BUCK MAY GO TO BARODA COLLEGE

Possible Exchange Between English Department and University of Baroda in India.

Possible exchange of service for one year between Professor Joshi of Baroda college, India, and Dean Philo M. Buck of the University of Nebraska, has been suggested by the Carnegie foundation. Negotiations are now under way to accomplish the exchange. Professor Joshi Monday gave out a statement to the Associated press in which he said he was considering exchanging services with a representative of the English department of the University of Nebraska.

If everything is completed as planned, Dean Buck will go to India shortly after the completion of the fall registration and will return early the next spring. He will be gone about four or five months, during which time one of the senior professors in the arts and science college, of which he is head, will handle the work of his college.

Chancellor Samuel Avery of the university gave out the following statement Wednesday afternoon:

"An Associated press dispatch from Chicago Monday morning states that Professor Joshi of Baroda college, India, has announced that he is considering a year's exchange of service with a representative of the English department of the University of Nebraska. This dispatch has aroused considerable interest in local university circles and while it is not the intention here to give out anything for publication during the tentative negotiations, inasmuch as Professor Joshi has spoken it seems advisable to take the public fully into our confidence.

India has long been a country of great interest to the western world. Columbus discovered America while seeking a passage to the Indies. The name of the West Indies Islands as everyone knows came from the mistake of the early voyagers who first made America known to the civilized world. The subject of India is especially interesting now owing to the nationalistic movement. England is facing on a very large scale the same problem that we have with the Philippine islands on a small scale. The problems of government, religion, and commerce as well as the general intellectual and social development of peoples whose complexion is more highly pigmented than ours is of tremendous interest.

The suggestion that there should be an exchange of the services of Professor Joshi with Dean Buck of this institution came through the Carnegie foundation. The latter spent his boyhood in India, receiving a considerable part of his early education there, and is one of the very few, perhaps the only, scholar in an American university of standing who speaks freely Hindustani, the most diffused medium of communication in that polygot empire. He is further a recognized literary man whose writings on conditions in India would be gladly received by the press and hence whatever he may publish in regard to his observations has a wide circle of readers. Furthermore, his parents are missionaries in India and he would have private as well as official opportunities of getting in touch with Indian conditions and sentiment.

In view of all these considerations the administration has looked with favor on the proposed exchange of professors, the overhead of which is to be carried by the Carnegie foundation without expense to the institutions concerned. The matter has not been definitely settled as there three parties to the proposition, the authorities of Baroda college, the Carnegie foundation and the University of Nebraska. Inasmuch as the proposal came from the Carnegie foundation it is understood that arrangements are practically complete so far as this organization is concerned.

A formal invitation has not yet come from the college in India but it is understood that the authorities there are in a receptive mood. The matter will be presented to the regents of the university for their approval in the near future. In case

The Value of R. O. T. C.—Cadet Colonel R. C. Talbot.

RULES ANNOUNCED FOR TOURNAMENT

Teams Must Report on Schedule Time at all Games—Protests Filed by Thursday Noon.

Rules for the twelfth annual basketball tournament which gets under way at 8 o'clock this morning in five Lincoln basketball courts have been laid down by the board in charge of the contests.

The rules follow:

Special fare—Be sure and file your certificate with W. G. Brooks of the athletic office, for railroad fare purchased so they may be properly endorsed.

Drawings and classifications—Drawings and classifications were made by the committee, consisting of the state board of control and members of the university athletic department. They were made on the basis of the record of the teams to February 21, the size of the city, number of boys in high school, number of veterans on the team and previous tournament experience.

Schedule of games and time—The scheduled matches and the time of play are designated on the printed schedule. Be sure your team is on time. No change will be made in this schedule.

All dissatisfaction should be reported to the chairman of the committee on adjustment.

All managers are required to report to clerks of tournament fifteen minutes ahead of scheduled time of their game and give their lineups.

Protests—All protests must be filed with manager of tournament prior to 12 o'clock noon Thursday, in order to be considered.

Penalties—If any player is expelled from any game because of unnecessary fouls.

FINLEY WILL BE SENIOR ORATOR

Associate Editor of the New York Times to be Commencement Speaker This Year.

EXERCISES TO BE HELD ON JUNE 5

Speaker Reserves the Right to Send Substitute if it is Necessary.

Dr. John H. Finley, associate editor of the New York Times, will be the commencement day orator for the 1922 graduating class of the University of Nebraska. The exercises will be held on June 5.

Dr. Finley is a graduate of Knox college, class of '87. After ten years at John Hopkins college, Finley went to Knox college as president. He remained there three years going to Princeton as professor of politics. He was also president of the college of the City of New York, commissioner of education of the State of New York and president of the New York State University. He was the Harvard exchange lecturer at the Sorbonne in Paris in '10 and '11.

One condition has been raised to the securing of Finley as orator. If he is called in some other capacity he reserves the right to send a substitute speaker, a condition which the university has accepted.

Professor Paul W. Ivey left today for Lawrence, Kansas, where he will give a series of five lectures on Salesmanship at the Kansas Merchant's Institute conducted by the University of Kansas. Professor Ivey will also speak before the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce at their weekly noon day luncheon.

Lincoln Has Copped Five of Eleven Trophies in Basketball Tournament

Lincoln high school, which has a past record which rates it as one of the strongest basketball teams entered in the 1922 tournament, is the winner of five of the eleven championships since the inauguration of the basket classic in 1911. The last time the Red and Black quintet carried off the honors was in 1920 when they trimmed Omaha Commerce high in the finals of the tournament. In a post-season game that year, Lincoln won the Nebraska-Colorado championship by trimming the Colorado's Spring cage quintet in two successive contests at the Colorado city.

The history of the tournament from 1911 to 1922 shows a steady growth in the number of teams participating. From twenty-one teams entered in the first tourney the figures have jumped to nearly 230 teams for the 1922 classic. From a tournament of one class competition, the classic has spread to a competition comprising fifteen classes of teams.

The history of the tournament follows:

In 1911, twenty-one teams were entered in the tournament, Beatrice carrying off the laurels.

Omaha Central high school won the second annual tourney by defeating the South Omaha team in the final contest. University Place won the consolation championship from Beatrice.

Two play floors were used in the 1913 tournament, the university armory and the chapel. Geneva won the championship by taking the measure of the Beatrice five in the final contest.

In 1914, Lincoln high school won its first championship. Lincoln defeated Omaha Central in the final contest. Crete took the consolation prize from Sutton.

In 1915, three classifications of the teams was made. Previously teams had been in only one class and some times played two or three games a day, Lincoln again defeated Omaha Central in the finals. Hebron high school carried off the honors in class B and Nebraska City took the class C cup.

In 1916, Omaha and Lincoln teams lost out early. Eighty-five teams

Musical Frat. to Present Felix Borowski and Edward Collins at Temple Monday.

Mu Phi Epsilon, musical fraternity will present Felix Borowski and Edward Collins in a lecture-recital at the Temple Theater, Monday, March 14. The subject of the evening will be "The Music of Tomorrow".

Mr. Collins is a pianist and accompanist of national reputation. Much of his work at the present time is in Chicago. Mr. Borowski is president of the Chicago Music Co., and perhaps the most famous authority on symphony in the world. He has written many symphonies for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and is the technical musical advisor of that famous orchestra. His work on musical analysis and personalities in the musical field are perhaps the best known of any living musician.

HIGH BASKETEERS ALL SET FOR WORLD'S LARGEST CAGE TOURNAMENT

One Hundred and Six Games in Seven Gymnasiums Will be Played in the First Round of the Basketball Tournament Which is All Set to Start at 8 Today.

SQUAD OF TWO HUNDRED ASSISTANTS ARE NEEDED TO HANDLE AFFAIRS OF THE VISITING TEAMS

University Students Meet all Incoming Trains and Conduct the Visitors to Their Rooms, Show Them About the City and Answer Questions Regarding School.

Fifty basket flippers representing ten Nebraska high schools will jump into action for the world's largest indoor classic when five referees' whistles blow at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. More than one thousand other basketball players will get into action in the first round of the tourney before the drawing of the curtain for the first day at about 10:30 in the evening.

One hundred and six games are on the card for the first round play. Fourteen teams which drew "byes" in the drawings will not get into action until Friday when ninety games will be played off and everything made ready for the final windup in the fifteen championship battles to be staged in the coliseum, university armory, city auditorium and Y. M. C. A., Saturday.

From early morning Wednesday until late at night, every train from out in the state brought its quota of teams for the world's largest basketball classic. From the north and the south and the east and the west, the followers of the cage sport flocked into Lincoln. Throughout the day, sponsors of the teams were busy visiting the student activities office and the athletic department settling some of the technical details of the tournament. Certificates of depot agents must be filed if teams are to be granted the half fare allotted to tournament contestants.

Players Visit University.

Soon after the first few morning trains had deposited the high school basket flippers in Lincoln, city streets and the university of Nebraska, campus were bedecked with sparkling scenes of athletes wearing the letter of their schools. Throughout the day, the followers of the cage sport went sight seeing in the city and at the

ORCHARD TO TELL PACKER'S PROBLEMS

Armour & Company Official Addresses Industrial Research Club Tonight.

Students and faculty members who are interested in getting some first hand inside information on the recent packing house strike in Omaha will have an unusual opportunity to do so this evening when C. R. Orchard, employment manager for the Armour & Company plant in South Omaha, addresses the Industrial Research club at the Grand hotel.

Mr. Orchard will arrive in Lincoln Thursday noon in company with J. C. Stephens, industrial secretary of the Omaha Y. M. C. A., who will attend the meeting at the Grand hotel and introduce the speaker.

Armour & Co., was the first of the large packing companies to introduce the employe representation plan in all their plants and Mr. Orchard has had general supervision of the work in the Omaha plant from the first. This plan is a development of the last few years but is being widely approved and adopted by the large industries of America. Through it, a large measure of regulation of company policies affecting plant conditions is placed in the hands of representatives elected by the workers. The theory underlying this system is that by giving the working force a voice in the determining of conditions which affect their welfare they will feel a greater confidence in the company, become more interested in their work, and thus become better and happier workers.

Mr. Orchard will talk about the plan in operation at Armour & Co. He will answer any questions during the evening and the recent strike.

largest educational institution in the state, which has made their participation in the cage classic possible.

Fraternity houses and private homes are being used to house the visiting aggregations. Twenty teams were placed in charge of the Greek letter men while the other teams were for the most part lodged in private homes.

Delegates from the university Y. M. C. A., were busy all day Wednesday, meeting incoming trains and showing the basketball athletes about the city, answering questions and conducting them to the place where they are to make their homes until the completion of the tournament.

Huge Squad Needed.

A squad of nearly two hundred assistants, most of whom have been drawn from the ranks of the University of Nebraska student body, is necessary to handle the affairs of the students. More than twenty-five referees alone will be needed for the first round while an equal number of scorers, clerks and time-keepers, together with police squads, door keepers, ticket men, floor managers and holders of numerous other jobs will assist in making the tourney run off smoothly.

Games of the first round will be played on the following floors.

All class A and B games will be played on the coliseum floor as will also four contests from class C. Three class C contests together with all class D and E and three contests of class F will be staged in the university armory. Four class F contests and all of class G and H games will be held at the city auditorium. Class I and J and four class K games will be staged at the city Y. M. C. A. The university chapel will be the scene of three class K, and all of the class L and M games. The Lincoln high school boys' gymnasium will witness class N games and the Lincoln high school girls' gymnasium will be the scene of class O games of the first round.
