Night Editor—Charles A. Mitchell

Kosmet Klub today makes its announcement of ticket sales for its 1923 musical production, "The Yellow Lantern." Here is a play written entirely by a Nebraska student, produced by a cast of students under the direction of a student for a student audience. Members of the club announce that its theme is of a high standard. University authorities have recognized its worth by making the night of its showing, May 4, closed to all other student activities. The policy adopted of strict adherence to the "first come, first served" rule will be welcomed by all and is a rule that would be advantageously followed by other University organizations. No one doubts that tickets will be sold out almost immediately after being put on sale. The question which is uppermost in the minds of some is, why should only about twelve hundred students have a chance to see this play, so representative of Nebraska's student dramatic talent? Will not some chance be given to the other students and to the admirers of Kosmet productions throughout the community to witness the production? How about a matinee?

New officers for the Women's Self Government Association have been chosen. Co-eds who will direct this organization during the coming school year were elected Monday and Tuesday by vote of the W. S. G. A. members. This association is one of the largest groups on the campus and one of the strongest of its kind among the colleges of the middle-west. Its influence has always been thrown for the advancement of worthwhile projects along the line of women's self government. Leaders in this organization can do much to uphold the practical standards of efficiency set by their predecessors. Their wise leadership, though seemingly unnoticed by the majority of students, can do much to build finer ideals at Nebraska.

The formal ceremony of breaking ground for Nebraska's Memorial Stadium will be held on the stadium site one week from Thursday. This announcement will be hailed with joy by hundreds of students and alumni who have awaited the start of actual construction since the exciting days of the stadium drive. The solemn ceremony will be a great event in the undergraduate days of all those now in school. The stadium itself will be one of the finest in all this section of the country and its opening will be the signal for greater days in Nebraska athletics. Its opening will also be the signal for the commencement of closer relationships between the thousands of Nebraska grads and their alma mater. The program of the event has not been announced but will be carefully planned to include all elements which have gone together to make the realization of the day possible. Student organizations will doubtless play an important part in the exercises. Echoes of the fine Nebraska spirit aroused and pushed to the front by the stadium drive were heard only this week on the return of the director of athletics from the western coast where our track team recently competed with the national champions in their sport. His report was one of royal support of the stadium drive and of renewed pledges of loyalty to Nebraska. This spirit was a feature of the stadium campaign and has been welcomed by all. The ceremonies next week will in all probability portray this spirit—a spirit which is not new but which was dormant—a spirit which is to be known as the "New Nebraska Spirit" looking toward the rapid progress and ultimate leadership in all worthwhile lines of an all-around education.

Still greater emphasis on academic work—on scholarship—is the purpose of Nebraska schoolmen who are arranging for a series of scholarship contests at the University of Nebraska on Fete Day, May 12, and the preceding day, when the eleven district championship debating teams and when the track teams visit the University. On the suggestion of Principal J. G. Masters of the Omaha Central High School, a group of school officials met at the office of Chancellor Avery last week and organized interscholastic contests in English composition, spelling, first-year algebra, plane geometry, American History, and in second, third, and fourth-year Latin.

St. Louis, Mo.—Radio is a nuisance when it distracts students, circuit Judge Landwehr ruled, in effect, yesterday as he issued a permanent injunction restraining the Wenzel Electric company from operating a radio loud speaker in such a way as to interfere with the concentration of law students in a law college located in the same building.

BLOOMFIELD LOOSES TO PONCA DEBATERS

Bloomfield, Neb.—The debating team from the Ponca high school won the interscholastic debate from a team representing the Bloomfield high school here Saturday night. The decision of the judges was unanimously in favor of the visitors. The debate was to have been staged Friday evening but the Ponca team failed to arrive, their car getting mired in a stretch of almost impassible road. This was the local team's last debate; they won two and lost two.—The Lincoln Star.
