STOCK-JUDGING TEAM GOES TO KANSAS CITY

Nebraska Agricultural College to Compete in Famous Shows.

Nebraska will enter a team at the American royal livestock show that is to be staged at Kansas City, November 1 to 24. Five men and one alternate will leave about November 15 and judge on the first day of the show. The following week will be spent in practice judging at the show and on big stock farms of the vicinity.

The team will return to Lincoln and entrain for Chicago about November 23, where they will spend a week judging on the foremost stock farms of America. On December 1 the team will enter a stiff competition in the international livestock show.

The poultry department will also send a team of three men from the trades school. They will judge at the American royal poultry and pet stock show. This show is held in connection with the livestock show in Kansas City in November. Last year the Nebraska team won third place and one of the men was second in individual honors. A silver cup is offered for the highest team and three medals to highest individuals. A college team in poultry judging will go to America's largest show, the coliseum poultry show in Chicago, on December 13.

Spencer Flint, Walter C. Johnson, Robert Manley and Ole Best of Omaha were visitors at the Delta Tau Delta house Saturday.

Sadie Finch, '21, who was very prominent in student activities and a member of the Delta Gamma and Valkyries, is traveling abroad.

Henry W. Campbell, '17, captain of the basketball team of 1917, is engaged in the banking business at Elgin, Nebr.

J. T. M. Pearson, '14, former football star, is connected with the vocational education department at St. Louis.

WILL DEDICATE NEW STADIUM NEXT SATURDAY

year he was inaugurated president of Lehigh University.

The Kansas students are to attend in a body and take part in the exercises. The delegation of Nebraska students who journeyed to the Nebraska-Kansas game last year at Lawrence, took part in the dedication exercises held in the new stadium there at that time.

The gigantic stadium which is to be dedicated next Saturday is built as a memorial to the sons of Nebraska who lost their lives in the World War. The construction is being financed by popular subscription. Last year a campaign was carried on in the state and among the students of the University, and every student, alumnus, and member of the faculty was given a chance to subscribe. Lincoln and Omaha business men's subscriptions swelled the total until the necessary amount had been secured.

On April 26, 1923, Chancellor Avery broke ground for the stadium. Members of the N club and the Women's Athletic Association formed a huge "N" and the Chancellor plowed a furrow through its center. Other speakers on the program that day were Regent J. R. Webster, of Omaha, Guy C. Chambers of the Nebraska Alumni Association, and Governor Charles W. Bryan, representing the State of Nebraska.

The cornerstone of the stadium was laid during the Cornhusker Roundup last spring. Bion J. Arnold of Chicago, who received the degree of engineer in 1897, and the honorary degree of doctor of engineering in 1911, gave the main address.

In the warfare for the conquest of truth the intellect must continually consolidate its positions, preliminary to further advance movements, by bringing the whole life up even with itself.

In the school of agnosticism the pupil is marked perfect every time he answers, "I don't know."

Freshmen Now Planning Annual Clash

"Are you going to get in the Olympics," a Freshman was heard asking another of the Frosh between classes. "Naw let the big guys do the rough stuff," retorted this diminutive wearer of the green.

"Well, I'm going to get into the fray even if I am not a young Hercules and do take a chance of getting roughed up a bit," remarked the first speaker.

"It's too hard on clothes, let alone your map," the little fellow countered indignantly.

"They can't damage my features any worse than they are now," the other said laughingly, "and I've got old clothes, in fact more of them than any other kind." Take it from me I may not be able to do very much, but on the other hand—and accident might happen, and I intend to let somebody know I'm there. For one I crave to wear a hat once in a while in place of this verdant mark of distinction."

War is a temporary injunction issued by man suspending the commandments of God and the beatitudes of Jesus.

Ask a Scotchman for bread, and he will give you a score.

When things look very dark, God is always willing to light a lamp.

The so-called conflict between science and religion is really a quarrel between the science of today and that of yesterday.

The Christmas season has come to mean the period when the public plays Santa Claus to the merchants.

A man is free if he can do as he wishes whatever the devil may say.

If hell is paved with good intentions, it is at least a feat of engineering to pave a bottomless pit.

The annual man at 40 is "a has-been," and at 70 he is "a dead one," but the spiritual man feels his life continually enlarging and soaring toward the sunrise.

Religion is the enacting clause without which the laws of ethics are void.

To expect adequate refreshment for the human spirit from mere pleasure is like gathering dew drops and blowing upon them to keep them moist.

The backbone on which many people pride themselves amounts to little below the seventh vertebra.

An inert mass of undigested learning has been known to sour on the brain. Thus it produces gases and causes the head to swell out of all proportion to its solid contents.

Many have not room in their minds for both science and faith. Some therefore exclude science, others exclude faith, but the right solution of the problem is to enlarge the mind.

The grave-digger is an excavator for the foundations of paradise.

Instead of complaining because you have a disease, rejoice that multitudes of physicians have waxed rich on ailments which you have wholly escaped.

There is nothing like gasoline to clean cobwebs out of brains.

The fact that ministers live longer than any other class of people shows that they can no more die on their salaries than they can live on them.

When a man enlarges his effort, God enlarges him.

It is well to remember, my son, that the entire population of the universe, with one trifling exception, is composed of others.

Sin is sand in the eyes of the soul. Some militarists believe that the way to get to heaven is to prepare for hell. Others of them prefer hell.

What a blessed piece of hypocrisy to smile when one does not feel like it!

In ceasing to be wild and superstitious is there not danger that we may become tame, domesticated and prosaic?

True, a man should be square, but he may cushion his corners a bit.
