PHARMACY DAY

"Every day has his day," someone has very wisely quoth; and although some may think the Pharmacy College not a very large one, they are enjoying just as big a day as any other college. Today is Pharmacy day; it belongs to the College of Pharmacy alone. They are celebrating the entire week and the rest of the University realizes that the Pharmacy students have just as much pep and spirit as any other college.

Last week the Engineers celebrated. It was their week. Now it is the "medicine mixers." This is the way the college spirit is built and developed. College spirit strengthens University spirit.

Therefore, the best of success to the College of Pharmacy in her week of celebration!

BACK TO NATURE

"If thou art tired and hard beset By troubles that thou wouldst forget, Go to the woods and hills, no tear Dims the sweet look that nature wears."

This prescription is said to be a sure cure and there are many afflicted ones in the University who ought to try it. Verily, most everyone will admit that he is hard beset, very hard beset at the present time by the accumulation of work that marks the closing weeks of school.

The cure for this affliction or that which will at least grant succor for a time reads: "Go to the woods and hills." Now it is not possible for everyone to go to the woods and hills so we amend it slightly and suggest that all weary ones go to Ag campus if they would commune with nature.

On May 6th there will be more than nature to attract one to Ag campus. That day is the annual gala day of the Ags and from the planning and plotting that is going on out there it certainly promises to cure the most violent case of ennui. If the pent-up enthusiasm explodes with the force that it gives every indication of doing, it is safe to guarantee that there is a real celebration in store.

Therefore weary ones despair not, but take the suggested dose and you will find yourself relaxed and unburdened of a load of cares.

Contemporary Opinion

BREAD AN' JELL

The average student would look upon you as slightly deranged if you would say, "Let's go down the street and get some bread an' jell." But what man, upon arriving home, does not make a raid on the kitchen or the pantry, if he is fortunate enough to live in a house which contains this old-fashioned adjunct to a kitchen, and spread a slice of mother's bread with jell made by the same hands, and thoroughly enjoy it?

The dignity and pretensions of college drop away when one gets home and he unconsciously falls into the way of a small boy again. When hungry, instead of eating some conglomerate sundae or cinnamon toast and tea, he spreads for himself and eats a slice of bread an' jell.

Bread and jell. What memories the mention of that homely delicacy brings! Coming in breathless after a game of hide-and-seek and watching mother spread a huge slice of bread with grape jell. A hot afternoon beneath the shade of trees in the front yard lying on one's back watching the white clouds overhead and slowly devouring an enormous piece of bread and crabapple jell. And many others—all standing out clearly as if etched indelibly on your memory.

It is these homely little incidents in life that make the average American home the bulwark of the nation. Everyone who has gone out from such a home looks back upon his experiences there with joy and a touch of regret that he cannot live over again these pleasant days. Vacations give us this opportunity in a small way and we should make the most of them to live over our "bread an' jell" incidents in life.—Ohio State Lantern.

PHARMACY WEEK STARTS WITH BIG CONVOCATION

Pharmacy Week began yesterday morning with a convocation at 10 o'clock in the auditorium of Pharmacy hall. Mr. H. H. Antles, secretary of the State Department of Public Welfare, first spoke to the students on "Playing the Game." He said that the plan of college education was not accomplished unless the students were the leaders of their community afterwards. Chancellor Avery then spoke to the assembly on the aim of the various technical educations. Both the speakers were very well received and certainly appreciated by the students of the College of Pharmacy.

SPORTS

Nebraska clashes with Kansas next Saturday in a dual track meet at Lawrence. The Husker tracksters team. Ed Smith is captain of the team and one of the best sprinters who has ever run for the Scarlet and Cream. Ted Smith is a stellar quarter miler, who holds down a berth in the miley relay team. Dixie Smith is and Coach Schulte would particularly enjoy defeating the Kansans because the Jayhawks have confessed in the paper they own the Valle. The famous Smith family is well represented on the Nebraska track a promising high jumper and is expected to star next year. Incidentally, Ed Smith is the smallest of the trio. Kansas boasts of a second Charlie Paddock in William Fisher, eighteen-year-old freshman, who runs the 220 yd. dash in 21 4/5 seconds, only one second slower than the world's record set by Paddock.

Jole Ray, who ran against Watson of K. A. at the Drake Relays last week, is the holder of a mere seven world's records. Between meets Ray drives a taxi in Chicago.

The Husker baseball team has just about decided to turn their efforts to water baseball. Not a single out-of-town game has been played on time, due to the untiring efforts of J. Pluvius. The games with Oklahoma and Missouri Valley College were delayed, the Missouri U. games were canceled, and one Kansas Aggie game canceled and the other delayed.

Brutus Hamilton, captain of the Missouri track team and an Olympic star, is not an ordinary athlete by a long shot. Hamilton held both the pentathlon and decathlon championships of America in 1920. He entered seven events at the Drake meet, qualified in five, and won places in four of them.

The inter-company track meet, the fourth intra-mural cinder path affair of the season, will be held on Saturday, May 6. Intramural sports are gaining in popularity at Nebraska. The open wrestling meet, the third intramural mat meet of the year, was finished last week. The winning grapplers were awarded medals.

The Nebraska Medical College at Omaha is not behind the rest of the University in athletics. The Medics conducted an interfraternity basketball tournament, are now having an interfraternity baseball league, and have their share of men on the varsity teams, including Capt. Austin Smith of the basketball team, and Deering, Fischer, Slemmons, Lear and Allen of the varsity track team.

All exponents of the national sport of Scotland are invited to enter the competition for the golf team which will represent Nebraska at the Valley meet at Drake this month. Enroll at the athletic office. Entry fee $1.
