CORNHUSKERS!

Wednesday was the first day that the university student body as a whole had been admitted to the bleachers on Nebraska field, since the beginning of scrimmages for the Cornhusker squad. It was Coach Dawson's courtesy that caused the gates to be opened Wednesday. About four hundred students took advantage of the opportunity to see the team in action.

For more than two hours, the forty Varsity candidates had been toiling. The day was hot, and the practice had been long and tiresome. Sweaty, dirty, god-tired men, toiling in spite of their weakness, snapping into action at the crisp command of the quarterback, plunging the line, spilling the interference, crashing around end, sprinting for passes, the Cornhusker squad obeyed each time, forgetting weariness for its pride in the school.

Did the supposedly loyal students in the bleachers, four hundred of them, cheer when there was a good play made? Did they yell words of encouragement to the players that would make the game just a little more worth while; did they, in fact make any noise at all that would sound even like approval, the word that would make any Cornhusker do twice what he could do under ordinary circumstances? were more silent than a near and dumb man at his own funeral.

Even when the Coach ran over and tried to get some cheers started, the response was a couple of sickly yells that the players on the field had a hard time hearing.

What has become of Nebraska's "pop"? Do Nebraska students just back their team when they are on the field facing an opponent, and there is a game to be won? Do they forget those long grinding nights on the practice field of preparation? Are Nebraska students just gala-weather fans, who turn out for the games, and want to see the Cornhuskers win, but forget all about them between times?

Coach Dawson may not open those gates often if he is to get a repetition of Wednesday afternoon's performance. It was most disheartening. Those Huskers like encouragement. For what is the honor of wearing an "N", compared to being able to play on the great Cornhusker squad? It is not personal glory they crave. They are fighting their greatest battles for Nebraska, and every Nebraska student shines in the light of a victorious Cornhusker squad.

What was it that sent the boys to France, and kept them fighting over there, fighting all the time to win? It was morale, kept at its highest pitch all the time. The man behind the man behind the gun is often a great factor.

There are two kinds of football fans, those who go to a game and root and cheer, and sometimes go half-wild, when some husky Husker makes a play of note. But between games they forget that Nebraska has a team. They decidedly are not contributing factors to the morale of the squad. It would indeed be a poor sport that wouldn't go to a Cornhusker game and go half wild with enthusiasm. He has reason to.

Put the true fan in the man who does not forget that in between those glorious games are days and days of heart-breaking "drubbing," when the game seems hardly worth-while, when men work until they are completely exhausted, when morale is lagging. Then is when the Cornhuskers need to know that they are backed by the whole-hearted support of the school.

Come on, gang, let's make that next practice. Will we have to wait for Dawson to prompt us to show the boys a little encouragement the next time?

"Let's go, gang, fight 'em."

Dr. W. E. Sealock of the Teachers' college will assist in the institute at Wayne, Nebraska City, Columbus and Broken Bow, this week and part of next week. He plans to be in his office on Wednesday of next week.

A NEBRASKA GIRL'S CREED. "A Nebraska Girl's Creed" was drawn up last year by the University Y. W. C. A. and the Women's Self-Government associations, and endorsed by the various student organizations for women on the campus. It has been recognized on the local campus and in the state as representing the sentiments of practically the entire group of women students. National publicity has been given the creed through an article in the October issue of the Woman's Home companion. The article, which deals with the subject of dress and social practices among college women, gives extracts from the Creed as indicative of the sentiment in a western university. The University of Nebraska is mentioned in an article along with such colleges as Smith, Vassar, Holyoke, Wellesley, Radcliffe, the University of Minnesota, Winthrop college and Swarthmore college. Every student in the University should be familiar with this Creed. Freshmen women were given copies, attractively printed ready for framing, at the Mortarboard convocation for women Thursday. For those others who have not read the Creed, we are printing it in full: "A Nebraska Girl's Creed" "I believe that the scholarship standards of the university are maintained by high personal standards. I condemn the practice of cribbing and of reciting in class with one's book open, and believe anything but honest and conscientious work is a waste of time. I favor working toward honor system at the University of Nebraska. "I believe that health is of primary importance in one's life and that we should therefore seriously consider and care for it, by observing eight hours of sleep each night, one hour of outdoor exercise each day, a carefully balanced diet with no eating between meals, and by avoiding over-fatigue and uncleanness. "I believe that a girl is judged very largely by her conversation, especially by her choice of words and tone of voice. I believe that a college girl's conversation should be intelligent and clean, and should not consist largely of discussion of men and clothes. I believe that she should at all times avoid the use of coarse slang and that she should never swear. "I believe that dress expresses personality and therefore in choosing our clothes we should consider taste and appropriateness. I believe that satin pumps, lace stockings, feather hats, silk or velvet dresses, high heels, net or georgette blouses are not appropriate at school. I believe that rouge and powder should never be applied in public. I advocate the use of hair nets. "I believe that every girl should engage in at least one outdoor sport a week; this need not be an organized sport, but may include hiking, skating, tennis, golf, swimming and the like. I believe that she should attend as many of the worth while plays, concerts, etc., as possible and that she may indulge moderately in harmless amusements. "I believe that friendship is based upon an earnest desire for companionship. If a girl honestly wishes to have friends she will first of all show herself friendly to all people whom she meets. I believe that absolute sincerity and trust are the first and last word in true friendship. "I believe that Democracy in Nebraska can best be shown by the attitude of girls in the campus. I believe the democratic girl will show a helpful friendly attitude to all with whom she comes in contact. I believe she will consider that being in the same class with a person serves as introduction and therefore she should consider her classmates as acquaintances. "I believe school spirit can best be shown by out boosting Nebraska as a whole, above all other schools. Talk Nebraska, think Nebraska, and live her the more she will mean to you. "I believe that religion should have a place in life because college life is the period of development of spiritual ideals. A certain portion of my time should be devoted to the formation and practice of these ideals."
