THE DAILY PAPER HABIT.

Men and women of the commercial world are justified perhaps, when they say it takes a year or two for a University man or woman to become acclimated to the world of business, for while in college most students shut themselves away from the outside world and hibernate as far as questions and events of national importance are concerned.

The limit of most University students' daily reading is the college paper at which he glances during the add minutes just before or after a class or at his meal time. The city most students unless there is something so sensational contained therein that morbid curiosity drives him to it.

During the last few days several questions of more than national importance have been hanging fire. Treaties between world powers have been signed, certain economic forces have driven labor to take a determined stand against capital, the Irish question apparently is near settlement—and many other things which are vital to us at the present time or when we will be members of the working units of the world.

JIMMIE BEST'S BIRTHDAY.

Yesterday our own Jimmie Best celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday. Nebraska's grand old man was host at a reception in the Armory for Nebraska's "N" men.

For nearly thirty-three years Jimmie has been training Husker athletic teams and has the love, admiration and respect of every single Cornhusker that ever participated in athletics.

BOAST FOR NEBRASKA.

Every man and woman at Nebraska is more or less in touch with some individual who is a prospective student at our University. In some cases it will take just a very little scolding to put over the idea that these individuals should come to Nebraska next year, and in other cases it will be a hard job.

Nebraska is a wonderful institution. It has many splendid buildings, the corps of instructors in the many different departments cannot be beaten and Lincoln is a most lovely city in which to attend college. From an inter-fraternity standpoint we hold a most strategic position, for our athletic games have heralded our fame far and wide.

The men and women on the fence will put up many objections that may seem big to them, but which in reality, do not amount to very much. It is just up to the individual trying to put across the idea to see that any objection is overruled.

Our school is growing fast, and any help that we give it will help put it in such a position that it will be without a peer in the middle west.

Contemporary Opinion.

Uni. of Washington Daily.

THE OLD QUESTION.

Homecoming week revealed an astonishing number of graduates who are not following the work they took up in college. The forestry student is now a stock salesman, the home economics major is teaching school, the journalist is in business, and so on.

Does this prove the oft-repeated assertion that the value of a college is after all only cultural? Is the process of learning more important than the facts learned?

Judging from the alumni, there is ground for the belief that training in one particular line of work is not the important thing in a college course. If culture, a general sharpening of the wits and an increased ability in dealing with unexpected situations are the only fruits of a university career, why go in for them exclusively?

It took a long time to get vocational studies listed in our college curricula. Apparently results do not measure up to expectations. Does this mean that we shall, or should, revert to the classical type of college which confines itself to purely cultural studies and leaves the technical training entirely in the hands of the technical schools?

EXHAUST

In aspiring to higher things, don't include upper births, but seek rather those things lowly, lowers. When your downfall comes it is less brutal and humiliating.

Even though you have never seen or never heard of a Duck blind (duck blinds are very different from blind pigs) you probably have seen a calf hide on a library table. —Ajax.

To write
This stuff
Takes too
Much time. (?)
To put
One in Each day.
I'll rest
A bit—
Lay off
A while.—
You'll be
So pleased,
You say?
I'm not Surprised.
Too much
At once
Would wear
A GOOD
Thing out.
It's time
To stop.—
A new
One bring—
I know
What I'm
About
In this
At least.
'Twas good
Of you
Them day
To read
Them day
By day.
I'm stopping
Now!
I'll say
Goodbye.
I may Return
Some day.
Gosh!
Ain't I fierce?

Prayer of the Exhausted: "Send us this day our daily contributions."

Faculty Notes.

"Cultural Aspects of Fiction" was the subject of a lecture given by Prof. F. A. Stiff before members of the Women's club of York last week.

Dr. Lida B. Earhart of the Teachers college, who has been conducting a class in education at Omaha, in which eighty Omaha teachers were enrolled has accepted an invitation to give an additional course after the first of the year.

Dr. Charles Fordyce of the Teachers college gave an address recently before the state Y. M. C. A. conference in session at Emporia, Kansas, taking as his subject "The Young Man's Problem."

Dean Philo M. Buck of the Arts and Science college gave a speech before the Woman's club at Grand Island last Monday.

Personals.

Miss Mary Baker, '21, who is now traveling secretary for the student volunteer movement has been visiting in Lincoln during the past week. Miss Baker is to enter a medical school next fall and will prepare for medical missions.

Cornhusker Queries.

Q—For how long was Miss Ellen Smith a member of the faculty?

A—Miss Ellen Smith entered the faculty in the spring of 1877. In various capacities—as "instructor in Latin and Greek," principle of the "Latin School," custodian of the "Library," and "Registrar," she served the University for twenty-four years (1877-1901).

Q—What literary positions did Willa Cather, the novelist hold at the University?

A—Miss Willa Cather was literary editor of the Hesperian in 1892 and a few years later became editor-in-chief.

Q—What was the first work of the University along social service lines?

A—One of the earliest definite efforts of the school to make its contribution to the solution of community problems was the establishment of the University Settlement during the school year, 1895-1896.

Q—What was the score of the football game with Kansas in 1919?

A—The score was Nebraska 19; Kansas 7.

In Years Gone By.

Ten Years Ago Today.

The inter-society council adopted second semester pledging for 1912-13. The University of Nebraska had seven hundred and eighty-five more students than any school in the middle west.

Nine Years Ago Today.

The decorating team left for Wisconsin, primed for a hard match. Iowa planned to come to Nebraska later for revenge.

Seven Years Ago Today.

Hon. C. H. Morrill, president of the board of regents some fourteen years ago, made the museum a gift of five hundred dollars to be used in adding to their collection of geological specimens.

Six Years Ago Today.

Members of the Journalism class of Prof. M. M. Fogg, visited the Nebraska State Journal office, where they were conducted through the building and explained the different departments of a daily newspaper.

Four Years Ago Today.

The annual all-University Christmas tree program and social entertainment was held.

Two Years Ago Today.

The proposed trip of the Cornhuskers to Annapolis the next year, to play the navy, was given up, as the guarantee offered on the navy authorities was not of sufficient substance to persuade the Nebraska officials to consider entering an agreement.

When you are eating your Christmas dinner, your parents will be greatly pleased to hear you introduce some remark with the words, "As Dr. Holmes said in his sermon last Sunday morning."
