OUR SYSTEM OF CREDITS.

In this University, where many students come not to be students, it is impossible for the various undergraduate systems to be broken down in favor of systems that are more sensible and more logical. It seems to be the general frame of mind among professors that the system of grading as a means of measuring knowledge is not desirable.

With the undergraduate body of students that come here for hundreds of different reasons, and many of them not compatible with the interests of the institution, it is almost impossible for a scheme to be devised that would do away with the grade and credit system as now practiced by American colleges.

Where students are put upon their honor to study, where no grades are given, where professors lecture without caring whether students attend class or not, a better understanding of the purpose of a university is found and they are better men who leave the doors of such an institution.

UNDERSTANDING.

In these days of initiation into college life there doubtless is recurring time and again to the mind of the freshmen that eternal question "Why?"

He probably found registration a bewildering task—trips from office to office, seeing deans, and getting permits or reprieves until finally out of the chaos of it he emerged with a workable schedule. He wonders why all this could not have been arranged without so much formality of getting signatures and special permissions.

The administration of the University is a very highly specialized business. The division of authority is very complicated, and if the orders of one chief of department were duplicated or reversed by another, it would make a hopeless mess-out of things.

The existence of rules and regulations are explainable not only as prohibitions as such, but because of a reason "why." The open and closed nights mean more than a time when we may be permitted to play or be kept from playing. Attending classes regularly means more than making or failing to make a passing grade.

There is much to learn in a University besides that which is found in books. A few days of routine work bring a faint glimmer of understanding. The "why" is answerable and understanding of college in its several phases will bring enlightenment.

WE SOON FORGET.

In this world of hurry, action, and extreme curiosity, where every man has fallen into a homogenous mass, we soon forget. Events that startle the world, topics that one day draw forth sorrow or joy are soon forgotten. There is no time for retrospection. There are too many goals ahead.

A short time ago the nation lost its leader. For a week there was room for nothing in the minds of men but the untimely death of President Harding. Today, but six weeks later, there is little thought of the man who was. War, love, hate, all emotions and actions draw forth a short spasmodic display and then die like a flame of powder.

Merely Opinion

The University Y. M. C. A. will give the remainder of the "N" books to the upperclassmen. Every day since this organization has been giving the books to freshmen, others have been trying to get copies. The little book, with decided improvements, has made it handy and useful to others than freshmen. The calendar of university events, the memorandum sheets, and the size of the book makes it valuable.

A student going to several classes every day is certain to meet professors as different as the classes. With the beginning of this session, the difference in personalities of instructors and methods of teaching makes more of an impression upon the student than it would later in the semester. Members of the faculty, with their many years of association with various types of man and woman certainly realize the importance of the first few classes.

Football circles are getting stirred up over the proximity of the Nebraska-Illinois game. It is unique in the annals of football and it indicates the advances that are being made in football by such men as Dawson and Zuppke.

How many students know that there are more than a hundred men out for three hours every day trying to get a chance to represent Nebraska as a member of her football team? Football is important here. Follow it. Follow the team. Be ready to support them. You are a Nebraskan. They are Nebraskans representing Nebraska.

Of ancient rivals, Nebraska has defeated Ames thirteen out of nineteen times. One of the other six games was a tie.

During the thirty-two campaigns on the football field, Nebraska has emerged fifteen times with the score tied. Three of these ties have been with Iowa university, two with Minnesota, and two with the Kansas City Medics.

During its football career Nebraska has played teams from all sections of the country. Northwestern, CCincinnati, Chicago university, Syracuse, Rutgers and Penn State are some of the games which appear in the columns of Husker gridiron contests.

The only state school that ever won from the Huskers was Doane. It happened in 1891 in the second game of three which the Doane-State

The all-victorious years numbered in Nebraska category are 1890, 1903, 1913, 1914 and 1915. In 1914 Nebraska and South Dakota played to a scoreless tie.

Winning 156 out of 213 games in thirty-two seasons of football, the Nebraska Cornhuskers have maintained a winning record percentage of .733. Out of every ten games played, the Cornhuskers have carried off the honors in more than seven of them.

In the single games figures are included defeats administered one each to Wisconsin, Northwestern, Chicago, Wabash, Oregon Aggies, Pittsburgh and Rutgers; defeats at the hands of William Jewell, St. Louis, Carles Indians, Washington State, Pennsylvania State, and Washington university.

With Us

A valuable asset to any college man or woman.

No man or woman can really be successful in their life's work without having a definite aim or policy. It is the very same with a store. Unless a store establishes a rating and has a definite policy and pursues it diligently it cannot be expected to be recognized by the masses.

Mr. Shire had one purpose in mind when he became sole owner of this big store and that was to be of real public service, to supply your needs at the minimum of cost, consistent with quality and to cap the climax, every sale was to be made with the distinct understanding that the purchase must prove entirely satisfactory or the original purchase price shall be promptly refunded. There is no better time than now to become acquainted with us and our methods. Come in and open your charge account and become established with us. You will be pleased and will wonder how you have overlooked buying here before.
