

HOME EC. GIRLS ENTERTAIN AGS

Announcement of Farmers Fair Made at Thursday Morning Meeting.

Some married men may still persist in doubting the fact that his wife is his better half but there is not a man in Ag. college who dares advance such a statement about the Ag. college family after the splendid program put on by the home Ec. department that entertained the Ags., who packed Ag. hall Thursday at 11. Mixing the serious with the laughs and harmonizing it all with solos and quartets, these Home Ec. ladies easily surpassed any previous convocation in an entertaining and instructional way.

Dean Burnett, in brief and appropriate remarks, commented upon the apparent interest in Ag. college convocations and promised to provide for definite convocation period next year. He introduced Miss Fedde, chairman Home Ec. Dept., who gave a brief, interesting outline of the history and purpose of the Home Ec. Dept. She pictured clearly the importance of the home in industrial and social life and summed it all by ranking the home first in importance as the cornerstone of the nation. The nucleus of the present department was started in 1899 as a branch of the chemistry department and was called the school of domestic science. In 1903 the Home Ec. building was built and the name changed to the one now used. Five important branches of the work—Foods, textiles, design, home management and institutional management—are all taught in the department. Two hundred twenty-six women have graduated from the department, the majority of whom have gone out as home makers. Other fields also open to the twenty-two senior girls are as club leaders, extension specialists, dietitians, in hospitals, designers and teachers.

Mr. Krueger responded to the request of Miss Tillis Saxton who had charge of the convocation for some information about the coming farmers fair with a short peppy talk and the tentative outline of the program.

Farmers Fair—May 6.
Parade—11:30, down O street. Wild west show 1:30.
Pageant by Omicron Nu. Educational exhibit, float, barker; most money for side show—Snoophem program.

The laughable, entertaining skits entitled "Foundation Stones in Home Building" and "Mothers, Wives and Foolish Children" were excellently given by Home Ec. ladies and some of their gentleman friends. Omicron Nu, the honorary Home Ec. sorority sang a cleverly worded song showing the value of their courses in clothing. Other music was also enjoyed by the responsive audience in the solos "Sun beam" and "That Little Mother 'O Mine," by Miss Helen Todd accompanied by Miss Mildred Kemp and the two songs "Remember the Rose" and a clever parody on "Comin' Thru the Rye," sang by the quartet, Misses Uttrits, Todd, Williams and Hecken-dorf, accompanied by Miss Kemp at the piano.

China's Position at The Conference

(By V. K. Wellington Koo.)
Chinese Ambassador to the Court of St. James and Delegate from China to the Washington Conference.)

To speak the truth and work for harmony has always been the ideal to which the Chinese people have worked through many centuries. In her philosophy China has exalted the scholar above the soldier. In her history she has developed a tradition of peace. She still believes that to quarrel, plunder and murder, among nations as among individuals, are the things disastrous to the world. It is at once the weakness of China and her strength that her spirit has been pacific where several other nations have been otherwise.

At the turn of the century China began to realize the weakness of her traditional attitude. Russia, Germany, and Japan gave her cause to fear the danger of encroachments, and that danger has not as yet altogether disappeared. Military power in China itself led to disputes between civil and military men. The great war saw the landing of Japanese forces in the neutral territory of Shantung. And then China's preparation to participate in the European war served rather to accentuate differences within the country. Representation at Versailles did not settle questions that are of great concern to China.

These questions might furnish causes for future war. The people of China are determined that the territorial integrity and political sovereignty of the Chinese republic shall be respected. With great satisfaction, therefore, they authorized the Chinese delegates to attend the Washington conference and work for a harmonious and just settlement of China's foreign relations.

To arrive at a fair decision on far eastern questions based upon China's declaration of principles and the firm assertion of her rights before the bar of international law and world opinion will remove the cause and threat of war. It will do more than remove the threat of war. It will establish across the Pacific a united, public, progressive and democratic, an illustrious advocate of peace by nature and disposition, in the light of reason and experience.

Some sacrifice must be made by nations participating in the conference, as China's has made them in the past to preserve peace; but they who help China today will themselves derive benefits. Along the path of peace the whole world will enjoy the fruits of an enervated and friendly China.

Other Worlds Than Our Own.

Ohio State University—Of the 36 girls nominated by Woman's Student Council Wednesday to take part in the coming style show, 15 are to be selected by both men and women students in an election. The clothes to be displayed will be furnished by down-town shops.

Northwestern University—In keeping with the plan announced 2 years ago for the development of Northwestern university and for the beautification of Chicago's near north side, the trustees of Northwestern have just appointed James Gamble Rogers, of New York, as the architect who shall devise and direct all campus building improvements. Mr. Rogers is the designer of the Markness Memorial Quadrangle at Yale, the women's college buildings at Tulane, New Haven post-office and the New Orleans post office buildings.

Because of the fact that University night has been a tradition for twelve years it was thought best to close the night to parties and other social events not scheduled before a certain date. This gives the event the prestige that it rightfully deserves.

The following organizations will be on the program:

"The Pesky Preacher Kids, the Aps, the Laws, Sigma Delta Chi, Theta Sigma Phi and the Engineers. In addition to the regular skits four curtain acts will be staged. One of these is a black face comedian act and rare musical treats will be given. One of the dormitories will also have a skit which promises to be very good.
