DEAN PHILO BUCK WELCOMED HOME AFTER LONG TRIP

Nebraska Exchange Professor with Prof. Joshi Is Back After Seven Months Stay in Orient.

TRAVELED THRU EUROPE

Dean Buck Lectured at Practically All Indian Universities Upon Subject of American Literature.

Philo M. Buck, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, returned Thursday morning at 10:15 from a seven-months' stay in India, China and Japan. Dean Buck was on an exchange professorship with Prof. S. L. Joshi of Baroda, India. While in India, Dean Buck lectured at every Indian University except one, on the subject of "The Political and Social Ideas in American Literature."

Dean Buck returned by way of Egypt and Sicily, spending some time in Italy visiting Florence, Rome, Genoa and Naples. He also traveled through France stopping at Paris for a short time. He also visited the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge in England. Coming into Montreal, Dean Buck's ship was stuck for three days in the ice which had floated down the St. Lawrence river. The ice which was four feet thick held up a number of ships. The steamer carrying the Dean was the first to break through the ice into the harbor of Montreal.

"The political situation in India is very interesting and I had the opportunity to be intimately in touch with it," Dean Buck declared. He explained that as the guest of the Indian government and as the guest of various Indian princes he had the chance to get first-hand impressions of the political question. The Dean was also the guest of the Indian Radical party which is attempting to overthrow the English government. He was the only European at a Congress of the Radical Party which lasted three days and was attended by 10,000 Indians.

Dean Buck reported that the Indian Universities are filled with students. There are 10,000 attending the University of Calcutta, and there are between 8,000 and 9,000 attending the University of Bombay. The Indian Universities with two or three exceptions, according to Dean Buck, are government institutions supported by taxation. One difference in control, Dean Buck pointed out, is that in India the Universities are not controlled by boards elected by the people as they are in the United States. The Indian Universities are controlled by boards appointed by the English or Indian governments.

"Our Universities touch the life of the state much more than do the Indian Universities," Dean Buck stated. He further explained that American Universities have agricultural colleges, and departments that develop and conserve the nature of the state. Such departments are practically unknown in India. Most of the Universities have Colleges of Medicine and Law, although there are only two engineering colleges in the whole country.

CHANCELLOR ASKS FOR AUTOMOBILES FOR SENIOR PICNIC

Graduating Class Will Hold Annual Funfest at Horky's Park at Crete.

The senior class picnic, which this year is scheduled for May 17, is being planned by the members of the special class committee appointed by the president of the class. The following letter comes from Chancellor Avery, who with Mrs. Avery has heretofore furnished the entire entertainment for the affair:

To the Faculty Members, Students and Friends of the Graduating Class:

Owing to the increasing size of the class and the increasing efficiency of student managers, Mrs. Avery and I will undertake to furnish only an ample noon-day luncheon and our good will for the class picnic to be held at Horky's Park, Crete, May 17. Transportation, boating, dancing and games will be entirely in charge of appropriate class committees. On behalf of the class chairman, however, I should deem it a favor if an who conveniently can will drive their cars to Crete loaded with seniors. Those who render this service are cordially invited by Mrs. Avery and myself to participate in the luncheon and by the officers of the class to participate in all the other festivities. The chairman of the committee on transportation is J. Wilbur Wolf, who can be reached during business hours at the office of Dean LeRossignol, and after business hours at the Bushnell Guild house. I have suggested to him that many of the faculty will wish to take students in their own colleges or classes. It will, however, be convenient to have a number of cars in front of the Administration Building at eight o'clock in order to take those for whom other arrangements have not been made.

Thanking you for the co-operation that you have shown in the past, I remain
Cordially yours,
S. AVERY.

REGISTRATION FOR NEXT YEAR BEGINS MONDAY MORNING

Every Student Who Is Coming Back Next Fall Must Complete Enrollment This Week.

TO PAY FEES IN SUMMER

School Will Open September 20 Heaviest Registration Ever Recorded Is Expected.

Registration for the first semester of 1923-24 will begin Monday, May 14, for all students except those graduating this June. Every student who is not positive that he will not be attending the University next September must register during the week of May 14 to 19, according to Dean C. C. Engberg. Those students who do not register during the early spring week, will be liable to the late registration fee which is collected in the fall when extra registration occurs. Registration in the College of Agriculture begins Tuesday on the other campus. Sophomores in the college should see the Dean before registration. Some time during the summer each student who registers in the spring will be informed as to the amount of his fees, which will be payable by September 8. A check may be mailed to cover these fees. The fees as listed in the catalog will be changed, but they cannot be announced until the Board of Regents has decided on the amounts. Students who do not register at the proper time, or who do not pay their fees by the eighth of September will be required to register and pay a late registration fee.

Registration will be done with the advisers, as it was done last January. Each student will make out his schedule of classes and his statement of outside activities. The adviser will approve of the schedule.

New students will register in the fall beginning September 17, and classes will start for the first semester of the coming year on September 20. Registration for the coming year promises to be heavier than ever in the past.

It is asked by the administration of the University that students try to arrange their classes to last throughout the time, and that at least one-third of the classes be scheduled in the afternoon. This request is made necessary by the congestion of morning classes at the present time.

TO OFFER COURSE IN BIBLICAL LITERATURE

James Muilenburg, Author of Widely-Praised Book on the Bible, Will Give the Course.

"The Bible as Literature" is to be the title of a course to be offered next semester in the University by James Muilenburg, the author of "Specimens of Biblical Literature," published recently. English 141 and 142 as the course is to be called, will acquaint the student with the forms of literature represented in the scriptures, according to the prospectus in the new Arts and Science bulletin.

The first semester of the course takes up the study of Biblical narrative and poetry; the second semester devotes attention particularly to the gospel, essay, oratory, and letter.

The course is expected to be of particular interest to students in the light of recent press discussion regarding the ignorance of students on the scriptural questions.

Mr. Muilenburg's book which it is expected will be used as a text in the course is described by the North American Review as "an admirable compilation, well arranged with copious, scholarly notes, intended as an academic textbook, but equally adapted to general reading," and by Dr. Henry Van Dyke as "a well arranged and carefully edited volume, likely to be useful in promoting the deeper study of the Bible through an interest in its wonderful value as literature."

Today is Mother's Day, When Everyone Does Homage to Mother

It is Sunday morning, and the church bells are ringing their call to worship. In the little church on the corner, the choir is marching in to the strains of the organ while in the pews the families sit with the flowers in the buttonholes of the men, and the small corsages on the dresses of the women.

A bright spot of color here and a white gloom there show the difference in the people who have the dear mothers still with them, and those others whose mothers live only in the memories of that which has gone before. Here is an older man, wearing the snowy carnation and here is his son, wearing another flower of the same hue. There a mother sits with her daughter, and here a son sits alone, the red flower on his coat shining bravely forth in token of the mother "back home."

Across the aisle is a young man who seems absorbed in thought as the minister comes in from the vestry. In silence the audience awaits the singing of the first song.

There is a mother surrounded by all the members of her family. Surely none of them are missing. There is the husband and father of the brood, and beside the parents sit the children, each wearing the red flower which pays a silent tribute to the little woman there beside them.

Two sons in college, a daughter in the high school, and three of the little children who are still in the grammar grades—all of them coming with the older members of the family, to be together on the day which is set aside for the Mother who is the center of the home.

But do we think of the mothers in the other towns in the state whose daughters and sons are here? Do we stop to wonder what our mothers are doing today, while we are going about our own affairs?

On Mother's Day, do we stop to send to Mother that fleeting thought which will mean so much to her, and will give us even more of the joy of the love of Mother?

R.O.T.C. INSPECTORS ARRIVE IN LINCOLN

Major Henry Bull and Major Kingman to Examine Nebraska Unit Monday.

Major Henry T. Bull, of the office of the chief of cavalry, and Major Ralph W. Kingman, of the office of the chief of infantry, arrived in Lincoln last evening at 8 o'clock to inspect the R. O. C. T. unit and determine whether or not Nebraska shall be designated as an honor school. The inspectors will examine the theoretical instruction, the equipment, and the cadets in action. The cadets will be inspected and will pass in review Monday afternoon.

Certain colleges are designated by the War department as "Distinguished Colleges" following an inspection on the following phases: Indoor and outdoor facilities for training and instruction; support of the R. O. T. C. by the institution; support of the R. O. T. C. by the student body; efficiency of the theoretical instruction; and the efficiency of the practical instruction and training. Not to exceed 20 per cent of the colleges are granted this honor. The quota is full at the present time; so Nebraska, in order to gain the honor, will have to displace some other college.

If Nebraska is awarded this honor, five per cent of the Nebraska seniors in the military department may be designated as "Honor Graduates" and be eligible for appointment as second lieutenants in the regular army without examination. The cadets will be privileged to wear gold stars on their sleeves, and the University will be listed as a "Distinguished College" in the War department publications.

The inspecting officers will be entertained at a luncheon Monday by Major Sidney Erickson of the Military department. Mrs. Erickson will be the hostess at a Monday evening dinner honoring the officers. Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity, will give a luncheon Tuesday for the officers and Tuesday evening they will attend the dinner of the Reserve Officers' association.
