HUSKERS READY FOR PASS GAME WITH JAYHAWKS

Coach Patsy Clark, Famous Quarterback from Illinois, Always Puts Out Real Team, Says Scribe.

MEYERS AND RHODES HURL THE SPHEROID

Dopester Expects Kansans to Uncork Bewildering Trick Plays at Homecoming Day Game.

With the first Missouri Valley game of the season tucked carefully away in their win column, the "fighting Cornhuskers" are earnestly preparing for their second Valley game next Saturday when the Jayhawkers from Kansas appear for their yearly battle royal.

Coach Patsy Clark, one of the best quarterbacks ever produced at Illini U., always puts out a real football team at K. U. Patsy is noted for his trick plays and formations and every time his team takes the field they uncover a series of trick plays and formations that bewilder all opponents. The Jayhawkers will appear on the stadium field Saturday with some new plays that never have been used in Valley circles.

The Cornhuskers are after the passing game in full tilt now and some changes have been instituted in the varsity lineup. Meyers and Rhodes, both of whom showed up to good advantage at ends in the Oklahoma game Saturday, were in the backfield Monday shooting passes right and left. Rhodes hurled them with his left hand and Meyers with his right.

New passing formations were employed and many long and short passes were completed. McAllister, Collins, and Noble are using that old baseball grab on 'em and they get 'em. With Meyers and Rhodes off the wing positions McAllister and Collins are the best bets for the next game, although Ed Weir may be shifted from a tackle to an end. McAllister's shiftness and ability to handle passes is a great asset to the line.

Bassett and Weir, regular tackles, were not out in moleskins because of minor injuries sustained in the Sooner game Saturday but they will no doubt report Tuesday for a light workout.

Two teams were in action Monday and both of them were playing a passing game. One team was composed of Collins, McAllister and Popelar, ends; Halbersleben and McGlennen tackles, Berquist and Hubka guards, Hutchison center, Rufus Dewitz quarter, Noble and Rhodes, halves, and Doug Meyers full. The other team had Volz and Robertson at ends, Hendrickson and Johnson at tackles, Packer and Posposil at guards, Westoupal at center, Chuck Gately calling signals, Herb Dewitz and Locke at halfbacks, and Ced Hartman at fullback.

Schulte Must Begin Again to Build Champion Track Squad

For three consecutive years Nebraska's track team has won the championship of the Missouri Valley. In 1921, 1922, and 1923, the Cornhusker cinder path artists, "super-coached" by Henry F. "Indian" Schulte, captured first place in the conference track and field competition, and thus earned the permanent right to the possession of the Valley track championship cup.

Handicapped as they were by the lack of a regular field or track to work on, the 1923 Scarlet and Cream spiked-shoe performers stepped out and won the Valley meet with one first, seven seconds, five thirds, and five fourths, an accomplishment unparalleled in conference track history.

Some may ask how the Huskers could win the Valley when they had no field to work out regularly on. Coach Schulte declares that fall training, indoor training, and large numbers out were responsible for the winning feat. And Schulte ought to know, for he developed three Valley championship track teams in four years at Nebraska, after Nebraska had participated in track for thirteen years and never won a single championship.

But the large numbers of men out and the momentum gained by the Husker track team in three years were lost in 1923 when the Husker track squad found itself without a field to work on. The huge track squad, consisting of well over 300 men during the indoor season, dwindled to a bare handful of fifty men during the outdoor season. Coach Schulte's four years' work in building up the track squad was lost.

This fall Coach Schulte has to start all over again to build up a Nebraska track team which will clean up the Valley as it has the past three years. Only the whole-hearted and earnest support of every man in school will enable him to accomplish the impossible, and develop another championship track team in 1924. His program calls for an intensified period of fall training, followed by weeks of hard work indoors. He is asking every prospective track man to report at once to him or Captain Mud Gardner, who will help the trackster to get equipped and to begin his fall training.

On November 3, an open date in football, an inter-college track meet will be run off as a fall tryout for all prospective track men. Varsity men who take part in this meet will enter with a definite handicap. See the track bulletin board for further details.

Coach Schulte wants 500 men out for track in 1924! Nebraska can do it! Report today!

NOTRE DAME TEAM WINS FROM ARMY

Aerial Attack and Defensive Work Responsible for Irish Victory.

The center of interest in last Saturday's football contests was the Notre Dame-Army game which Rockne's Irish won 13 to 0. The defensive work of the Irish was perfect, the Army failing to make a first down in the game.

The Notre Dame team which is light this year is exceptionally fast and as usual they are playing a passing game. After battling the Army to a scoreless tie in the first half the Catholics uncorked a brilliant pass in which they took the ball to Army's 15 yard line. On the fourth down with ten yards to go Struldreher passed to Layden for another touchdown.

Notre Dame's second touchdown came after Crowley had intercepted one of the Army's passes, taking the ball to the Army's 25 yard line. An end run netted fifteen yards and D. Miller took the oval ten yards for a touchdown.

The work of the Army's brilliant backs was completely over-shadowed by the deadly tackling of Notre Dame. The Irish team will meet Princeton at Princeton October 20, Georgia Tech at South Bend October 17, and Purdue at South Bend before meeting Nebraska here on Armistice day. Notre Dame has this year one of the hardest schedules of any team in the United States.

The Armistice day game will be the ninth annual clash of Nebraska and the Irish. Of the eight games played, Notre Dame has won four, Nebraska three, and one game was a tie.

Educational Society Awards Scholarship

Pi Lambda Theta, honorary educational society for women, has voted a scholarship of $1000 for graduate research in the field of education, to be awarded to a woman holding the Master's degree who has done significant work in the field of education and has plans for further research.

The University of Nebraska Teachers College has Omicron chapter Pi Lambda Theta, which was installed last year. Miss Gladys Rice was the Nebraska delegate to the convention which met in Chicago during the summer.

To Sell Single Student Tickets

Individual tickets in the student section for any of the football games, can be secured from the Student Activities Office in the Armory for $2.00. This arrangement has been made to enable the alumni of student organizations who come to the games to sit with the active chapter, as well as for the accommodation of students who cannot see all the games. Orders should be sent in at once as they are filled in the order that the checks are received.
