WRITING LETTERS.

Writing letters is an art, but a familiar one today possessed in some degree by everyone. It requires no research or study or great intellectual effort to write a letter since it is merely a communication of events told in the natural, unadorned way of the writer.

It has been said that friendship is a boon to life. It is also a fact that friends cannot always remain together. Time and distance almost inevitably grow between them, and the one big, tangible tie that remains to bind them is the letter.

Our rapid mail service communication is one of the high marks of our civilization. It costs two cents, a wee bit of mental effort, and fifteen minutes of time to connect through means of a letter with a friend that you have not seen for years.

The general excuse for failure to write is the lack of time. This world does not move so swiftly that there is not time to live or to remember that there are others living who would like to think that they are not entirely forgotten.

ALL-UNIVERSITY CHURCH SUNDAY. Have you planned your Sunday program? Is church attendance a part of it?

Special invitations have been issued to University students to attend church Sunday. The University student pastors, committees from the various churches, and the religious secretaries, are co-operating in helping every student in the University to find a church home by Sunday.

Many churches are planning special services appropriate to affiliation Sunday. Every effort is being made to make Sunday services attractive to the college student.

The observance of the Sunday before Thanksgiving as All-University Church Sunday is a custom which calls for the response of every student in the University.

The report of a number of anonymous contributions requires once again the reiteration of an announcement made early in the year that the Daily Nebraskan cannot print unsigned communications.

Contemporary Opinion

Isolation. When Universities were young and the students who attended them the special favorites of fortune, Universities were more or less a thing apart from the world, a separate sphere.

But since that time Universities have grown and become such a potent influence as to deserve a place in the main show, and a higher education is generally recognized as a desirable step in the preparation of men for success in life.

Neglecting this situation altogether, too many students enter a University with the idea of gaining an education completely within the boundaries of its campus. Although in their home communities they may have been interested in some phase of national or international life, although they may have been ardent newspaper readers each evening, their four years at college are marked by a decided disregard of every problem which confronts nation or world.

To be sure, the student who thinks matters over is practically ever guilty of this failure to keep in touch with the world. But the fact remains that all students do not ponder their choices to any considerable extent, and too many are inclined to take the easiest way of complete forgetfulness of the world during their stay in an educational Utopia.

Thanksgiving Proclamation

Governor McKelvie finds a few things to be thankful for, to which he calls attention in his official proclamation for the observance of Thanksgiving day, November 30 in Nebraska. He says:

"The president of the United States has designated Thursday, the thirtieth day of November, as a day of thanksgiving, to be observed by the people of the nation.

"Verily, this should be a day of universal observance in Nebraska. How many are the blessings for which the people of this commonwealth should be grateful! Again, rich acres have yielded up their bounty to the husbandman, and upon every hand there is evidence of nature's boundless contribution to the prosperity of the nation.

"If we are moved to complain, it is only because we are unappreciative of the benefits that have been bestowed upon us, and we have no right to expect that anyone, even the Creator, will long shower blessings upon us that we have not earned and do not deserve.

"Wherefore, I, Samuel R. McKelvie, governor, do hereby set apart and proclaim Thursday, the thirtieth day of November, a day of Thanksgiving, and I recommend that due observance be given this day in church and home, throughout the borders of this state."

Exchanges.

Unification of college spirit and strengthening of fellow-feeling, thru the creation of a number of commodious men's dormitories on the campus is the goal toward which the Association of Unorganized is at present directing its energies.

Few responses to the letters have been received as yet. An interest in the plan is evidenced in the early replies, however, and future communications may gratify the hopes of Indiana men, who consider the addition of men's dormitories to the campus as one of the most outstanding improvements that could be made to the University at this time.
