THE CHURCH RECEPTIONS

Tonight the churches of the city are extending a most cordial invitation to the University students to attend receptions given in their honor. They are offering a friendly welcome and a warm hand of fellowship to all.

This custom of church receptions is a very praiseworthy and splendid idea. Many students who hesitate to go to other functions, are willing to make new acquaintances and start new friendships. The companionship of others makes the newcomer feel less strange, and the loneliness of each is drowned in that of the other, while a contented comradeship springs up in its stead.

So far the students' thoughts have been centered upon getting settled down to work. Now that that has been accomplished, the next desire is for social companionship. The church receptions are ideal places to find just what is wanted. Lose your cares and come out tonight.

THE MUSEUM

Ask some upper classmen about the museum and they will either give you a blank look or laugh at you. Others boast that they have never been inside the Museum in their three or four years in college. They seem to consider this a distinction; a sign of complete sophistication.

Yet visitors to the University are attracted in great numbers to this building. The collections there are of great value. Hours can be spent at the Museum pleasantly and profitably, viewing these collections.

Students who are too sophisticated to avail themselves of the opportunities the University offers, outside of the advantages received in the classes in which they are registered, will very likely go into their work after college overlooking many things in life which are of value. They will miss many of the pleasures of life because they consider them outside the interests of the sophisticated individual.

STUDENT OPINIONS

The Daily Nebraskan will be glad to print in its Student Opinion columns articles by students and members of the faculty bearing on issues of direct concern in the University. Almost all of us are interested in what other people think. Contributors are asked to sign their names as evidence of good faith although they will be withheld from publication upon request.

We reprint without comment this paragraph from the Washburn Review. It is for the special benefit of those upper-class girls who are big sisters.

Remember now thy little sister in the days of her youth, when the evil days come not nigh when she shall say, "Go to, when I was a green little freshman and needed your help, you were too much occupied with important matters to ay any attention to me. Now when I have reached this great age and manifest maturity, I can still stand on my own feet. Take the air!"

The University of Nebraska will be honored tomorrow by the visit of the British delegation to the campus.

GLEE CLUB TRYOUTS

Try-outs for the University of Nebraska Glee Club will be held Monday night at seven o'clock in the Temple. All men who are interested in making vocal music are urged to be present.

Professor Witte is confident that the University can make a creditable showing. Several appearances out in the state have been scheduled.

THE EXHAUST

Instructor in education: "Why not let the primary pupils make the sanitary drinking cups for the school?"
Super-bright Cornhusker student, earnestly: "The child labor law would prevent it."

ORPHEUM THEATRE

Among the many tokens of appreciation of his art, there is none possessed by Duci de Kerekjarto, the celebrated violinist at the Orpheum in Lincoln next week, which is more highly appreciated than a diamond scarf-pin presented to him by ex-Empress Zita of Hungary. For its face value alone it should be appreciated. It is designed with a huge "Z" with the royal crown of Hungary just above, all set in diamonds, and mounted in platinum. But it is not what the pin and its stones are worth that endears the token to Kerekjarto, it is the sentiment that prompted the gift.

"During the late war when there were thousands of children made orphans in so short a time," Kerekjarto relates, "there was famine among them. They were starving and something had to be done for them. I did my part by giving concerts and turning the proceeds over to their needs. Empress Zita heard of this and asked me to call. She was head of all charities of that country and wanted to thank me."

"I took my violin to the castle and played for her. She was impressed with my music, and she is a wonderfully clever musician herself. She is an Italian you know, and all Italians love music. Empress Zita played the organ for me, and then we played together, and we enjoyed as informal an evening of music as you would here in any drawing room. She is such a sentimental little woman, and as she played my accompaniments I could see her cry; the music touched her, and how divinely she played herself. She was a woman who couldn't estimate, I suppose, what her fortune was. Now she is penniless, and her husband, ex-Empress Charles, died recently."

"It isn't because the empress gave me a diamond pin that I appreciate this so much; it is because she wished to show her appreciation of my music which I played for charity."

Hear this famous violinist and six vaudeville numbers at the Orpheum, Lincoln, all next week, evening and matinee performances.
"Is Jones a truthful man?"
"Yes, generally, but he will go to any length in telling a fish story."

NOW THEN, OLD DEAH!

Boston, Mass.—Recently during a baseball game between the Red Sox and the St. Louis Browns two British officers from the cruiser Constance couldn't quite understand why they were called the Red Sox and the White Sox, owing to the fact that "they wore stockings and not socks."

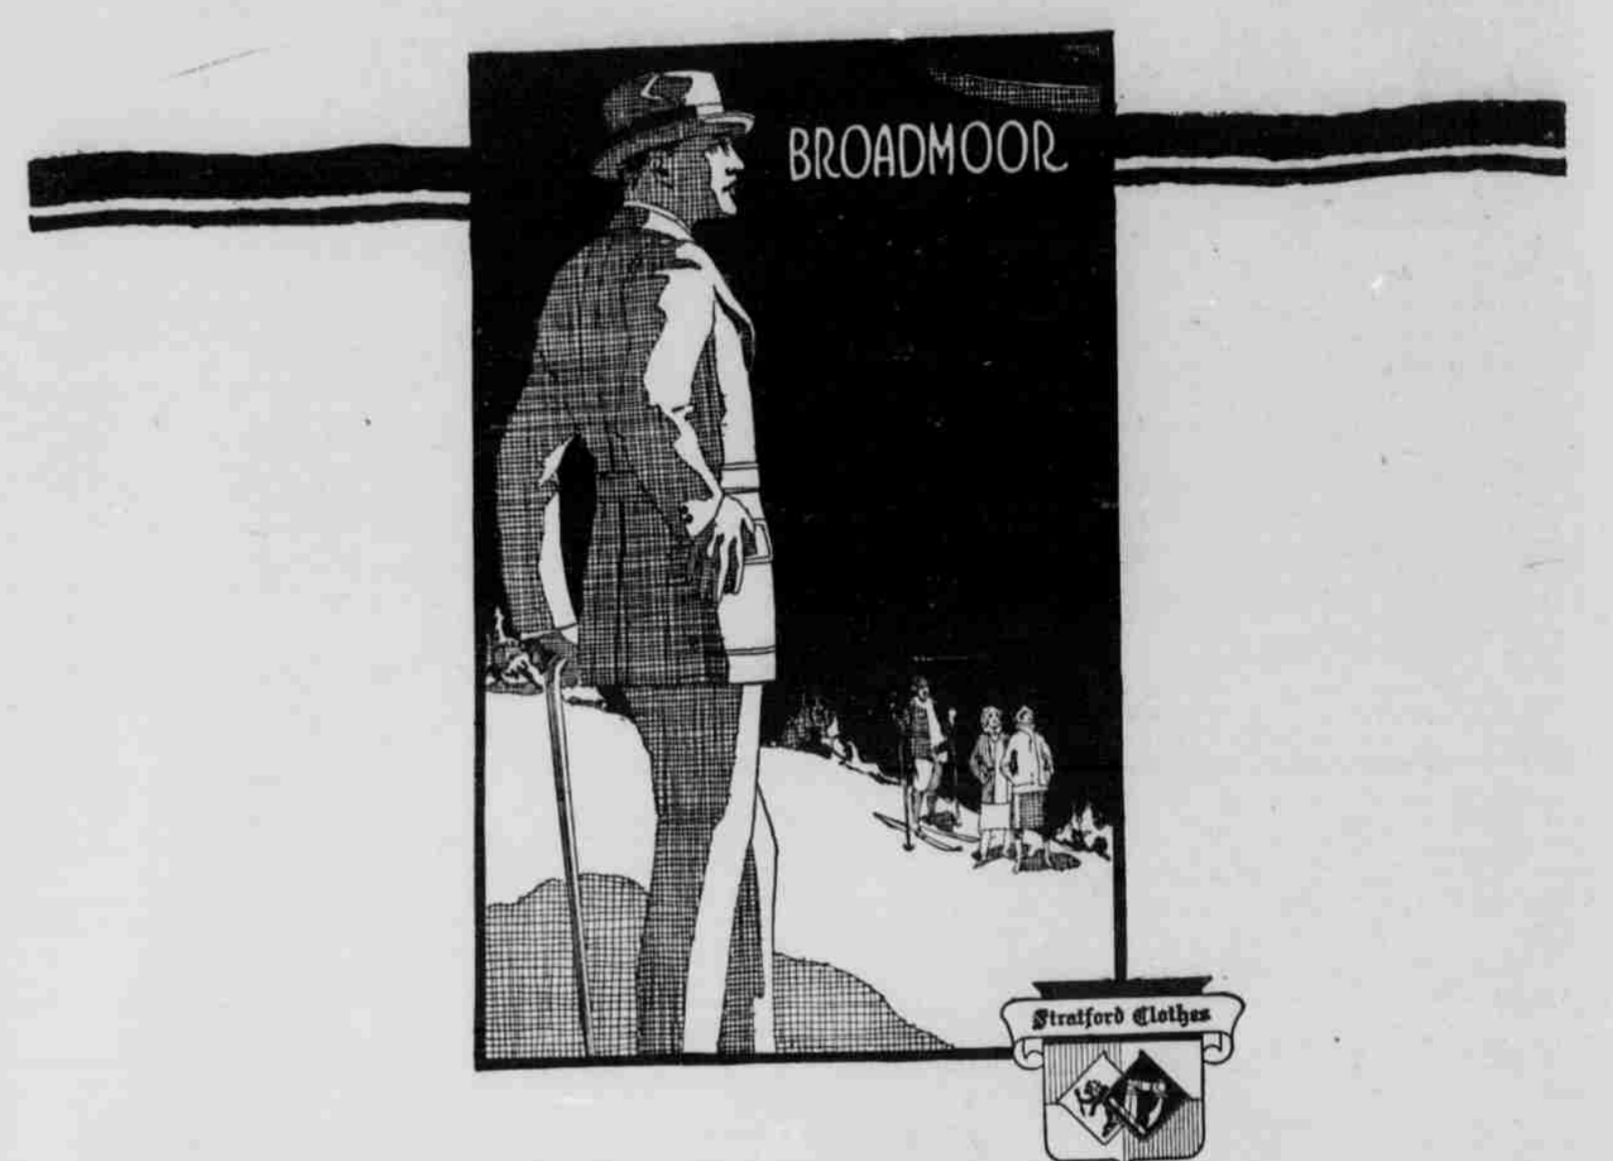

After the game they both admitted that the game was "deucedly better than cricket."

"Where weary folks toil, black with sweat
And hear but whistles scream,
I went all fresh with dawn and dew
To carry them a dream."

I went to bitter lands and dark
Who once had known the sky
To carry them a dream—and found
I had more dreams than I.
—Mary Caroline Daires

There was a sign upon the fence,
The sign was "Paint",
And everybody who went by

Sinner or saint,—
Put out his fingers, touched the fence
And onward sped,
And as they wiped their finger tips,
"It is," they said.

Stratford Clothes

When we sense that a young man is a quality buyer and a particular dresser, we show him these famous style clothes. It works like magic.

FARQUHAR'S

The Stratford Fabric Trim

There are no body linings in Stratford sack coats. The same all-wool fabric as the coat itself is used for the inside finish. The seams are securely piped with all silk-satin. This exclusive Stratford feature helps to build style and durability into the clothes and imparts a handsome, stylish finish to the inside of the coat.
