

Ancient "N" Book Pictures Uni of A Long Time Ago

Can you imagine our University consisting of "U" Hall, Nebraska Hall, Library, and the Armory, with the heating plant? One of the first "N" books published in the University of Nebraska was recently brought to light in the Y. M. C. A. storeroom. Old Father Time has certainly worked a change in the University since those days of the four buildings. Then, University Hall had under its protecting roof, even more things than it covers today. There were Chancellors and Registrar's offices, women's cloak Civil Engineering, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. rooms, College of Law, Departments of Language, Mathematics and Chapel. Library Building contained the Philosophy and Psychology laboratories, State Historical Society, American and European History, Political Economy, English Literature, and Art Hall. Nebraska Hall was the official home of Botany, Zoology, Geology, Physics and Museum. Grant Memorial Hall, evidently not then called Armory, was occupied by the Departments of Military Science and Physical training.

Some of the organizations besides the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. were the Oratorical Association, Debating Clubs, Athletic Clubs and Tennis Clubs, Palladian, Union and Delian literary societies occupied Main building or University Hall. There were five sororities, and nine fraternities on the campus at the time. The University Faculty and students had rented a cottage at 8th and X sts and used it as a settlement house. Mr. and Mrs. Poquet ran it and superintended the work. Magazines and papers could be read here and evening classes were taught by students. Entertainments were given on special evenings.

Mention is made of the college publications; the Hesperian Nebraskan, Sombbrero, and Nebraska Literary Magazine published by the English Club.

The Department of Bible study was well established and offered many interesting courses.

The following ad for "The Rag" edited by F. T. Riley was noted. If you want a college paper that Never fails to print all the News. Everybody is pleased to read. Brings enjoyment with every issue. Runs advertisements from reliable merchants. Acts fair and is conducted without prejudice. Sets more than three times as much type as other college papers. Kicks—when there is any good reason. Asks every one in college to contribute. Nobody should be without it.

NEBRASKA BLUE PRINT REPRESENTED AT ASS'N.

A convention of the Engineering College Magazine association met at Ann Arbor on February 24 and 25. The Nebraska blue print was represented by Hubert Upton, associate editor.

The following college papers were represented: Rose Technic, Sibley Journal, Virginia Journal, Wisconsin Engineer, Illinois Technograph, Technical Engineering News, Cornell Civil Engineer, Iowa Engineer, Michigan Technic, Arkansas Engineer, Nebraska Blue Print, Minnesota Techno-Loc, and the Kansas Engineer.

The object of the convention was to promote better journalism along the lines of national advertising and make up, and to bring the technical publications of engineering schools into closer co-operation.

A banquet was given on Friday night at which Le White, of the Detroit News staff and Prof. John R. Brumm, of the journalism department, spoke.

UNIVERSITY Y. M. C. A. MEETING CAGE TEAMS

The university Y. M. C. A. is a very busy host for the visiting cage teams. These high school warriors are met at the trains by a delegation of "Y" men, they are taken to their lodging places, which have been previously arranged for by the city chamber of commerce, and given whatever information they need.

A free check stand is conducted in the lobby of the Temple for the convenience of the visitors, and two men are on duty at all hours of the day so that quick service is assured. The fraternities are doing their part in helping to entertain the tournament teams, as almost every fraternity is housing one of the visiting teams.

GRUMMANN DELIVERS ADDRESS AT BLAIR

Prof. Paul H. Grumann of the Fine Arts college spoke before the students and faculty members of the Dana college at Blair, Nebr., Friday, March 3. He spoke on the influence of Hendrick Ibsen, the Norwegian author, on the modern drama. This lecture, which is but one of a number of similar ones which Professor Grumann has prepared, was very well received by the Blair institution.

The Chadron basketball team is being entertained at the Kappa Sigma house during the tournament.

paign, both preceding and during the meetings. We feel we can express this satisfaction the more freely and without fear of its being understood as patronage, since it is now generally recognized that this was one of the most thoroughly student enterprises ever promoted at the university, and that its success was due almost entirely to careful student organization. We believe that you and your staff, both in the news department, and in the editorial, had much to do with this fine outcome. You have set a high standard which will be a source of pride in the student body and a worthy precedent for your successors to emulate.

"We place this informal resolution at your disposal. You are at liberty to make it public if you so decide."
