

LEROSSIGNOL TELLS OF BIG CONVENTION

Association of Collegiate Schools of Business Meets at Philadelphia

The collegiate schools of business in the United States are progressing very rapidly, according to Dean J. E. LeRossignol, who last week attended the annual meeting of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Business held in Philadelphia. The colleges are everywhere growing in size and in opportunities offered to the students. Among the universities represented at the meeting were Harvard, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Chicago, Wisconsin, New York, Talane, California, Southern California, Indiana, Syracuse, Pittsburgh, Texas, Nebraska, Iowa, Cincinnati, Minnesota, Boston and Michigan.

The discussions at the session centered about two chief problems: the curriculum and the study of the social sciences in secondary schools and their correlation with collegiate work. More attention is paid now to the study of economics, especially. It is being introduced into secondary and primary schools by boards of education in all parts of the country.

The discussion of the curriculum was the most important topic of the meetings. There are three types of collegiate schools of business: those giving a four-year prescribed course, such as Nebraska; those with a two-year course, such as the University of Pittsburgh, which follows two years of work in the arts college; and graduate schools of business administration, such as Harvard. The two-year course in most universities, however, is practically the same as the four-year course, since the pre-business work is prescribed. The four-year course includes, as does the work in the University of Nebraska, a large proportion of liberal arts subjects. The consensus of opinion among the delegates present was that both types were practically equivalent to liberal arts courses with specialization in business subjects.

Several men spoke on psychological tests as aids to administration, as a measure of intelligence, in determining vocational aptitudes and in correlating the students' work. Because the first year class at Harvard is limited, the Graduate School of Business Administration uses these tests as part of the entrance examination. In schools where the tests are used, it is reported that the results conform closely to those of the regular examinations, with a few exceptions.

There is at present a scarcity of well-trained teachers of economics and business administration. Colleges of business, it was agreed by the association, should make it one of their functions to train teachers in these subjects for colleges and secondary schools.

May 15 Is Dead Line For Senior Poetry

What is the matter with the senior poets? Shyness, surely, for on days like these the most staid characters are moved to poetic feeling. The senior who can sit in class and retrospect the four past years without being moved has planned but little of the right spirit. Nebraska spirit is increasing steadily and every little ballad contributed by members of this year's class will add to the glory of the old school.

is the dead line date. The poems will be judged by Mortarboards, senior girls honorary society. The form of the verse is optional—even the freest lines will not be rejected. It is the school and class spirit included that counts the most. The prize winner will have the honor of reading his poem on Ivy Day, and the poem will go on record as the official one for 1922.

GAMMA LAMBDA ELECTS OFFICERS

National Band Fraternity Officers Chosen For Next Semester

Gamma Lambda, national band fraternity, elected officers for the first semester next year at a meeting held Wednesday evening after their concert. The following men were elected: President, Burford Gage; Vice President, Irvin Weiler; Secretary-Treasurer, Grove Bixby.

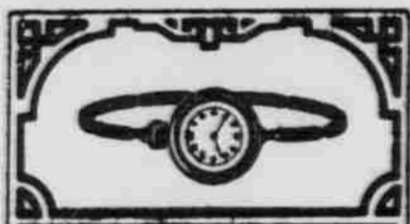

Several matters of business were then taken up, among them the matter of continuing the concerts which they have been sponsoring. It was decided to give one more concert this year and to give as many next fall as the weather will permit.

Plans are being made for raising funds next year to enable the band to accompany the football team on their longer trips. Several smaller trips are to be arranged which will include the towns of the state.

The last meeting of the year will be held at the Silver Lynx house after the concert next Wednesday evening and every member is urged to be present. There are several important matters to be discussed and everyone should be on hand.

"Sure, it's a nice one. I drove that with a First Class Club"

Any golfer knows that it's easier to make that "long drive," that good approach and "sink the put" when you have good Golfing Clubs—the kind of clubs Rudge & Guenzel Co. carries. — They know, too, that good clubs mean live, well balanced clubs are the kind of clubs to make you play your best game all the time.

In order to know the self assurance of swinging a good golf club—you'll have to come in and try some of the new non-metal clubs we are now showing. The one to fit your hand and the one with the right balance, the right length and weight is here for you to try. You'll swing them once—and then it will be a short time until you are out on the links playing the Best Game you ever played with a first class Rudge & Guenzel Co., club.

What's this— No More Cuts?

NOT CHAPEL CUTS.
NOT RECITATION CUTS.

But no more shaving cuts. Williams' Shaving Cream has helped abolish them.

You can "go into high" when you climb your face with Williams' Shaving Cream. It lathers instantly. And lathers right. Thick and creamy. It softens the meanest bristle. Quick. Right down to the very base of every hair.

No need to cut chapel, recitation or face when you use a keen razor and Williams' Shaving Cream.

Be skeptical. Prove it for yourself.
