THE A. & S. DINNER

Tonight the students of the College of Arts and Science gather at the Chamber of Commerce for the biggest event of the year in the activities of the college. Every college has had its particular celebration: the Engineers, the Pharmacists, etc., have all had their respective gatherings.

Great curiosity has been aroused over the campus by the reference to the "initiation" that is to be held to night. Many students are wondering just what this "initiation" is to be. We have the inside information but we are not going to let the cat out of the bag here. All Arts and Science students should be at the dinner to night and they will see what is meant by the "initiation." We assure you it will be worth your while.

THE NEW CLUB

One of the greatest events that has happened on the Cornhusker campus this year is the organization of the Ambassador Club. Its chief purpose is to put the University of Nebraska on the map in every town in the state. One member will be selected from every town represented in the University, whose duty it will be to represent the Scarlet and Cream in that particular locality.

It is the home towns on which the University has to depend. More people would come down to the University if they knew more about it and, in many cases, if they knew the truth about it. Many have confused or misrepresented ideas concerning the University and various University activities. It will be up to the members of the Ambassador Club to correct all these mistaken impressions and set the people of the state of Nebraska right regarding their University.

This club can do wonderful things. The Daily Nebraskan is anxious to co-operate with it in any way possible.

STUDENT MANAGERS

Many colleges and universities use the student manager system in the supervision of athletics. The "N" Club has recently taken steps to have the system installed at Nebraska and are now formulating plans for its adoption.

We have never seen the system in actual working but from all reports we believe it is a good thing. There is no reason why students cannot perform a great many of the duties connected with managing athletics. It has been proven at other schools that they can and surely Nebraska students are fully as capable in this direction as students of other institutions.

We will be mighty glad to see the student manager system adopted by the University of Nebraska and wish the "N" Club success in the development of its plans.

Contemporary Opinion

BRUTUS ON BROADWAY

Are you worn out by overwork and fatigue, exhausted by the thousands of blows of your heels or overwhelmed by business worries? If you are, do not bother with O'Sullivan's and patent medicines; buy a copy of Shakespeare and rid yourself of all your trouble. Shakespeare is advised as a sedative for the hurrying crowds of New York, and perhaps having tried all other methods of avoiding fatigue, some few may adopt this suggestion like the man who increased his Ford's efficiency 9643 per cent by the purchase of accessories, bought a gallon of gasoline and started for California. He had only gone the usual twenty miles, however, when the engine stopped. Some, made cynical by similar experiences with scientific restoratives, may hesitate to pursue the rest cure further and so leave Shakespeare to rot in the stores.

Yet there is some merit in the idea. Surely Falstaff or Malvolio should be able to wipe away the cares of business and give rest to the hurried faces on Wall Street. Strangely enough, however, the Honorable Ex-Senator who made the suggestion looks on his discovery as something new and unusual. Perhaps it is to him; perhaps the students of Richmond College did not doze over their Shakespeare in his days. And even now the thought of Brutus on Broadway is something quite startling. cYt Sassius in Cambridge is already known—and the soporific influence of Polonius on a warm spring evening fully appreciated. In fact, any time during April and May the Board might with justice quote himself, with slight change of wording: "How many thousands of my poorest readers are at this hour asleep!"—Harvard Crimson.

O. J. FEE ADDRESSES ORIENTATION CLASS

Lincoln Business Man Speaks to Freshman Engineers Monday

"Business is the exchange of goods or service with a profit to both the parties," stated Mr. O. J. Fee, before the Freshmen engineers last Monday, at the Orientation lecture. Mr. Fee is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is now engaged in the laundry business as the president of the Evans laundry.

In order that success may mean a lot to a person he must keep in touch with the people that are less fortunate than himself. Mr. Fee illustrated this idea by means of two pyramids, one upright and the other inverted. In the upright pyramid the word "success" can only be written small because the sides converge as you get nearer the top. But with the inverted pyramid the sides never meet as you go up and the word "success" can be written large without limit.

The services of every kind of engineer have been used in his laundry, including the human and sanitary engineer. At one time the exhaust steam from an engine was turned into the air and wasted, it is now used for heating the wash boilers, thus saving 75 per cent of the fuel formerly used. By rearranging the position of certain machines, the operators were saved many steps. In the course of a day this meant the saving of a walk of four miles per operator, or one hour's work. When this is multiplied by one hundred workers it means a large saving.

Gasoline is used for dry cleaning clothes. The used gas has to be purified so that it can be used again. This was first done by distillation, but a loss of 20 per cent by evaporation was noticed and besides this the process was very dangerous and yielded a large quantity of crude oil that was wasted. The gasoline and dirt are now separated by means of a cream separator. The clean gas obtained in this way is fit for cleaning colored clothes but for white clothes the gas must be further cleaned by distillation.

Before the war, the Germans made the best dyes. This was because Germany was planning for the war and her dye factories were highly developed, owing to the fact that they can be easily turned into explosive factories. America is now making dyes superior to those that were made in Germany.

A factory operator or inspector can spoil large quantities of goods by not paying attention to the work. Mr. Fee illustrated this by telling of a piece of work that came to his laundry the other day. A firm in Lincoln had 200 yards of white sheeting that had turned yellow. This was due to the factory operator allowing the cloth to remain too long in the chlorine bath and the inspector passing it as O. K. The laundry was only able to save 25 per cent of the cloth.

The bureau for recommendation of teachers as on file, besides calls from schools of this state, calls from fifteen other states. The positions are mostly for College or Normal instructors. Among the numerous calls are those for athletic directors, science instructors, teachers of languages, and one from a South Dakota superintendent for a dean of women.
