HUSKERS LEAVE THURSDAY.
Nebraska's football team will leave Thursday to meet the Missouri Tigers. Last year the Huskers beat Missouri by the sad count of 48 to 0. Missouri struck a hard knot last year and had bad luck generally. She is coming back this year and will be on the field to hold the Huskers down as Kansas did.

It is expected that Nebraska will beat Missouri and it was expected that Nebraska would beat Kansas. We will know only when the whistle ends the game. In the meantime fight with the team. There is a rally Thursday at 1 o'clock.

PAY YOUR PLEDGE.
The slogan is now, "Pay Your Pledge." This is meant for upperclassmen who promised a sum to the stadium last year. It is being paid in installments extending over a period of several years. There should be no difficulty in meeting the second installment.

WEAR THAT CAP.
The Iron Sphinx is striking. It is time for freshmen to take heed. That green cap is a tradition that means neither disgrace nor contempt. It should be pride, for you are now a student in the University of Nebraska. That name represents an institution that is a leader in the world. To maintain its position, it needs loyal students. Take the green cap ordeal in the right spirit and you will soon be a real Cornhusker.

WHAT DO OTHERS GET?
With all due respect for the athletics in the University of Nebraska and laying aside all but suppositions, it is certainly noticeable that the scholar receives no reward that measures up to that received by athletes. This has long been considered a fallacy of the system now in vogue. Feeble attempts have been made to make the situation more equal.

The N is a distinction of great honor on the campus and it is with a great measure of pride that every student wears it. But the time-worn question again arises, what do the others get? There are hundreds of men and women on the campus who give hours every day to the progress of this University. They are not getting any permanent recognition.

The athletic department has taken the lead by giving the student managers the coveted letter. Other departments would certainly do well to assert themselves in a similar manner.

WORKING STUDENTS.
There are a greater number of students working their way through the University of Nebraska but there is no real sacrifice in so doing. Lincoln is tuned up to student labor and expects to hire students for many tasks. Everyone has a great admiration for the student who works, or rather they have a great amount of admiration for the principle of the thing.

It is often said that there is a great amount of encouragement given given men and women working their way through school, but that encouragement does not come from the students who do not work. There are too many students trying to form a line in the University and that line is one between the working and the non-working student.

When the more fortunate student talks to the working student, it is always with a tone of sympathy, but when it comes to picking men for a job or allowing him to enter school activities, the working student is considered as such and is usually given the bench to hold down.

Neither statistics nor figures can prove such assertions, but personal observation certainly can. There are bitter truths and tragedies in the lives of every student and they are not pleasant to present.

Student Opinion.

Contributions to this column are very welcome and invited. Student opinion is valuable to the editorial staff of the paper, consequently we welcome it.

A copy of the following letter was sent to Chancellor Avery by the writer of it. This student as been warned to wear his green cap. The Iron Sphinx have threatened to give him the usual punishment and he has objected in the name of the injustice in the entire proceedings. He presents his case as follows:

I am one among the several thousand students enrolled in the University of Nebraska and I have very little influence with the policies of the University, but I would like to get an expression of your official opinion in regard to the matters which I will mention later.

I am a freshman, and of course, I am very inexperienced. I had formed several opinions of the University before my matriculation, which I now find are utterly false. I had the illusion that the University was a democratic institution which fostered a profound respect for law and order as well as to educate. I now find that not only the students of the University but also a large number of the faculty are far from ideal. Far from being democratic, they foster a spirit of aristocracy and an absolute disregard for law and order.

When I came to Lincoln I was, in popular phraseology, "as green as they make them." It was the first time that I had been away from home and I looked and felt it. I was awkward, my trousers bagged at the knees, I was entirely ignorant of University life. I was greatly humiliated by the low grades I received for I stood at the head of my class in high school. I could see the difference between myself and the upperclassmen, and it smarted bitterly when they flaunted their "polish" in my face. If someone had placed a green cap on my head at that time, or in any way had added to my humiliation it would not have been possible for me to have remained in school.

The green cap drive is the culmination of many events which convinced me of the fact that the University fosters a spirit of aristocracy. The green cap divides the students into two classes, freshman and those who are not freshman. The freshman are to be "snubbed" by the upperclassmen at every possible opportunity and the upper classmen have the support of the faculty.

I believed that the University, as all institutions of education should, instilled a respect for law and order. Tonight I was visited by a group of a dozen upper classmen who demanded that I wear the green cap and threatened physical violence in case I did not comply with their demands. Is this law and order? Is it in accordance with American ideals?

Several times when I have been threatened and have said that I would sue any man who bodily harmed me, I have been told that there was money enough behind this movement to bribe all the courts in Nebraska.

This is the kind of respect for law and order which the University instills.

You may say that I look upon the matter in the wrong light. You may say that the purpose of the green cap is to get the freshmen acquainted. You may say that the green cap fosters a school spirit.

But I say that there are other means of making the freshmen acquainted, ways that will not cause this unnecessary humiliation. A button, such as the freshmen girls wear would distinguish the freshmen from the upper classmen sufficiently well for that purpose and without making a clown of the wearer.

I know from actual contact with other freshmen who have spinelessly submitted to this outrage, that it provokes, not a spirit of loyalty, but a spirit of bitterness towards the institution they ought to respect.

Now, as I said at the beginning, my opinions are of very little consequence and as one professor puts it, "The University would not close down if you left." But I feel very bitter toward what seems to me to be a great wrong.

Reply.

In answer to this letter, the editor of this paper will try to offer him a bit of enlightenment, for what seems to be the basis for his attack upon this institution.

Freshman, you have adopted the wrong attitude toward the University of Nebraska. You are indeed one of the several thousand here, but you are as important as anyone else. Numbers do not cause your personal value to diminish. You are important to this institution and no straight thinking professor would have allowed himself to be author of the statement that the "University

The Rag Doll says that the thing she likes best about serenades is that they discourage the alley cats.

John, didn't the clock just strike four.
Sh'd say not so. It jus' struck one repeatedly. Didn't you hear?

Apparently if some freshmen still consider the wearing of their green caps a matter of individual choice, they are apt to contribute to the shortage of barrel staves in this immediate vicinity. Yon noble organization, the Innocents, prescribe no gentle treatment for the next culprits. A dent on the dome for dumbbells ought not be insufficient.

You cannot eat a doughnut And eat a doughnut whole. Unless you eat the doughnut And leave the doughnut hole.

would not close down if you left." Professors are human and have their eccentricities that must be discounted.

Upperclassmen certainly have cause to feel grieved to think that freshmen feel "snubbed." There is certainly a fine spirit at Nebraska that should make every freshman feel that he is a part of the institution. The rallies, barbecue, convocation, Olympics, and many other things are dedicated to first-year men and women.

You have, for some reason or other, adopted an antagonistic attitude toward the University. You seem to have some bolsheviki tendency in you. You are not seeing clearly. When you come to school some morning and see the campus dotted with green caps, do you feel that every person under those caps is spineless? Do you think that they are imbeciles who will disgrace the University? Thousands wear those caps every year and thousands accept the tradition in the right attitude. You have cast your vote in the negative against the sentiment of many thousands. Have you stopped to consider the performance of your act?

No man or woman in the University would be in favor of allowing bodily injury to go unpunished. You will not be injured seriously by an organization that allows itself to bear the title of a university organization. Tolerance never has been and never will be granted lawlessness in the University. You know the name of the organization that has been after you. If you feel that there is attempted assault, you have protection. However, the editor is of the opinion that you are allowing your anger to better discretion.

Think over the tradition and real purpose of the green cap. Consider the pro and con of the question. Ask alumni, faculty members, and upperclassmen. If there isn't an overwhelming vote in favor of the traditional green cap for freshmen, then, it is quite certain that your objections will be declared valid. Thousands of men do it every year. Hundreds of universities and colleges do it and yet you object. That is unfortunate for you.

Nebraska needs you and every other freshman. You do not need a reprimand, you need enlightenment. Wear your green cap. Be a real Cornhusker and the institution will enjoy the privilege of having the greatest freshman class in history adopt the University of Nebraska with a spirit that will win.
