NEBRASKA AND MISSOURI TIE.

Another tie game. Nebraska and Missouri played yesterday on a soggy field and each team scored but once. Nebraska students were disappointed at the outcome of the game, but with Captain Lewellen playing under such a handicap and other things against the team, perhaps the result may be explained. Regardless of the outcome of the Tiger contest, Cornhuskers should remember that the great Notre Dame game is but two weeks off, and the "fighting Cornhuskers" are in need of all the support and encouragement that the student body can give them.

It is a time for "fighters," not crabbing "quitters," at Nebraska!

NOTRE DAME IS COMING

The mighty Notre Dame football team will be here for the next Husker game. Nebraska can beat the Irish. Every student should use that for a morning and evening slogan. Remember those words. Nebraska can beat Notre Dame. The Irish have been hitting a stride this season that will bring great glory to the conqueror of Rockne's team. Nebraska can beat Notre Dame!

TO OUR CONTRIBUTORS

In the last several days, comments have been coming in to the student opinion column in a lively manner. That is pleasing to the staff of this paper, for it realizes the vital nature of student interest.

Two law students, writing for the column today, request an answer to their more or less violent expressions. The logical answer to their letters should be a note of regret. However, since they have intimated that the editor has made some personal stabs at the College of Law, it is essential that the matters be explained.

If readers will notice the editorial with which they have taken issue, they will see immediately that nothing was said concerning the College of Law. The fact of the matter is, the editor was unaware of the fact that the law students were the only ones that were carrying the canes.

No statement was made regarding spirit in the College of Law. No statement was published about the loyalty of the College of Law. These two young men, who have taken it upon themselves to represent the College of Law, have failed miserably in their purpose. Their letters (not only one, but two!) are really too foolish to be considered matter for publication. However, the student opinion column is open to everyone and the contributions are printed.

Student Opinion.

Contributions to this column are very welcome and invited. Student opinion is valuable to the editorial staff of the paper, consequently we welcome it.

To the Editor: If you are one of the lame, blind, or halt, then carry your cane? We gather from the above attempt that someone is unable to understand why the Laws carry canes. For this information as well as for others, an explanation might help. About two hundred men in the College of Law we all have classes together, consequently it is no wonder that we have the best spirit in school. We have a great deal of respect for other colleges, especially the Engineers and the Dents and we say to them that probably the only reason that we have better spirit than they is that we are united more than they can be with their laboratories, etc.

Now we expect that several misguided students would laugh at us. What can you expect from anyone who has never been away from home. He is like the little child on the street who said, "Mamma, aren't those boys funny?" Coach Dawson at a convocation commended us highly, our faculty is back of us, and many others have expressed their approval of our spirit. Nebraska has plenty of these traditions that start every day. We hope to establish something—we don't call it a tradition. We are quite surprised at the editor's attitude, always having assumed that the present editor was well balanced. However if he can't understand that our canes are not for the helpless—we can show him what our canes are for.

We hope to hear from you Mr. Editor, Two Laws. WALLACE WAITE J. J. MCCARTHY

To the Editor: An interesting situation has arisen in our dignified College of Law of the University of Nebraska. It appears that there is an agitation on the part of a group over there to require every member of the law school to "carry a cane."

The idea, as expounded by the press, is to advertise the law school. The idea in mind, though, is really to advertise the individual. The law school has a name well-founded in the history of the University of Nebraska. Every year the law school contributes and its record is viewed with envy by all the other colleges.

This self-proclaimed professor of higher learning has proven a poor organizer of the forces at his command. Had he taken a course in advertising which is taught in the Business Administration College (which is to the public in general a very dignified institution but to this immortal creature, a little short of a god in his own estimation, only an academy) he would have learned that he could produce a much more attention-attracting agent. For instance why not complete the disgustingness and adopt also a high top silker, a flaring red tie, a shirt with large dots, a checkered vest of flaring colors, a frock coat, a pair of knickers, no nose and goggles. He might even wear an eye-glass and carry a red handkerchief up his sleeve.

Why then, laws, don't you follow the practices of those who have gone before you and seek any glory that you desire in the manner which has proven so successful in the past? Will you admit that the calibre of your men of today is not high enough to keep up the part? It would help the whole a great deal more if you would spend the energy wasted in carrying the "marker of affliction" in pushing some school movement such as the "pay your stadium pledge," or "more men out for track."

For Something Different.

Don't you get tired of wearing the same things to school all the time? Now the best way to vary the monotony that I know of is to buy a new sweater. You can find many attractive ones at Golds. They have chappie coats in gray, tan and many two-toned combinations priced from $5.95 to $12.50. Then they have perfectly darling sleeveless vests at only $4.95. You must see these smart knitted novelties for sport wear.

For Ghost and Goblin Night.

The favors for my Hallowe'en party are from George Bros. They have exclusive hand-made favors at prices so reasonable any of you can have them. They have some especially clever ones for men called wiggles, besides ash trays and new kinds of noise makers. Others are dear little witches with long hair carrying black baskets, and pumpkins with favors for stationery. George's engrave it and it can be used for any occasion. They have a complete line of crests and can do work on short notice.

Food for Tired Brains.

After I have studied hard for a couple of hours nothing rests me like food. But how I dread going out to get anything. So instead I $2.00. A guarantee of satisfactory delivery service from the Green Lan-

To Determine Your Grade in Any Given Course

Take your watch number and divide it by the average number of times you yawn in class. Multiply the result by the number of times you are late. Add this to the number of excuses you get by with for being unprepared. If the answer is above zero, you will undoubtedly flunk.

tern makes it possible for us to get all sorts of good things by merely telephoning. They have all kinds of sandwiches, hamburgers and ice cream. All you have to do is call L6442 and they deliver at your door.

Pretty Things and Practical.

Every girl loves vanities and they can find all sorts of enameled dories and vanity cases at Tucker-Shean's. You will think the rose ones particularly lovely if your favorite color is the same as mine. Those who like other colors will find shades that please them as much. Those are for the frivolous side of life. For the studious side they carry a complete line of fountain pens and Ever-sharp pencils. These are necessities for all students.

To Fix Your Hair.

Those who want curly hair should use Stakurl, the wonderful Parisian discovery. It is a liquid which makes any hair fall in natural silky curls and soft fluffy waves. Best of all it lasts for two weeks. You can get it at Rector's Pharmacy.

The Hosiery Problem Solved.

I never saw anything like the way stockings wear out when one goes to school. I have just had to lay in a new supply. They are Holeproof and I find they wear like iron. Ben Simons & Sons have received a new shipment in black and all the new fall colors. They have both silk and chiffon stockings priced at $1.65 and out to get anything. So instead I $2.00. A guarantee of satisfactory service goes with all hosiery sold there.
