle are purchased upon Mrs. Wm. Braddock's ranch northeast of Chadron. They were bred upon the ranch and handled under similar conditions.

Last year a pen of calves under similar conditions proved to be the most economical gainers. Six groups of cattle are upon experimental rations at the Agronomy farm east of University Place. These are all two-year steers and the object in this experiment is to ascertain the most economical rations to be used in fattening two-year-old steers for the market. At the conclusion of the feeding trials next spring a meeting will be called of stock feeders in the state. These meetings have been held annually for the past nine years and have always brought a goodly number of men who enjoy looking over livestock and securing results of experiments.

Vera Mills Will Shop For You or With You
Here's a bit of gossip. "Tell Vera Mills."
If you tell her you are too busy—studies, dances, and—you know—just busy—to do all your shopping and that you want a pair of silk hose (Onyx or any kind, size, or color you want) right away, she'll hurry down to the hosiery department, pick out a good pair for you and send it out just as fast as she can.
Don't you think she is very, very accomodating? You can call her over the phone or write a note to her.
Either way—she's just as happy to get a telephone call as she is to get a letter.
So if you have anything you want "Tell Vera Mills."
She'll shop for you or with you without charge.
