NEBRASKA IN THE EAST

"The eastern colleges are for the first time looking to the west in recognition of a formidable rival in football and they are acknowledging Nebraska as that rival," declared a Princeton man yesterday.

Nebraska warriors, two years ago, made their first appearance in the east and awakened the easterners to the fact that this middle-western school was alive, filled with enthusiasm and "going strong."

Nebraska's football team will again journey east this year. Her prowess is known in the west. Let's herald it in the east.

This marks the beginning of an eventful year. School spirit is running high, and with the backing of every student, Nebraska will remain on top.

Freshmen! Help to give your school and our school the position which it deserves. Sophomores, Juniors! Seniors! Lend your support to every cause. Respond to every request with just a little more than was asked of you. This is Nebraska's banner year and each individual student has it within his power to boost or pull down the standards of the school.

Nebraska Boosters, let's keep things "going strong!"

THE CAMPUS BEAUTIFUL

A group of botany students were gathered about one of the most beautiful trees on the campus absorbed in the study of its foliage. It made us wonder how many of us as we rush from class to class stop to note our trees, flowers or the well-kept green of our campus?

After the varied outcries last year resulting from the removal of the traditional iron fence, we can now fully appreciate the unity which has culminated in the wide sweep of the campus from Teachers college, Social Science hall and past University hall. The whole ensemble seems to have grown in importance and even the old halls and university buildings have added dignity unto themselves because of their new found freedom.

The University has an unusually attractive campus this fall. The wide bed of purple flowers flanking Social Science, the gorgeous mass of yellow blossoms in front of the Library, as well as the green of the shrubbery are all decidedly artistic and picturesque.

The Agricultural campus has always had the reputation of possessing the most beautiful campus but this year has proven that the city campus can at least compete with it in beauty. This is a decided attainment of which we should be proud, for beautiful surroundings enhance college life.

WHOM SHOULD BE EXCLUDED?

In her latest book, Margaret Widgerner tells a story of a Polish boy in America eager for a college education. He had gone through high school with good grades and was trying to earn a scholarship at college by taking subscriptions for a magazine. He won the scholarship, but in winning he had revealed a character that was repulsive to the men whose business it was to accept or reject him. He had shown himself to be supremely selfish, untruthful, ruthless in his methods, and devoid of any idea of duty. To cap it all he eavesdropped at the door of the room in which his case was being discussed, and burst into the room to denounce those who had spoken against him.

The result was the lad's exclusion from the college—an act which was justified by Dr. Blanton, one of the committee, who said in reply to the boy's abuse:

"You say we owe you an education if you can pay for it. We have a right to ask you what you are going to do with it. If you whined and lied your way into this scholarship, you are going to go on whining and lying your way through the world, with the help of our good name. We have a right to demand of you a decent outlook on the world, and decent treatment of the world. If you would listen at a door tonight, you would do as tricky a thing six years from now, when you are a professional man, by the grace of the college. You have brains, but you have no genuine ideals, and I should not say that you had very many principles. This country needs men in power who are right-minded; with your brains and persistence you will go far. I think you will go in the wrong direction; and so far as I can help it, you shall not go, backed by this college."

There is a good lesson in this incident, both for those who clamor for education, and for those who give it. In the first place, no college graduate has ever paid in full for his education. The obligation is mutual; if faculty of those who have given to build and maintain the college, and of the instructors who have given in service far more than they ever received in money compensation. The most obvious debt an alumnus owes to his college is to be an honest man and a good citizen; and it is just as much the right of the college to expect this as it is the right of the student to expect the gift of an education. The obligation is mutual; if colleges are simply sharpening the wits of some so that they may prey upon others, they had better go out of business.—Columbus Ohio Dispatch.

Lowden and Allen to Speak Before Barristers Meeting

Omaha, Sept. 20.—The Nebraska State Bar association will hold its twenty-third annual meeting at Omaha, December 29 and 30, 1922. The principal features of the meeting will be the presidents annual address by Judge George F. Corcoran of York, reports of standing committees on legislation, judiciary, inquiry and local education, and the principal addresses by Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, and Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Governor Allen, editor and published of the Wichita Beacon for many years, is just finishing his second term as governor of the state. During the world war he organized the "Home Communication Service" of the American Red Cross in France, his work in conjunction with William Allen White of Emporia attracting nationwide attention. He will address the Nebraska Bar association on "The Industrial Court of Kansas," the organization of which was one of the outstanding events of his first term as governor.

Mr. Lowden was the war governor of Illinois and was one of the leading contenders for the republican nomination to the presidency at the Chicago convention in 1920. He has just returned to this country from an extended trip through Europe, where he studied to hard aindidnuu where he has made an exhaustive study of reparation and other post-war problems. He will address the bar of the state on "Is the Constitution Outworn?"

The membership council of the association has announced a membership campaign similar to that conducted in recent years by the American Bar association, with the object of bringing into the association all practicing attorneys in the state.

Find Buddies Easily

Booths For Registration Will Enable Veterans to Find Friends at National Convention.

New Orleans.—(Special)—Members of divisional war organizations will have no difficulty in locating their former "buddies" at the American Legion national convention in New Orleans next month, according to the convention committee on division reunions.

A booth will be established in the Legion home at which members of war organizations only, may register their convention address, home address and the name of the organization to which they belong.

Tuesday, October 17, will be reunion day and a hall to be used for that purpose will be provided for the various "outfits" that contemplate holding divisional gatherings simultaneously with the national convention.

Two silver loving cups will be awarded as trophies, one to the organization showing the greatest attendance and the other to the "outfit" having the greatest number in men in the Legion parade which will be held Wednesday, October 18.

Alliance Begins Early Plans for Appropriate Keeping of Armistice Day

Alliance, (Special)—The local post is making elaborate plans for the celebration of armistice day. All ex-service men in the county as well as members of the ladies' auxiliary, the Spanish-American and civil war veterans and their auxiliaries, boy scouts and the Rotary and Lions clubs and more than 1,200 school children will take part in the program. All veterans will attend church services in the morning in uniform and in a body. A parade will be held at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, followed by a speaking program and the decoration of the soldiers' graves. In the evening a boxing program and a bowery dance will occupy the time of the ex-service men and their guests.
