CHI CONVENTIONS

Nebraska Girls Leave for Sorority
Meetings at Ithica, N. Y., and Colorado Springs

Tri Deltas and Alpha Chis of the University of Nebraska are this week attending the national conventions of their sororities being held at Ithica, N. Y., and Colorado Springs, Colo., respectively. The Delta Delta Delta meetings will last until July 3 while the Alpha Chi Omega convention books close July 2.

Alpha Chi Omega opened its sixteenth national convention at the Antlers hotel in Colorado Springs, Colo., last Monday. It continues until July 2. Special Pullmans from the east arrived in Lincoln last Sunday and gathered up the University of Nebraska girls headed for the convention.

Mrs. Thomas Mauck is representing the alumnae chapter and Miss Jean Holtz is the delegate from the active chapter. Other Nebraskans attending the convention are the Misses Vivian Hansen, Frances Whitmore, Fay Breeze, Dorothy and Mary Brownell of Lincoln; Mrs. Clifford Scott, O'Neill; Mrs. Richard Webster, Valley; Miss Jane Goodbrood, Utica; Miss Nina York, Scottsbluff; Miss Hope Ross, Gordon; Miss Marjorie Watson, North Bend, and Miss Claire Dickerson, Alvo.

National sorority conventions are usually held in the east but the Alpha Chi Omegas broke this rule and are maintaining a western note throughout the meetings. One of the interesting programs of the week will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow Lieurance of the University of Nebraska who will appear in one of their charming programs of Indian songs and music.

Tri Deltas At Ithica

Nebraska delegates to the national convention of Delta Delta Delta left last Friday for Ithica, N. Y., the scene of the conclave. The Tri Delt convention opened there last Sunday and will continue until July 3.

In the party of Nebraskans which left last Friday were Miss Myrtle Carpenter of Wichita, Kan., alumnae delegate, Miss True Jack and Miss Mary Chapin, province deputy, Lincoln; Miss Zella Scott, Norton, Kans., and Miss Helen Downing, Rising City. Miss Carol Aylsworth went east some time ago to attend the commencement at Princeton university. She will join the Nebraska delegation at Ithica.

After the close of the convention the girls will plan to visit Niagara Falls, Washington, D. C., Boston, New York and Norfolk, Va.

forms to make walking a serious matter for a squeakish girl.

In the far end is a table on which are rows and rows of bones in various stages of dryness. Those which have just been cleaned have an orange tinge; those which have been exposed for a longer period to the Nebraska atmosphere are whitening. Skulls, shoulder blades, shins—only those aren't the names they use for them over there—all lying in the open air, surrounded by the odor of ancient embalmed flesh—a cemetery with a difference.

And through it all, the professors and the assistants who are making skeletons—they enjoy the job—walk as unconcernedly as tennis players take their places on the courts.

If you are more interested in dry bones than in drying ones, you may be able to prevail upon an obliging professor to show you the finished products.

In an inner office, where the floor is cleaned enough to make walking safe is a "cooler" with a temperature of perhaps 150 degrees. When the zinc door is opened, a glass casing is shown, behind which are rows of small bottles, each one labeled and each one containing the bones of an animal in some stage of its spiritual life. The youngest of these feathered bipeds was only a day old at the time of the incarceration of its bones.

And for every bottled skeleton, there has been an autopsy and the percentages have been figured of the comparative weights of the feathers, the lungs, the heart—every available bit of information has been collected and collaborated with every other bit. To a scientist, too, all things are available. The work of an autopsy consumes perhaps eight hours; the figuring takes an infinitely longer time.

But from these bits of information —from the "stiff" courses and the dissecting rooms—come greater coordination of knowledge already acquired and some entirely new bits of information; every hour of work has sent the scientific world on to greater discoveries—but every minute, to the novice, makes the horror of it recede.
