A GLEE CLUB.

At last steps are being taken to organize a glee club at Nebraska and the announcement is received with much satisfaction by Cornhusker students. The need of such an organization has long been felt at this school. A glee club constitutes an activity that has been neglected by Nebraskans for too long a time and we are glad to see this condition is not to continue.

No very good reasons have ever been advanced as to why a glee club should not be formed at Nebraska. It seems that it has been the same as with many other activities—no one cares to give the necessary time and labor. Consequently the school has lost to a great degree.

But at last the glee club is to come. There used to be a Cornhusker glee club in the old days and there is to be one in the very near future. Great things are happening every day—this is one of them.

CO-ED SMOKING.

Feminine cigarette smokers at some of the leading universities in the country have been given a great deal of publicity recently, due to the action of the Nebraska state normal board. The board has refused to grant leaves of absence to instructors to attend institutions where cigarette smoking by women is permitted. The fact that co-eds smoke at certain schools is really of no interest to us; we already knew it. But the action of the board does present an interesting view of the situation.

The board evidently presumes that cigarette smoking by women is "permitted." It is the use of the term that appears rather unique. It is difficult to understand how any institution can control the actions of its students outside of class hours and away from the immediate campus. If co-ed students want to smoke in their own homes, it appears that this is their right and is in no way a reflection on the school.

We do not wish to convey the idea that we favor cigarette smoking by women. As a matter of fact, it is one of the most regrettable conditions affecting modern youth. It is present in all communities and institutions, however, to some degree. It cannot be controlled by prohibition or anything of the sort. It is but a natural outgrowth of the modern conception of the female sex. Woman has demanded equality with man in every sense and now she has it. She has gone so far as to adopt the same vices and habits. How much farther she will go remains to be seen.

Perhaps it is nothing to cause great alarm, however. Maybe the great pendulum of time is just swinging back from the past ages of chivalry and knighthood to the modern relations of the sexes. In time it must return and then such drastic legislation by the Nebraska state normal board will not be necessary.

BEING SQUARE.

Some of the old philosophers taught that a sin was not bad in itself as long as the culprit did not suffer punishment for fear of being brought to justice. We have long since rejected that doctrine, yet it seems to be the very theory that some people unconsciously practice.

In school it is so easy to say "no" when one should say "yes" and vice versa, when the lie will keep one out of a difficulty, that it behooves a person to guard his tongue lest he revert to these condemned doctrines. These impulsive replies were not meant as deliberate falsehoods, yet what else are they?

It has been said that success is "doing your job the best you can and being just to your fellow men." Now the fellow that claims or accepts credit for something that he did not do is not being just to his mate. The fellow that cribbs the one that hands in "second-hand" compositions; the one that claims to have done outside work that he has never attempted—where is his honor or sense of fairness? Is that to be called "doing your job the best you can" and is it just to the others? There is not one who does not feel down deep in his heart that it is wrong, but he deceives himself into thinking that it is all right as long as he does not get caught.

It belittles one's honor, and holds up to scorn that sense of fairness that should be one of our most prized virtues. Besides, credit gathered from illegitimate sources will never be productive of the truest and best results. The philosophers that believed in this old theory never had any thought for the future. Our future is all important to us. A wrong means will never lead to a right end. Hence we cannot adopt their means and expect to arrive at our end.

Contemporary Opinion

THAT TIRED FEELING.

A large number of students don't get enough sleep. And what they do get is at most irregular hours. Edison may be able to get along on four hours of sleep out of the twenty-four, but it is easy enough to ascertain that the students who make a practice of burning the midnight oil too frequently and for purposes other than for studies are not among the Phi Beta Kappas of the campus.

This lack of sleep is brought home forcibly to the professor who is forced to gaze at the dreamy countenance of one who is making up for his lost slumbers. A great many of his listeners if not already resting peacefully in the arms of Morpheus are maintaining a desperate struggle to keep themselves from landing there with a resultant lack of attention. The words of the lecturer simply do not make any impression on them.

But really it is quite astounding the amount one can learn about his course simply by listening to the lecturers. It is a shame so few students realize this fact until around their senior year. The truth of the matter is, however that the outside work and after-effort required to get in a course is nearly doubled by this lack of attention while in class. By actual trial it has been found that a student of average intelligence by close attention during the class periods can just about go through some courses on what he hears in the lectures.

Well, we must say that the Weather Man treats us badly. Just when we had gotten our Spring sky-piece out, he had to send us back into ear-muffs.

This Greek Tournament we hear so much about—is it a shoe-shining race? And is the prize for speed or efficiency, or perhaps for regularity?

We should like to enroll Ivan Awfulsch in a class in Constructive English—we think he has ably demonstrated his eligibility. He would also profit by an intensive course in Orthography. Another subject for his curriculum might deal with "Humor—What It Is and What It Is Not." Did you ever hear an ear ring?

Did you ever go over to the Lib. in the hope of finding an unattached co-ed; walk in and find your own best girl just leaving with the prize boob of the school?

And did you ever look for someone—unsuccessfully—for several days, and then happen to see her in the Lib. unmercifully kidding a frat. brother of yours?

And—worst of all—did you ever walk into the Lib. and find your last girl telling your new girl all about you and your misdeeds?

If any or all of these experiences have been yours, then you will say that "There's no place like the Lib." French or Latin, Italian or Greek Each one has its use for us

If a tire goes flat, or you stub your toe You can always find ways to cuss.

If you can't get a number, or you car won't work With a foreign language you're there In French or Latin, Italian or Greek You'll always find ways to swear.

The Hornusser has flagged James Montgomery, so we expect to have black and white girls—mostly white—not Gibson girls.

For killing time we would suggest A place that you all know Go over by the Library For the clock there doesn't go. So if you talk too long a time In having your bit of fun You won't be late because you see The clock there doesn't run.

STUDENT EXURESSES HIS DIS-LIKE FOR AN ACCOUNTING

"If I had been successful in solving this problem I'll go to Boston and lay for Ponzi. Ponzi won't even be able to retain his shirt."

"Have you any information as to the supply of padded cells at the state hospital? These transactions surely took place prior to the eighteenth amendment. No?"

"Some people still believe that the United States has a democratic form of government. Others are optimistic about most everything. Does Mr. Cole think he can get an answer to this problem short of 20,000 words?"

Such is the way that a student in Economics 6 expressed his opinion of a couple of problems which Dana F. Cole "doped" out for the students to work. The student worked the problems to the best of his knowledge and inserted at the bottom of the paper the above quotations.

But the student did not get any particularly low grades on the problems. He worked them out to a reasonable solution and handed them in for what they were worth which was well up with the average of the class.

Comments like these are what give the readers grey hair. Can you blame them?
