

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED IN OCTOBER

One Nebraska Student Will Be Selected to Study for Three Years at Oxford.

One student in the University of Nebraska will be selected, in October of this year, as a Rhodes Scholar. He will be entitled to three years' study at Oxford University with a yearly stipend of 350 pounds, or about $1,700.

Five candidates will be selected from the University, and one of these will be selected by the state committee. The candidates will be elected at such a date that they will be able to get their applications by October 27. The Rhodes Scholar will leave for England in October of 1924.

Four Nebraska men are now attending Oxford; two of these, Alfred Reese, Sioux City, and Woodson Spurlock, York, are from the University of Nebraska.

The candidate, to be eligible, must be an unmarried male citizen of the United States who has lived here at least five years. By the first of October of 1924 he must have passed his nineteenth, and not have passed his twenty-fifth birthday. By the first of October, 1924, he must have completed his sophomore year.

Candidates may apply either from the state in which they have their ordinary residence, or from the state where they have received two years of their college education. The committee of selection for Nebraska is Chancellor Samuel Avery, chairman; Paul F. Good, secretary, and probably Prof. J. A. Rice and H. A. Gunderson. All of these men with the exception of Chancellor Avery, are former Rhodes Scholars.

No restrictions are placed on what courses of study the Rhodes Scholars are to pursue, except of course, that they must be qualified.

Nebraska will have a student in 1924 and in 1925. A year will then be missed, and then students selected for the two following years, and so on, in rotation. If a candidate is disappointed one year, and is selected as a candidate the next year, this in no way disqualifies him for selection.

The candidates from the University of Nebraska must have their applications to Paul F. Good of, Lincoln, by October 27, 1923. The selected men may get blanks from him, or from Professor Rice. The selection of the one man who is to go will be made December 8.

A total of thirteen men have gone to Oxford from the State of Nebraska. Six of these men have come from the state University. Other schools which have been represented are as follows: Grand Island, Cotner, Hastings, Wesleyan, and Creighton. Two men who lived in Nebraska, but who went to schools outside the state, represented Yale and Cornell universities.

The qualities which will be considered by the state committee are: qualities of manhood, force of character, and leadership; literary and scholastic ability and attainments, and physical vigor as shown by interest in outdoor sports, or in other ways.

The ideal Rhodes Scholar should excel in all three of the qualities mentioned, but in the absence of such an ideal combination, the Committee will prefer a man who shows distinction either of character and personality, or of intellect, over one who shows a lower degree of excellence in both.

Participation and interest in open-air and athletic pursuits form an essential qualification for a Rhodes Scholar, but exceptional athletic distinction is not to be treated as of equal importance with the other requirements.

Under recent regulations of an "approved" degree from an "approved" University who have pursued a course of study at that University for three years at least can obtain "Senior Standing" at Oxford, which carries with it exemption from all examinations prior to the Final Honour Schools leading to the B.A. degree. Oxford University publishes no list of approved Universities. It is understood, however, that American students who hold a degree in Arts or Pure Science from a College or University on the list of Institutions accepted by the Association of American Universities do usually get Senior Standing.

Holders of technical degrees, or graduates of institutions not on the list approved by the Association of American Universities, or undergraduates who have not yet taken their degrees, must expect to receive Junior Standing, which gives one year's Standing, and carries with it exemption from Responsions, but not from the Intermediate examination. No applicant, however, can obtain Junior Standing whose college course has not included the study of two languages other than English, of which Latin or Greek must be one.

A candidate who does not satisfy the above conditions is not the less eligible for appointment. He will, however, be obliged to pass Responsions, which includes a simple examination in either Latin or Greek, before taking up his Scholarship, unless specially exempted therefrom on the ground of being qualified to read for an Advanced Degree. No candidate for an Oxford degree is required to show a knowledge of the Greek language.

An unusual number of openings is listed in the office of the Dean of the College of Engineering or near-graduates are need in positions covering a wide range of engineering work. The inquiries come from those who are seeking teachers, research men, commercial representatives, and young engineers who are interested in oil, cement, electric lighting, naval equipment, geodetic surveys, forest products, patent office work, radio, dust explosion, standards, reclamation work, manufacturing, telephony, etc. The dean's office has been unable to furnish applications in reply to all of these inquiries. There are also indications that there may be a plentiful supply of jobs for students who want summer work along engineering lines.

Scholarships or fellowships—Stanford University (electrical), American field service for French Universities, Chas. A. Coffin Foundation (electrical, physics, physical chemistry), University of Illinois, Iowa State College, American Scandinavian Foundation.

New business solicitors, electrical supply salesmen, electric lighting development engineers, testing positions with manufacturers, training with oil refining company, engineering positions with public utility companies, telephone engineering in the lines of research, construction, installation, operation, supervision and management.

Civil service positions as engineers, chemists and technologists in connection with forest products; radio engineers and inspectors; patent office examiners; men for Bureau of Standards; dust explosion prevention engineers; reclamation service.

Teaching positions in both eastern and middle west colleges of engineering.

setting up of scholarships. "In the theoretical aspects of life, European students are trained more thoroughly than are American students," Prasek continued. "In the practical aspects you in America are far ahead." Prasek noticed this difference particularly in his study of agriculture, he said. "In Czecho-Slovakia, agriculture is studied as a pure science, here in America it is studied as an applied art."

It is hard to tell whether that story about senators being drunk is offered as scandal or an alibi.

Phillip, Edward Asche. Sugarop, Irvin Green. Nicholas, John Major. Joseph, Henry Schepman. The scenery for the "Taming of the Shrew" was very remarkable. It was painted by Mr. Anders Haugseth, who teaches art in the drawing and painting department of the University. The scenes were all nicely chosen and mounted with much skill. Mr. Haugseth has done some very fine work for the Players.

The play was directed by Miss H. Alice Howell assisted by Mr. Herbert Yenne. The "Taming of the Shrew" will be repeated Friday evening and Saturday with an added matinee Saturday afternoon.

That "Extra Spare" Pair of Trousers—

FREE!

THEY CUT THE PRICE IN TWO

Have you ever figured that the true value of a suit should never be gauged by the original cost, but by the service it gives? With that extra pair, practically doubling the life of the Suit the price is materially reduced. Let us explain the "double wear" idea.

Men's and Young Men's Two-Trouser Suits at

It's something akin to sheer extravagance to discard a comparatively unimpaired coat and vest because the trousers have been undermined by the more strenuous wear to which trousers invariably succumb.

An extra pair of trousers with your Suit means fully an extra season's wear—a salvage that means economy plus good appearance. These Suits all include extra trousers without extra cost.

Here you'll find all the popular patterns, the better woolens and workmanship without a blemish. Our assortment includes stripes, diamond checks, diagonals, plaids, herringbones and mixtures in a selection of models covering sports styles, Norfolks, fitted and conservative styles. And the price is so low and quality of the garments so high that every man with an eye to economy will attend this special event.
