"Snapshot Day" for the 1923 Cornhusker comes tomorrow. Old man Sol permitting, students are asked to take snapshots and more snapshots of anything which will liven the student life section of the yearbook. Remember, you will not have good grounds to criticize the student life section if you have made no effort to help out by contributing material in the boxes in the Library and Social Science or by celebrating "Snapshot Day" and turning the best pictures in to the Cornhusker management. Make "Your Cornhusker" a reality.

A coming student attraction which deserves student support is the first home concert of the University Glee Club which will be held April 20. The Glee Club has made a fine impression throughout the state in its tour and short trips this winter. It has been a worthwhile advertisement of student activities here.

Two years ago, there was no glee club at Nebraska. But at about the same time that students began to realize that Nebraska needed a new song book they began to feel the lack of a University Glee Club. The need was a real one and the organization of the present Club was hailed as a real advance.

The enthusiasm shown then was successfully rewarded. Let us show that same spirit when we have our first real chance to show appreciation for the work of the director and members of the Glee Club.

"THE GOOSE STEP"

One student's opinion of Upton Sinclair's, "The Goose Step," deserves notice in the Campus Comment column as containing much merit in its criticism. It follows:

"The Goose Step," by Upton Sinclair, is finally out. It is the result of a stupendous amount of work on the part of the author and is considered by him to be the last word in criticism of the American College. As a college man, Sinclair no doubt has a right to make these criticisms. The rest of us should read the book and shudder. The first two or three nights after I read the work I was unable to sleep. I shivered to think of the iniquity of the system of which I was a part. I saw in the innocent instructors the diabolical tools of the interlocking directorates that Sinclair so luridly describes. In reality "The Goose Step" is a farce. It is a mammoth piece of exaggeration and jumping at conclusions—generally wrong ones.

Sinclair has the trouble which is chronic in most radicals. He believes he is expounding ideas that have never before entered the brain of mankind. He should know that there have been no original ideas since Socrates and that what he repeats about the state of things in our schools is really a very trite statement. Anyone of any discernment knows that there are faults and great ones in the present institutions. The trouble with Sinclair and others is that they go no deeper than the outward trouble and do not try to see if this fault is not the lesser of two evils. Take for example Sinclair's cry that the schools are too crowded and that they turn out type citizens. This is, of course, the result of our teeming democracy and our attempt to make our educational advantages free and within the reach of everyone. If we still had the more select and aristocratic schools, radicals like the writer of "The Goose Step" would be the first to rave "Injustice!"

The main fault which Sinclair finds with the present university is that it is controlled by wealthy directors. His argument is that these men of great wealth control too much the policies of the faculty and keep them from telling the students the truth concerning economic problems. Nothing could be more just. The public demands and elects prominent and wealthy alumni to guide the affairs of the school and the public demands and insists that its youth be taught according to the generally sound economic principals of the business world and not according to the Utopian schemes of destructionists. "The Goose Step" finds fault with the fact that our schools teach us to be practical business men. To try to get the purpose of an education that is financed by public expense is to train young people in the best possible way to meet the exigencies of life. True, our universities are no longer the leisurely places where a small group of the idle class study the classics and idly discuss theoretical democracy, but instead, a humming center of activity where men of all types and classes are brought together for the purpose of putting a practical and working democracy into effect. The works of men like Sinclair can never carry much weight as long as they are wholly destructive. When these men honestly and earnestly strive to put up a better system than, perhaps, we can have some sympathy with their aims."

"HIKES AND TRAVELS" IS NEW PUBLICATION

University Students Are Invited to Contribute Story of Personal Outdoor Experiences.

"Hikes and Travels," a new monthly publication will be published beginning the first of May. Students in the University of Nebraska are invited to contribute to the magazine, personal experiences on hikes, automobile trips, and travel of all kinds, in a letter from the editor of the new journal, Erwin F. Schneider, a letter to the Daily Nebraskan, received yesterday.

The following is quoted from the letter:

"The narrative must be written in a way which shows exactly the route taken, so that a stranger can find his way according to the description. Pictures of pretty country scenes, or of the party taking the trip are essential. The duration of the trip and the initial expense must also be included. The story should be written in the light hearted spirit of youth, show little incidences, be interesting, and if possible, show some humor.

"Hikes and Travels will be published to assist the public in choosing their places of recreation and vacation and to acquaint them with the beauty spots of our own wonderful country and foreign lands."

The University Extension News announces that forty-five member of the faculty are available as commencement speakers and also announces sixty-three of their subjects.

The worst cases of enlarged ego are found in towns that are too small to have a parking situation.

The undeveloped peoples are those who dwell in a land where they can cross a street without risking their necks.

A motto which is popular in business institutions just now reads: You are not dressed for work until you put on a smile! To which we would add: Put on a Dunlap Hat and the smile comes spontaneously!

Williams' VII

—the softest course in college

WILLIAMS' VII is a course for every man in the institution. It's seven times a week but the sessions are short—less than five minutes each. And best of all, no man who elects Williams' ever fails—to get a better shave than he ever got before.

The first thing you learn in shaving with Williams' is of the remarkably beneficial effect it has on your skin. You can't fail to be impressed—even after the closest examination—with the fact that here, at last, is a shaving cream which really does your face good.

Then, especially if you're of a practical, business-like turn of mind, you'll be pleased with the efficiency of Williams'. It softens the beard in so much less time. It does everything a shaving cream is supposed to do.

Get a tube of Williams' today. Use it for two months. See then if you ever could go back to any other shaving cream.

Notice the hinged cap. You can't lose it—and the tube hangs up!

The smooth fit of VAN HEUSEN on your neck differs from that of ordinary collars as silk differs from sackcloth—because the VAN HEUSEN really curves.

Not Genuine Unless Stamped VAN HEUSEN

The VAN CRAFT Shirt has the VAN HEUSEN Collar attached—and is as much finer in form and fabric than ordinary shirts, as the VAN HEUSEN is finer than ordinary collars. It is the model of soft-shirt-informality with the mussiness left out. Made in White Oxford and Mercerized Pongee.
