ENDORSE PLEDGING SECOND SEMESTER

Innocents Go on Record For New Plan For Fraternity "Spiking"

EXPECT TO RAISE THE STANDARD OF FRAT MEN

Same Plan Adopted Will Be Success at Dartmouth and Other Schools

The immediate adoption of a plan of second-semester pledging of men by University social fraternities was favored strongly last evening at a meeting of the Innocents society, honorary senior men's organization. A resolution in regard to this plan was adopted unanimously by the society. The resolution follows:

RESOLVED: That the Innocents society, as an organization, go on record as favoring second-semester pledging of men by social fraternities (1) In order to raise the general scholarship of fraternity men; (2) In order that all University men of the Freshman class will take a more active part in student affairs and that all may have equal chance for recognition by such social fraternities; and

(3) As a means whereby University men of the right calibre will be induced to remain in school until their graduation.

The society in favoring this plan believes that it will undoubtedly raise the standard of fraternity men and will give men of admitted ability the chance to receive recognition by fraternities, while otherwise they might go unnoticed after the scramble during "rush week" at the beginning of the year. The second-semester pledging plan has been tried at many other schools and has been a marked success, according to reports that have been received at Nebraska. Dartmouth has adopted such a system and students who have attended that college say that it is a plan that has improved with each year after its inception.

GRAVE SITUATION IN INDIA IS IMPORTANT

Buck, "it might be well if the same method were used at Lincoln." Five thousand years ago a flourishing race with a high type of civilization lived in India. These were driven out by an Arian tribe which introduced a marvelous literature and art and a religion and language closely akin to that of early Europeans. The Mohammedan invasion occurred in 1200.

They were a race of Moguls and established a large and prosperous empire. The English obtained footholds in the seventeenth century and had practically overrun the peninsula by the middle of the nineteenth century.

Because of these various invasions there are eighteen different languages, many hostile races, and several different religions in modern India. As only five per cent of the men and two per cent of the women in that land inhabited by 320,000,000 people can read, it is not only a question whether England is willing to free India, but also of whether England would be wise to do so.

Dean Buck demonstrated the difference between the Mohammedan and Hindustan architecture by the slides showing different temples over the country. The Hindustan is usually featured by a conglomeration of grotesque carvings all over the building. Although this is rather barbaric, yet the general outline and form of these erections is by no means displeasing.

The Mohammedan is distinguished by its graceful minarets and domes. Also they were often inlaid with the richest jewels, not mere colored glass, but the real articles which made some of their mosques and tombs blaze in the sunlight. There is also one small temple in the center of a lake which is covered with leaf gold and looks like the sunshine itself.

There are literally millions of these churches over all India," stated Dean Buck.

A few slides were flashed showing some of the splendid scenery in the Himalaya Mountains. This is a range of the tallest mountains in the world which stretches across the north of India in one continuous succession of peaks and makes that country a true continent. It was through the passes of those mountains that all the invaders of India, unless the British may be called invaders, have come.

Dean Buck would have spoken something of the costumes of the Hindustan people and of the settlement of the present crisis, but time was too short.

CORNHUSKERS TO RANK WITH BEST

Nebraska Annual Will Be Rival of Best College Publications in Country

It costs $60,000 each year to publish the Lucky Bag, the year-book at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. It is conceded by many that this is one of the best annuals in the country. The circulation of the Lucky Bag is 7,000 and although it costs $9 to produce each book, they sell for $7.

The 1922 Cornhusker will vie in more ways than one with the Lucky Bag. Although it will cost $6.50 to produce each Everybody's Annual this year, the staff is enabled to offer them to students at $4.50 a book. This is fifty cents cheaper than the saving on the Lucky Bag over the production cost.

Because it was thought that perhaps many students who did not subscribe for the Cornhusker in September probably have more money now because the financial situation is somewhat relieved, the Cornhusker management is making it possible for additional books to be ordered now. The opportunity will last only a limited time, as was announced in the Daily Nebraskan for Tuesday.

Books may be ordered now at the Student Activities office at the southwest entrance to Administration Hall.

The art work, the "scenics," the snap shots of students, the Vanity Fair section, the class pictures, the organization and student life sections—all will be representative of a true Greater Nebraska this year.
