THOUGHTS ARE THINGS.

A great truth was told by "The Rosary," a photoplay which appeared will meet at the Grand hotel at 4:30 at a local theater during the past this afternoon. Following the initia week. It was the only outstanding thought conveyed by the entire drama. The idea we refer to was-"thoughts and things."

This was but another illustration of the great, sweeping power which thought wields in everyday life. Thought guides the destinies of men, of nations, of worlds. It exerts more influences over the activities of mankind than any other known force.

The sad part of the story is that thought may be of two kinds: Good and bad. This illustrates the nature of its power. It may mean life and success; it may mean death and fail ure. Clean, straight thinking is the solution to all problems, past, present and future.

To the student, especially should this be a lesson. Thought, in its highest form, is the best equipment the student can possess. It will solve his difficulties and make him master of his mind. Malignant thought leads him but to oblivion.

There can be no two ways. Good and bad have no intermediate degree. Thoughtts are noble or sinful. We leave these three texts-pender them. Thoughts and things. As a man thinketh, so he is, The wages of sin is death.

THE TOURNAMENT.

The greatest event in the lives of some two thousand Nebraska higaschool youths takes place this week. It is the annual high school basketball tournament. It is also one of the biggest events of the year at the Wilcox sometime within the next University of Nebraska, under whose week. auspices the classic is staged.

This vast array of preparatory students will be the guests of the university this week. They are in Lincoln not only to participate in and witness the tournament but also to hall. inspect the state university with a view to enrolling when they finish ory. their high school courses. They are all Nebraska residents and of course ver Lynx house. are interested in their state univer-

These school boys will not judge the university by the buildings, the equipment, the faculty, or by the suc. cess of the basketban tournament. They will base their opinion solely upon the attitude and actions of the 301. university students. And after all this is perhaps the best way to judge an institution.

Remember, then, Cornbuskers, that your school will be judged by you. Your standards will be her standards. Remember that you are rushing for Nebraska, and that if she gets the men it is you who must pin on the colors. Show the high school students of Nebraska that the University of Nebraska is the best place in the world for them to continue their educational careers.

Contemporary Opinion

NO ROOM FOR THE PESSIMIST. All the world hates a pessimist. Of course the wretched creatures like himself, and accordingly justifies his of C. hall, own opinions as being right, and condemns those of the world in general as being wrong. A pessimist so irritates the feelings of the average individual who likes to look on the bright side of things that he loathes to associate with coln. him. He should be. The very air he breathes and exhales is contaminated with discontent. The snarling, contemptuousness within draws the coratone for during the rest of the day.

For the college student the world is serious enough in this period of reconstruction; prices are high, jobs are scarce, and money often unavailable; without the disagreeableness of any dyspeptic cynics. Only a serious attitude towards the problems facing us will better conditions, but a smile to the man on the left, and a friendly slap on the back for the one on the right will help to make this a joyful old world after all.-Whitman College Pioneer.

The Exhaust.

Did'ja ever stand In front of U hall And take notice of The different types To be seen there As they go to and From classes? First there will Come the studious Ones-their heads Will be down and they Are carrying heavy Bulging brief cases As they rush Frantically along to their Next cram section Next will appear Those who do not Give a hang for Anything or anybody And who would be Startled out of Their gentle saunder By nothing less than An earthquake After these comes The set of the Age known as The typical college They stand around Talking and block The sidewalk to all Others, they discuss Happenings of yesteryear With a loud voice and Great display of knowledge, They swap all the latest Gossip, and they idle Away as much time as Possible.
