Just a reminder that group pictures for "Your" Cornhusker should all be taken at Dele's by Saturday of this week.

Baseball fans are wearing a smile today as the diamond squad replaces the basketball team in the public eye. A new coach will probably take charge of the Husker baseball men and a new coach always needs backing from the student body. Nebraska's team was hard hit last summer when two of our men played professional ball and became ineligible for places on the 1923 nine. A big tournament will be needed if Nebraska is to hold a position at the top of the Missouri Valley Conference.

"The Stadium—A Reality in 1923", was the slogan during the campaign for funds last fall. Every day sees the realization of a stadium a little nearer. Plans for the memorial structure are practically completed and with their completion the last obstacle in the way of rapid work has been removed.

Students who have glanced at the athletic field since the Notre Dame game on Thanksgiving Day will be surprised at the changes there. The stands are completely gone and the block north of the old field has been cleared of houses. Even now the immensity of the stadium is hardly realized by many. A little more progress and the last doubters will be convinced that Nebraska's Memorial Stadium will be worthy of the greatest University of the middlewest.

Girls of the University have an opportunity to do a real service this week by aiding in the Grace Coppock Memorial Campaign conducted under the auspices of the University Y. W. C. A. The work of Nebraska's women graduates in the Orient forms a bright chapter in the history of U. of N. alumni activities. This work is growing and accomplishing more each year. The small part which coeds on the campus can play in this missionary work will be undertaken gladly—not in the spirit of "giving to stop the soliciting" but in the spirit of service.

The Lost Art of Discussion

Perhaps our students are ahead of the students of the University of California in bringing back the lost art of discussion. Perhaps, in the last months there has been a step to revive the open forum groups which used to flourish. The foreign students' visit was responsible for a great deal of discussion on world problems. But the following article from the west coast paper should not pass entirely over the heads of Nebraska students:

Can you imagine a representative group of University of California students, about twenty or thirty, getting together in a room and carrying on an intelligent discussion about some present day topic, such as the Ruhr situation, the Lausanne controversy, American participation in European economic rehabilitation, or anything like that? In fact can you imagine them carrying on a discussion of anything except classroom gossip, or the weighty problems of student activities? These have their place, of course, but when they occupy the spotlight during the entire show, it is (Continued on Page Four.)
