Other Worlds Than Our Own.

University of Ohio—More than 1,000 students in the infantry division of the military department have made an average of 73 per cent in rifle shooting. This record compares favorably with marks made by regular soldiers. Shooting was recently made a minor sport at the university.

University of Wisconsin—Much agitation was caused here by various charges made by state officials that the junior Prom, THE social event of the year, was not "dry."

Northwestern University—The Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern will award the graduate degree of Master of Science next year. A candidate for the Master's degree must present graduate credit amounting to twenty-six semester hours in approved courses, at least one-half of which shall be for journalism.

University of Michigan—Following custom, the Daily will print a directory supplement which will contain the names of men entering school this semester and the new adduresses of those who have changed their location.

Willamette University—Willamette university is represented this year by one of the youngest basketball teams in the history of the school, the average age being twenty and the youngest Bearcat tosser, eighteen.

University of Wisconsin—Jumping from the height of a three-story building with an initial velocity of thirty miles per hour is a sport that the Badger skiers are undertaking every day in an effort to beat Minnesota in the tournament.

University of Michigan—The University of Michigan plans to build a campus theater to cost approximately $400,000. It is the intention of the theater committee to have a building to house all campus productions and give Michigan predominance in educational dramatic work. Michigan will be the first university in the country to build a large modern theater of this kind.

University of Vermont—The radio station of the University of Vermont has established good records. They have received acknowledgements of the reception in Scotland of the signals and also at Avalon, Catalina Island, Calif.

Chit Chat.

Dearest Jane:—

Have just ten minutes in which to write to you. Ten minutes sandwiched in between listening in on an argument on the pros and cons of bobbed hair and a siesta with one who is still suffering Shun-Shock. I try to think and my mind jumps from Con's insistence that bobbed hair lowers a girl's morals, to Pro's turtle snapper that a girl's a lady in her heart and not in her coiburе and that bobbed haid can't make character any more than a thermometer can the weather.

Don't these long-faced mortals that read ruin in woman's every act give you the big pain. How I would love to tell old Con that my private opinion is that I wouldn't be surprised if somebody, a far-away someday, they erected a statute of a bobbed-haired free lance in old New York Harbor as a litle sister to the Great Goddess and when the ships sail in and out folks will lok and raise their hats, "to the girl who knew no falseness of mind or convention and who dared to be free in dress and manner as she had been taught to be free in mind and soul."

Denna just mosied in and wanted to know if I was writing a letter. I told her no, that I was chasing minutes.—which was not as clever as it was impressive for she left immediately. Me for the rendezvous,—I can hear the Con's calling me a boleshevist already.

BANGS.

In Years Gone By.

Eighteen Years Ago Today

The management of the senior prom announced that "stags" would be charged double prices, because it was unfair for the many stags to monopolize the time of the ladies.

A large crowd gathered to witness one of the best inter-class basketball games ever played. The freshmen defeated the seniors in a close game and the sophomores defeated the juniors.

Seventeen Years Ago Today.

Mr Frank Dunlap of Omaha, talked at chapel and gave several of his famous impersonations. The convocation was held in honor of Washington's birthday.

Ten Years Ago Today.

Nebraska ranked third among all states in the number of students in proportion to the population. Nebraska was surpassed only by Kansas and Utah.

Six Years Ago Today.

The Silver Serpents voted to spend $30 which remained of the money made by the Christmas tag day by sending "The Youth's Companion" to fifteen homes which otherwise have no magazines.

Five Years Ago Today.

The Iowa Aggies defeated the Nebraska basketball team 19-7. Captain Campbell was thrown against the wall of the gymnasium and his arm waas broken.

Two Years Ago Today.

General Azgapetian lectured at the First Christian church on "What the Armenians Did in the War." The lecture was given under the auspices of the near east relief commission.

IOWA GRAPPLERS HERE FOR SATURDAY MATCHES

The Nebraska matmen held a strenuous workout at the armory yesterday afternoon in preparation for the invasion of the Iowa U. grapplers Saturday. The Nsuker wrestlers came out of the Minnesota meet in fine shape, and with the exception of the 115 pounders, where all the regulars are ineligible, the Husker team is intact. The meet with the Hawkeyes is expected to be one of the hardest meets on the Husker wrestling schedule, as the Iowans are rated as among the best teams in the Western conference.

In a meet with the Purdue mat men last Friday night, the Hawkeyes took the long end of a 36 to 14 score. Iowa never fails to have a strong lineup, and captured second honors in the Western inter-collegiate championship meet last year.

HUSKER SWIMMERS TO MEET KANSAS AGGIES

The Nebraska swimming team will leave this morning for Manhattan, Kas., where the Huskers swimmers will meet the Kansas Aggie aquatic performers in a dual swimming meet Wednesday night. The following five men will represent Nebraska in this meet: Capt. Neil Phillips, George Lindley, Glenn Preston, Tugh Carson, and H. E. Graebing.

The Husker swimmers have been holding a number of strenuous workouts at the local "Y" under the direction of Director Luehring and Coach Adkins, and are in fine shape for the meet with the Kansas farmers. The Husker team has improved since their defeat at the hands of the O. A. C. a month ago, and are confident of their ability to take the measure of the Aggie swimmers.

PROF. H. W. CALDWELL TO RETURN IN SPRING

Prof. H. W. Caldwell, who has been with the university forty years, is taking this year for rest at Los Angeles, Calif. He writes that he finds the weather sold, damp, and disagreeable.

While Prof. Caldwell is resting he is at the same time working on a number of magazine articles. Some of these articles have already been published, among them one of importance titled "Slavery in the Colonial Period." He is also now writing a book which will be called "Financial Crises."

Prof. Caldwell expects to return to Lincoln in the spring. He will then continue his work as instructor of American History.

ALUMNUS PUBLISHES NEW ARTICLE ON OIL

Leon J. Pepperberg, A. B. '05, M. A., '09, has published some observations on "Leaks in the Oil Fields" in the January 21 "Oil Weekly." Mr. Pepperberg is now a geologist and petroleum engineer and has studied the leakage problem in the oil industries to such advantage that his article has been given a prominent position in the magazine.

Collapses of oil companies are due to the same causes that are prevalent in any line of work. Mr. Pepperberg believes. Poor management is chief among these. When the executives leased property at exorbitant prices during the boom of 1919, managed them foolishly so that the cost of production was greater, and drillep wells against the advice of their geologists, the enterprises were sure to fail. It is an old fallacy that the oil industry is independent of all other markets and industries and that in spite of anything a producing well will make money. The frequent failures have proved this wrong.
