Welcome to the high school men and women of Nebraska who are visiting the University today to celebrate High School Fete Day!

Sessions of the Nebraska State Historical Teachers' Association are open to students. Those interested in history, economics, and geography will do well to review the program carefully and take advantage of the fine talks and discussions.

The decision to prohibit campus organizations which are in debt from proceeding with further activities which may lead to increased indebtedness unless the members of those organizations personally guarantee the financial success of the new enterprise should meet with widespread approval.

Deficits at the student activities office for organizations in which there is no accepted method of checking expenditures have been growing for several years. The new ruling should be effective in stopping any further careless expenditure of society funds. With a personal guarantee by all members, there is bound to be a more efficient handling of organization finances.

Convocation today will interest all University students. For many it will be the first opportunity to hear the man who has been officially named by the state legislature as Nebraska's poet laureate—John G. Neihardt.

Not all classes have been dismissed for the assembly so that there will be some that cannot hear the noted poet. Arrangements to have another convocation addressed by Mr. Neihardt at a different time of day should be made to give all students an opportunity to hear the man who has been urged as a member of the faculty of the University. Nebraskans have a chance to show how much they want Mr. Neihardt connected with this institution.

Interest in the inspection of the R. O. T. C. unit here by officers of the United States Army to determine whether or not it will receive the rank of "honor unit" increases as the day of review approaches. Early next week, the men of the military department will be examined and all students will have an opportunity to see the maneuvers.

Nebraska's fine showing at the summer camp at Fort Snelling last summer was largely responsible for the opportunity which came this spring to have the inspection of the local unit. That more enthusiasm for the summer camp has been shown this spring than ever before is a good indication that the men of the regiment are working to make the review a success and to place Nebraska military department on a recognized par with any in the country.

"A strong finish marks a good race." This is true in all lines of endeavor. With but a few weeks of the college year remaining, the expression might be of particular significance when applied to scholastic work at this institution.

With the usual exodus of below grades at mid-semester, and the like exodus of some of the students, each worthy son of Penn State made an earnest vow—perhaps it was only a resolution—to get to work and place himself well beyond the danger line. These resolutions were made in good faith, but alas, they were not kept in good faith. There is a tendency among students to reserve the old adage "never put off until tomorrow what you can do today," and give it the more modern interpretation of "never do today what you can put off until tomorrow." And this is not unusual. Procrastination is probably the most popular of the many vices which attach themselves to everyday life—and few are immune therefrom.

But now that the semester is nearing a close, it is time to sprint. Especially does this pertain to those students who have been misled at the start by the wily "thief of time." A final spurt oft-times places a runner in the lead. This might be made applicable to scholastic work as well. Sprint, before it is too late—Penn State Collegian.

SENIORS NEED CARS FOR ANNUAL PICNIC

Anyone Having Automobiles Should Confer with J. Wilbur Wolfe — Underclassmen Excused.

Faculty members are especially urged to arrange to accompany the members of the senior class on their annual picnic to be given this year at Morkey's Park on May 17. Any faculty member who can provide a car to assist in transportation of the graduating class to Crete is requested to notify J. Wilbur Wolfe at the Bushnell Guild house.

Underclassmen who can furnish automobiles to take seniors to the picnic on May 17 are also asked to communicate with Mr. Wolfe. Excuses will be granted students who can furnish sufficient transportation, according to announcement from the office of the Executive Dean.

Chancellor and Mrs. Avery, who are providing the picnic lunch for the affair, drove to Crete Wednesday to make final arrangements for the dinner, which will be served under the trees in Horkey's Park.

The boats will be in condition for the day, and there will be plenty of them, according to present plans. The dance floor in the pavilion has been put into condition, and music will be furnished by a popular University orchestra.

If the groom is poor and bald and bow-legged, it is romance pure and undefiled.

Another good way to get et thin to music is to keep on working while the dinner bell rings.
