THE IDEAL COLLEGE MAN.

The requirements for the ideal college man have been set forth by the women of Drake University. According to the co-eds there, a perfectly proper man must meet fifteen conditions. The requirements are as follows:

1. He must make a good appearance, but need not be handsome.
2. He must be careful in personal appearance, but not a "dandy."
3. He must be jolly, accommodating, considerate, and a true sportsman.
4. If an athlete and meeting other requirements, so much the better, but if not athletic it need not detract.
5. He must be a good conversationalist and realize that a girl is not flattered by having nonsense talked at her all the time.
6. He must show respect and reverence to the aged.
7. He must show the same gentlemanliness with men as with women.
8. He must not sit serenely in the street car while an old man or an old woman stands and then arise suddenly and offer a seat to a pretty girl.
9. He must not drink or smoke or be guilty of the attendant evils.
10. He must not sneer at religion or joke lightly about it.
11. The young women recognize no difference in standards for men and for women and declare such distinctions as false.
12. The young women can only truly respect those men who live by it.
13. The young women recognize the young women's influence over the young men's conduct, but do not hold the young woman responsible for the young man's conduct.
14. The young women expect respect for their opinions and respect for the things which others esteem, and they admire reverence for religion.
15. The women want the same dignity and reserve in the men that the men expect and ask for in them.

DR. HUNTINGTON ATTENDS STATE HI-Y CONFERENCE

Dr. Harry Huntington spent three days in Clay Center where he attended the state HI-Y conference. Dr. Huntington is very enthused over the work of the HI-Y in Nebraska. The various activities of the organization as outlined at the conference are making the HI-Y a very effective means of bringing the younger set of boys to appreciate things that are more wholesome and tend to make them better citizens in later life.

BRIEF HISTORY OF UNIVERSITY PUBLICATIONS AFFORDS A VERY INTERESTING REVIEW OF PAST.

that the paper reached its maximum of excellence. At present Miss Cather is a lecturer of great note.

From time to time there were rival publications. A class paper, the Sophomorian, containing literary and journalistic matter, was conducted in 1869 and 1890 by the enterprise of one student. In the two succeeding years, this same student, James B. McDonald, associated with a few classmates, published successfully a monthly magazine called the Lasso, "for the promotion of college spirit." There was a design of a cowboy on the front, and for some reason all of its early numbers were in black covers. Miss Louise Pound, now professor of English in our university, was at one time associate editor of this magazine.

The Nebraskan, founded in October, 1892, was a rival of The Hesperian. This weekly paper was nicknamed "Riley's Rag" after one of its editors, "Rag Riley" (Frank T. Riley of Kansas City.) Since his day the college paper has always been called familiarly "The Rag." We were sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Riley, on May 7, 1920, at his home in Kansas

Nebraskan in 1901.

The most ambitious and the most ephemeral of student publications was The University Monitor, an attempt at serious journalism which rose and passed in 1896. On June 13, 1901, The Daily Nebraskan was organized. It was a consolidation of the two weekly papers, The Hesperian Student and The Nebraskan, and the literary monthly connected with the latter, The Scarlet and Cream. The first issue of the Daily Nebraskan was a commencement day paper, published by the Hesperian Publishing Co. The second issue appeared the following fall, on September 18, 1902. On the first Daily Nebraskan staff were Sterling McCaw, managing editor; and John A. Kees, business manager. J. W. Crabtree was president and G. L. Towne was secretary and treasurer. The editorship of the paper was at first elective by the student body, but it is now an official publication having financial backing from the university. The staff editors are selected by the faculty publication board.

As to the humorous publications, the earliest, according to tradition, was The Button Buster, issued in the early '80's by members of the Palladian society. This paper went thru several issues at irregular intervals.

A high class humorous paper, the Arrow-head, was published by the Students' Co-operative Book Co., in December, 1899. This publication came out monthly and showed unusual originality for a student production. Awgwan, the present student comic paper, was established in 1912-13, largely through the efforts of Ralph Northrup. Its drawings, and cover designs furnish an avenue of expression for campus artists and cartoonists. The paper started as a bi-monthly, but during the period was reduced to five or six issues a year. It now appears as a monthly magazine.

First Annual in 1884.

The first annual, The Sombbrero, appeared in 1884. Very few copies are now to be found. The second volume was issued in 1892, and the third in 1894. This last contained a cut of the Sombbrero board of 1884. Underneath the cut is the legend "the docile donkey, recently found anchored in a recitation room on the third floor is an honorary member of this board. He refused to compromise himself by appearing in the engraving." It is said that the donkey referred to was a quaint little animal which the professor used to ride to school.

Numbers of The Sombbrero continued to be issued until 1907, when the name was changed to The Cornhusker. The Cornhusker is an amalgamation of the junior annual and the senior class books which used to be issued by the seniors alongside the junior annuals. Classics among the senior books were that of 1905, with Alice Towne Deweese as editor and moving spirit, and that of 1906, with Leta Stetter Hollingsworth as a leading editor and contributor. The university annual is now an official or semi-official publication of the souvenir type, issued under the supervision and censorship of the publication board.

On the literary or non-journalistic side, it is to be regretted that there is now no avenue of expression for the university students. News gatherers and humorists have opportunities but not so the writers proper. The Nebraskan Literary Magazine, a quarterly, ran in 1895-96, under the encouragement of the department of rhetoric and of the English club of the university, and, beginning in February, 1898, The Kiote, a monthly publication of the English club, went thru three or four volumes. The interest in writing that led to the publication of these magazines was, for the most part, due to the stimulus of Instructor Herbert Bates, and later to that of Professor Clark Faher Ansley, of the department of rhetoric. Formerly there was much of a literary nature in the Sombbrero. This material now seems to be crowded out by restrictions of space, interest in the social organizations, or for other reasons. And, the school is now so large that it is difficult to "stalk" talent that does not come forward of itself.

University Players Deserve Credit for Their Successful Drama and Comedy Productions.

also by Mildred Gollenon, Stoddard Robinson, Arthur Bush, George Turner, George Stone, Alvin Sandstedt, Francis Gettys, and Rolla Van Kirk. The second play of the season was Booth Tarkington's well known "Clarence." The comedy is the first that was written directly for the stage. Mr. Tarkington's other plays were written in book form and then dramatized. "Clarence" had a successful season in New York running three hundred nights, and holding its own among numerous plays with extensive plots. "Clarence" has a plot full of real human interest, and the University Players deserve a great deal of credit for their delightful characterizations. The play moved with rapidity. There were no tiresome waits between acts.

The story is one that reaches the nerve hearts of all who are fortunate enough to witness it produced. A soldier, just discharged from the army, is very anxious to find something to do. He has been an expert in the army, having specialized on beetles. Quite by accident he overhears the troubles of a very rich and busy man. He receives a position in the house and in the end clears up all friction and harmony reigns.

The cast was well chosen and well directed. Walter M. Herbert took the character role of Clarence in a most entertaining fashion. Herbert Yenne was at his best in the juvenile character, Bobby Wheeler. Gladys Appleman returned to the Players in Clarence and made a most delightful governess. Katherine Matchett as the love-sick Cora was excellent. She kept her character entertaining the whole evening. The rest of the well and mention is made of Winifred Meryhew, Hart Jenks, Margaret Perry, Mary Bost and George Stone.

Attention is called to the fact that the University Players is a student organization and deserves student support. Compared with other Universities in this activity Nebraska is well in the lead and we want to boost them and make them a greater success than even now. The Players went on the road with Clarence and were enthusiastically received.

The dramatic department has been successful along another line this year. They opened a Children's theater on November 5, at the Temple. The purpose of this theater is to cultivate the desire for spoken drama among the children of Lincoln. The Children's theater is produced by the students taking dramatic work in the University. The play "Snowwhite and the Seven Dwarfs" was the first production. The Temple was crowded with tiny tots and much merriment was caused by the comical actions of the Seven Dwarfs. Helen Burkett was Snowwhite and did her part most creditably. Mr. Yenne played opposite her as the Prince. The theater is a certain success and is to be praised because it is one of the few ones in the country.

HUSKERS PLACE ON MYTHICAL ELEVEN

While Nebraska played only three conference teams, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Ames, they were all completely pulverized by the Husker eleven. In the three games with valley teams the Huskers scored 107 points while only three were tallied against them. Cornhusker fans are taking the all-valley selections announced so far with a grain of salt. It seems apparent that man for man Nebraska completely outclasses any team in the valley.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS TELL OF SUMMER WORK

The electrical engineers discussed last summer's experience at their monthly meeting Wednesday evening. Prof. Edison, who spent the summer in Omaha, making a survey of the equipment and methods of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., outlined his work there. He made a study of the various departments of the company suggesting changes and improvements.

G. E. Spethman, S. Sexton and G. L. Woodworth, seniors in the college, each gave a short talk on their work with the telephone company. These men told of many valuable ideas and
