OFF TO KANSAS.

The Cornhusker football team left for Kansas last evening, assured of the loyal support of Nebraska rooters. Beside a large delegation from the student body, many Nebraska alumni and Lincoln business men, will witness the game at Lawrence. Upon those who make the trip to the Jayhawker state will rest the responsibility of demonstrating the spirit and loyalty of the entire University. There is no necessity to define Nebraska spirit. It is based on the highest kind of good sportsmanship. Each individual who goes to Kansas, whether he be on the first team, the freshman squad, a member of the band, a "Corn-cob," or an ordinary rooter, will help to contribute to that splendid spirit of which Nebraska is proud.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Tomorrow is Armistice Day, November 11. Kansas has chosen this day as a fitting time to dedicate her new Memorial Stadium. Many Nebraskans will have the opportunity to witness the solemn ceremony of dedication. The Nebraska band has been invited to participate.

The day in Lincoln will be marked by the laying of the corner-stone for Nebraska's new capitol. This is an event in the history of Nebraska. Those students who remain in Lincoln will find it worth while to be present at this ceremony, which will mark an epoch in the development of the state.

BE A GOOD GUEST.

Everyone that attends the Kansas-Nebraska game at Lawrence next Saturday must remember that he is a representative of this institution, that any action whether good or bad will reflect upon this school, and that he is under surveillance at all times by those who would get an impression of the University of Nebraska. Our football team has made an enviable reputation in the Jayhawker school, and now the students themselves are given an opportunity to associate with fellow students on another campus.

It has been two years since the University of Kansas has been host to the Cornhuskers and according to the program they will be most pleasant entertainers. We must enact our parts as appreciative guests and show our southern friends that our student body is of a high calibre. Above all things show respect for their song or yell that is equivalent to our "Cornhusker." Nothing wins a warmer place in the heart of an opponent than a display of good sportsmanship.

CONVOCATION.

There were many reasons why the convocation yesterday at which former Chancellor McLean spoke meant a great deal to the students present. Dr. McLean is an able speaker. As well as entertaining the audience with reminiscences of his connection with the University he brought a message to the students of today. He told of the privilege and the responsibility the American University student has, and he urged the students of Nebraska to take their places in the new "international era."

Another feature of the convocation was in itself worth going to see. This was the number of members of the faculty who were here when Dr. McLean was chancellor twenty-five years ago. The University has very few ceremonies when the student body comes in contact with the academic spirit of the University. As the faculty members who have given a quarter of a century of service to this institution filed up on stage and took their places, the reaction on the students was noticeable.

CROSS-COUNTRY.

While football is receiving so much attention there is another sport at Nebraska which is almost overlooked by a large percentage of the student body. This sport is cross-country. During the running season the men on the cross-country squad put in many hours of strenuous practice. The squad has been entered in three meets this year. Tomorrow the Husker team will enter the Missouri Valley Conference meet at St. Louis. In our enthusiasm for football we should not fail to give recognition to those who represent us in this minor sport, cross-country.

NEBRASKA MAN AIDS IN GAS EXPERIMENT

mander F. M. Kraus, representing the Navy; Colonel R. F. Favel, representing the Army, and R. B. Moore, chief chemist of the Bureau of Mines, with H. S. Mulliken, production engineer, as alternate.

The other members of the Board of Helium Engineers were as follows: M. H. Roberts, Franklin Railway Supply Company; R. C. Tolman of the California Institute of Technology; Edgar Buckingham of the Bureau of Standards, and John W. Davis of the Bureau of Mines. The government also had the assistance of Dr. Frederick Keyes, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Dr. Harvey N. Davis of Harvard.

The recovery of helium as carried on at government plants in Texas results in a gas of about sixty-four per cent purity, and this necessitates a second operation to remove impurities. By the old method, the flow from natural gas wells is directed through a series of compressed gases which reduce various of the gases in the mixture to liquid. Illuminating gas, methane, is taken off first. The remaining gases are then, one by one, liquefied and helium, having an exceedingly low point of liquefaction remains. The difficulty with this method is to liquify all of the nitrogen in the mixture.

Those Daily Cruelties.

You can't please all of the people all the time but you can displease lots of people most of the time. Turn about is fair play but you can't make everybody think that way. From our kid-age, as early as we can remember, we recall hearing "Don't do this and don't do that." As we grew older we learned that many times we were not in the wrong. But the other person took a different viewpoint. That's just the way the "Daily Cruelties" ditties appearing in the press explain in concrete examples the difference of opinions concerning this, that and the other things. On the screen "Topics of the Day" Films often show funny ditties with laugh-inducing success, so you ought to find some smiles in our exhibit of ditties. There are 3000,000 new books issued every year, and five or six of them are worthy reading. In a few years from now people won't remember whether it was the war or the jitney that taught us the slogan, "Let's go."
