WILL GIVE "ANGEL FACE" AT ORPHEUM

Musical Comedy That Held Long Engagements in East Here Next Week.

Under the direction of the Nat Goldstein Producing Co., 'Angel Face' a three act musical comedy will be presented Monday and Tuesday nights and Tuesday matinee at the Orpheum.

Victor Herbert is the composer and Harry E. and R. B. Smith are librettists and lyricists of this musical which achieved more than average success during its long engagements in New York, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia.

It has youth, beauty, comedy, cleverness and wholesomeness as assets of the plot and cast. It has the advantage of George W. Lederer's wealth of imagination and skill in such details of producing ensemble drill, novel business and artistic harmony of colors in costuming and settings. It has vigor and vim in keeping things always on the move from curtain to curtain.

The title character is the youngest of a bevy of daughters of a society woman. Despite her seraphic nickname she is something of an "enfant terrible." She and her sisters are barred from romance and matrimony until the eldest of the family, a blue-stockinged, tortoise-spectacled damsel of uncertain age, is led to the altar. On this plot basis the librettists rear a story that, complicated by scientist who practices an elixir of youth on a grandmother from Keokuk, by the search of an amateur detective for a kidnapped baby, by a sculptor and his pal, who are the hosts of musical comedy chorus contingent, which, however is satisfying.

For some it has been playing at the Lindell Hotel party house where it has had a admirable success. It has also become in such demand at all university dances.

The members of the Ragadors are Jack Adams, drummer; Tudor Gardner, banjo; Bob Powell, piano; Dick Harshman and Joe Brown, saxophones.

Don't Be Blind To What The Uni Does--Subscribe To The Nebraskan

Once upon a time seven blind men went to "see" an elephant. One of them, bumping into his great side, "here is a creature resembling a wall." Another, feeling the trunk, likened the elephant to a serpent; another, touching a tusk, announced that the animal resembled a spear; and still another, grasping an ear, compared the elephant to a large leaf. The one who got hold of the tail likened it to a rope while he who embraced the leg thought of the tree, and he who crawled over the back, declared that the elephant resembled a hill.

Here is a paragraph in which is found the true status of only too large a number of the students of the University of Nebraska; those who are not subscribers to the Daily Nebraskan.

If a student is to grasp a true idea of the University of Nebraska, he should not only seek to be proficient in the work of the single department in which he is laboring, but he should attempt as far as possible to enlarge himself and learn of the other parts of the university. To attempt to race from one building to another in order to learn of the different activities of the school would be folly. How a person can pass up an opportunity presented by the Daily Nebraskan, of getting hold of the main activities and the work of the entire school, condensed and nicely written every morning of the week is more than a person who appreciates the story of the blind men, can tell.

Ask yourself the question "Do I keep in touch with everything of interest in the university so when I go out in the world I will at least know how to keep up with daily events?" And if you answer it correctly, you must be a daily reader of the Nebraskan.

The Nebraskan is really a department of instruction in the university. On the staff are writers who are working members of the student body and all of whom attempt to copy in the best manner possible, the works of the city daily. Information of all kinds is gathered each night. Fine reading material is found on summaries of lectures, meetings and news of friends on the campus.

Students should look up and grasp every conceivable means of enlarging their view point and also of knowing fully what the Nebraska university is doing every day.

Weather Man Gives Students False Hopes When He Sends Snow Flurries

For the third time this winter, Old Man Weather has given false hopes to University of Nebraska students. During the time when Cornhuskers were doing their utmost to prove to the professors that they knew as much or more than the latter believed they knew or should know, Boreas started his snow sifter going and sent down a white flurry of flakes which spelled joy of winter into the hearts of many of the students. But then, without even batting an eye, the old man turned on his volume of heat and sent all of the flakes into the discard.

Plans for sleigh ride parties resulting from the flurries sent down by the old man last week have now gone off into naught. Little hope

RECOGNIZE STUDENT SOLDIERS OF WAR

University Officials Receive Certificate of Student Army Training Corps.

University of Nebraska officials have received recognition for the establishment of a student army training corps at the university during the recent world war, from the secretary of war. The Nebraska corps was established in the fall of 1918 and continued until after the signing of the armistice.

The certificate of recognition which is signed by the adjutant general and assistant-secretary of war, shows that the University of Nebraska unit of the student army training corps was established and operated in a spirit of patriotism and devotion to the United States.

Student army training corps were established in most colleges and universities throughout the country as an incentive to give future soldiers a chance for education during the period of training. Many Nebraska S. A. T. C. members were sent to schools for officers, and a few of them got over to France. The majority, however, were kept at the university until demobilized late in the school year.

A student navy training corps was also maintained at the University of Nebraska.

FIVE STUDENTS WIN IN BOWLING MATCH

University Team Under Name of "Lincoln Alleys" Defeat the Bootery Quintet.

University of Nebraska bowlers bowling under the name of "Lincoln Alleys" performed a monumental feat Tuesday evening when they defeated the Bootery team two out of three games in the Capital City league. The bootery team is composed of veteran bowlers, and easily captured first place in the city league bowling race last year, and stand a good show of annexing the honors this season. This is the second time that the Bootery team has been defeated since the league started in September. The "Lincoln Alleys" won the odd game, and also defeated the veterans in total pins, scoring 2,679 to 2,653 for the Bootery.

Eckeroth and Slama tied for the high score for the series each scoring 578 pins. F. Spangler of the Bootery was third with 570.

PROPOSES TO CUT UNI ALLOWANCES

Governor Tells Legislatures Half Million Should be Deducted From Appropriations.

MEMORIAL GYMNASIUM PROBABLY TO SUFFER

Proposed New Building for University May Bear Brunt of Reductions if Made.

Reductions totaling one-half million dollars in the appropriations of the state legislature for the University of Nebraska are proposed by Governor Samuel R. McKelvie. The governor outlined a plan before the opening of the special session of the legislature, Tuesday, which involved reductions of $2,000,000 in state expenses. The governor's plan calls for one-fourth of this saving to be made at the expense of the university.

Other places where the governor proposes that savings be made are $100,000 at the expense of the state normals, $387,838 from the capitol commission, $80,500 from the state institutions under the board of control, $125,000 from the department of agriculture, $40,000 from the department of public works, $34,000 from the department of trade and commerce, $19,000 from the vocational educational board, $45,000 from the state superintendent of schools, $1,291,870 from road and bridge construction. Other items of amounts varying from $500 to $15,000 take off another $105,978.

Just how these reductions are to be made are not made clear by Governor McKelvie. But if they are made, the governor declares the general fund levy can be lowered 40 per cent. If the reductions which he proposes are made, the total for the biennium will be lowered from $25,672,000 to $23,000,000. Deducting cash funds, etc., and adding special expenditures, only $15,000,000 remains to be raised for the two years. $9,000,000 of this was raised in 1921, so 1922 must donate less than $6,000,000. A general fund levy of 1.8 will raise this, the governor declares.

Memorial Gym. Would Suffer.

The largest part of the $500,000 to be taken from the university is to be at the expense of the proposed memorial gymnasium. $350,000 has already been appropriated for the structure and there is an outstanding appropriation which the governor proposes to eliminate. Chancellor Avery has submitted a detailed program whereby $77,000 can be saved by the university next year.

The fact that more than one-fourth of all of the proposed reduction in state expenses shall come through the university, has aroused much interest among Cornhusker student and alumni. What attitude the students will take in the matter remains to be seen, but it is believed that the opinion will soon be made.

There is one thing which might turn university students against the proposed recall of the appropriation for the gymnasium. The resignation of director of athletics, Fred W. Luehring, is attributed by many to the lack of athletic equipment and buildings at Nebraska. Compared with the one gymnasium at Nebraska, Minnesota has three, and Cornhusker followers may feel that the gymnasium should not suffer now. It is likely, however, that they will take the view of the optimist and say that if they relinquish the appropriation now, later on they will be allowed a larger and more adequate appropriation.
