Officials—Frank E. Burch, Earlham College, referee; Harry D. Hedges, Dartmouth University, umpire; Fred B. Young, Illinois Wesleyan University, field judge; A. G. Reid, Michigan University, head linesman.

With the final act of one of the greatest seasons of football at the Nebraska University about to be staged, both teams are ready for the opening kickoff.

The forward passing wizards from Manhattan are here and ready to hit their stride. The stride is to be mostly by the aerial method. Every farmer from the southern state is in perfect fettle, and the incident for which they have been primed all season is ready for execution. The big incident in question is "beat Nebraska on Turkey day." The Husker squad is not in the best of condition, but they will be fighting, and the Aggies will have to resort to something besides forward passes for their consistent gains. They are bound to complete a few but if they are planning on anything through the Husker line, they will sooner or later realize their folly. As to running the ends, that is a different story. Although Notre Dame and Syracuse didn't make a lot around the wings, the Aggies have one of the fastest and one of the best drilled teams in the Valley.

The Huskers, on the other hand, have been handicapped in workouts for the last two weeks, and they will have to resort to their old formations for their plays—being held from getting new ones this week by injuries to coach and to the men.

The ticket sale for the final game has not been as large as the management has expected but some last minute fans will no doubt make their appearance and demand admittance. Everything points to fair and warmer weather.

The following list of Cornhusker warriors will make their final appearance as wearers of the Scarlet and Cream on the gridiron: Captain Verne Lewellen, Dave Noble, Herb Dewitz, Ced Hartman, Ross McGlasson, Heinie Bassett, Joy Berquist. It is doubtful if Mac and Herb will see action because of their injuries from previous games.

Nebraska Spirit, Built Up During Football Season, is Here to Stay

By George Hylton

What makes two Cornhuskers jump to their feet and throw their arms around each other's necks? What makes the throat of another twist into a lump, and what starts the tears rolling down his cheeks? What makes the less emotional scream like madmen and throw headgear ten feet into the air? Nothing on earth but a touchdown.

Football day means to the Cornhusker much what circus day meant to him twelve or fifteen years ago. Two days previous must be spent in anticipatory thrills, and when the big Saturday finally rolls around, he and his best pal join the throng in the stadium, and for two hours everything is pushed back from consciousness but a genuine love for Nebraska U.—a passion to which reserve and shame are for a time strangers.

A stadium may be the finest place on earth for a football game, but it has its drawbacks while it is new. At the first contest in the Nebraska bowl, with Oklahoma, the general atmosphere was extremely funeral. The first yell started successfully enough, but the echoes ran back and

Plans for Activities Made by Journalists

Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalistic fraternity, at a meeting Wednesday afternoon, began plans for the activities of the year. A luncheon will be held Saturday noon at the Grand Hotel with the chapter adviser, Prof. M. M. Fogg, to put these plans into more definite form.

A report of the convention was given and it was announced that names of new members would be ready for publication soon. Members of the active chapter are as follows: Charles Mitchell, editor-elect of the Awgwan; Addison E. Sutton, business manager-elect of the Awgwan; Herbert Brownell, Jr., president; Reede Reynolds, vice-president; Edward M. Buck and Mark Werner.

ELEVEN COME OUT FOR CLASS DEBATE

Underclassmen Have Most Men Out—No Seniors Sign As Yet.

Eleven candidates for class debating team have signed the bulletin board in University hall. No seniors have signed up yet, but one junior, five sophomores, and five freshmen have declared their intention of trying out. Those who have signed up are: Junior, Frank Scrivens; Sophomore, Devon C. Eyer, Raymond P. Eyer, Carter R. Battershell, Will Gross, Cullen M. Palmer; freshmen, C. F. Wright, S. J. Weaver, Philip Nemir, Donald M. Becker, and Douglas Orr.

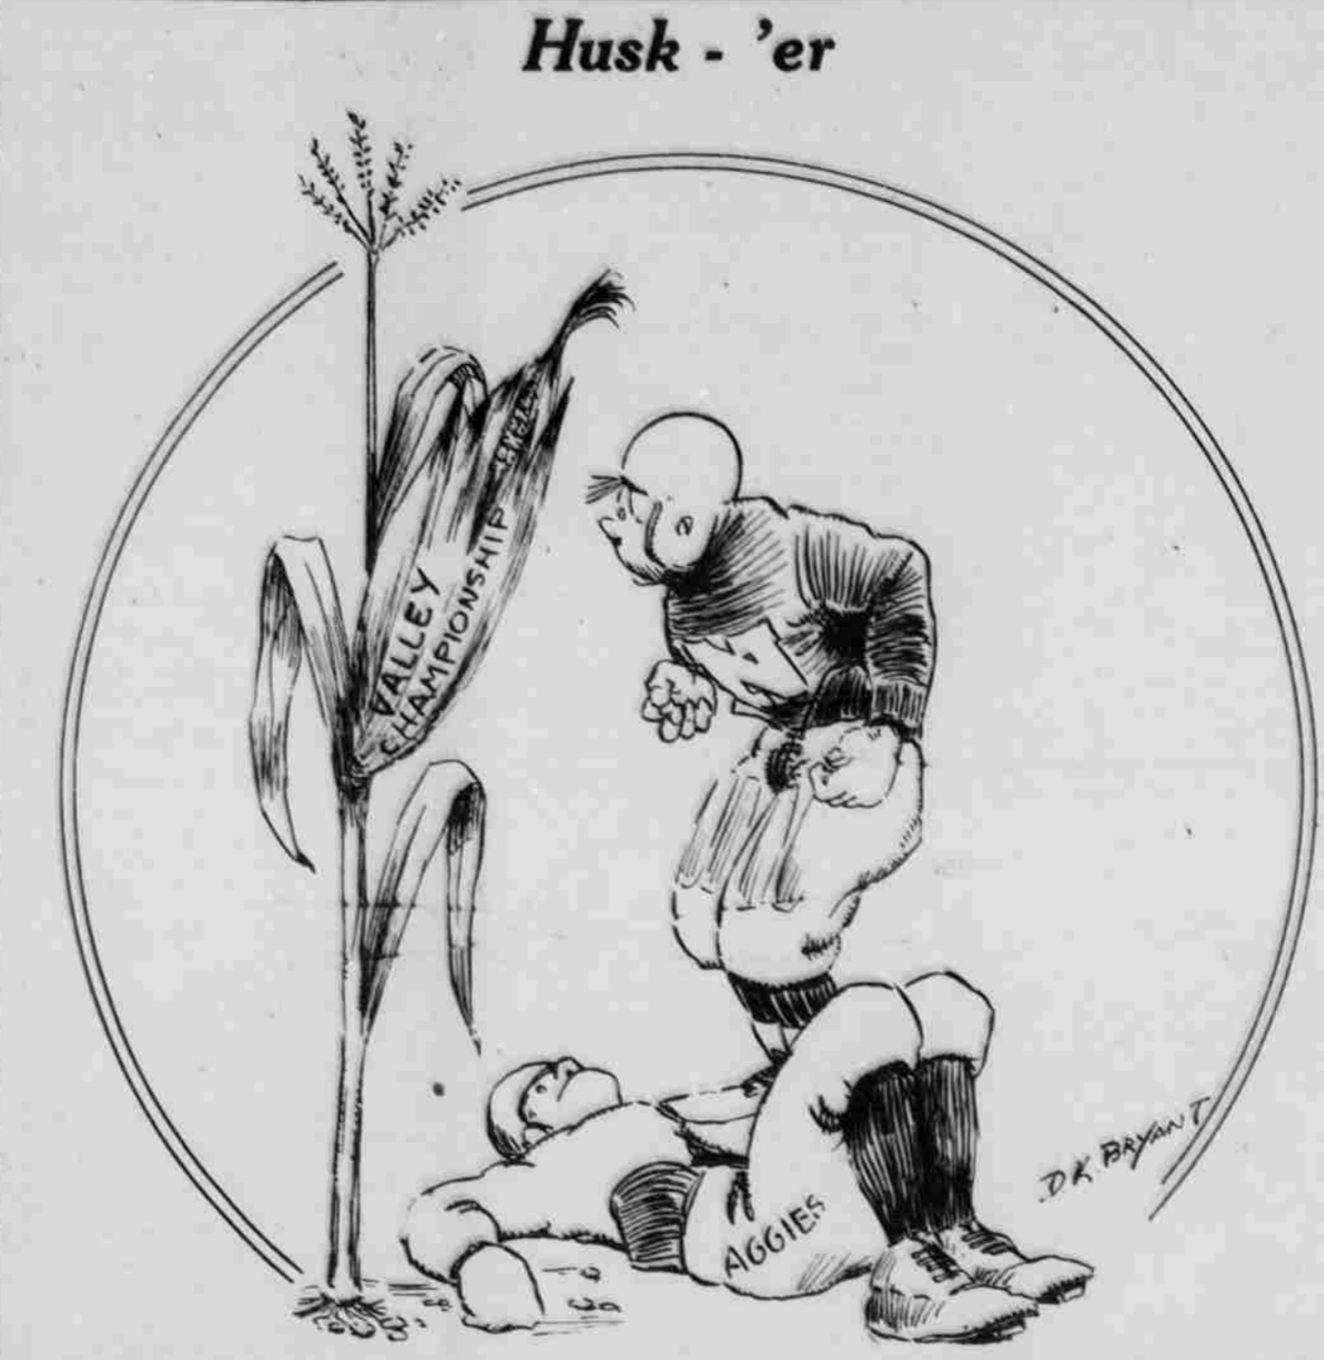

The tryouts are to be held December 5, in University hall 106, Law, 101, 201, and 202. Those wishing to try out should sign their names on the bulletin board or hand their names to the chairmen of their class debate committee. The question for debate will be: "Should Nebraska Adopt the Unicameral Legislature?" The tryout speeches are to be five minutes in length.

Entertain Freshmen and Sophomore Girls

The Mortarboards entertained at a Thanksgiving tea for all freshmen and sophomore girls at Ellen Smith hall yesterday afternoon. In a program given during the afternoon, musical numbers were presented by Mary Ellen Edgerton, Harriet Kruse and Esther Zinnecker. A string trio composed of a piano and two violins, played by Dorothy Compton, Alice Miller and Burdette Taylor, was one of the features of the entertainment.

In an effort to have the Nebraska colors more in evidence at the game today the Mortarboards will sell canes with scarlet and cream ribbons on them. The Mortarboards urge that all girls wear the colors if they do not care to buy the canes.

Representatives of fraternities and sororities have been summoned by Fire Commissioner Frye to a conference Monday morning to consider measures of fire prevention.

STUDENTS RALLY ON EVE OF GAME

Two Thousand Huskers Sing and Cheer at Last Rally of Season.

LEWELLEN COMMENDS SPIRIT OF STUDENTS

"Tomorrow the state of Nebraska meets the state of Kansas. Let's put Kansas where she always was and always will be."

This is the way that Coach Schulte summed up today's game before two thousand loyal, cheering Cornhuskers at the rally last night. The rally was presided over by Welch Pogue, who, after an avalanche of welcoming cheers for the team, introduced the speakers.

"This is the last time for me. This is the last time for seven of us. We have appreciated the chance to play for Nebraska and more than all, we have appreciated the way that you students have backed us," said Captain Lewellen. At the end of Captain Lewellen's talk the students showed their appreciation of the work of these seven men in a wild burst of prolonged cheering. Bassett, Berquist, McGlasson, Noble, Hartman, H. Dewitz and Lewellen are the seven football heroes who play their last game for Nebraska today.

"I want to see Nebraska back basketball and other sports in the same way that she backs her football team," said Coach Kline. "Tomorrow we play our last game of football and tomorrow we open our basketball season."

"The Kansas Aggies are a brilliant forward-passing team" warned Coach Schulte. "We must crush that wonderful offensive with one even more brilliant." Only one thing will beat Kansas and that is the students, he reminded the students.

"No team in the world could have defeated Nebraska on the day of the Notre Dame game," asserted Prof. R. D. Scott. He called for the same spirit once again and "there will be no question about the game."

"When I was captain of Nebraska's football team three years ago, the team saw a handful of boosters at the last rally. The next day we were beaten, 21 to 20," related Day. He continued, "I am glad to see this number of students here tonight. It means that we will win tomorrow."

"We can, we will, we are going to beat Kansas tomorrow," declared Dr. Condra in the last talk. Dr. Condra recalled the spirit before the Notre Dame game and revived it once more. At the close of his talk, a flashlight picture of the crowd was taken.

"Duke Gleason, head cheer leader, led the students in songs and yells.

University Band Picks Cheyney as President

Paul Cheyney was chosen as president of the University band Tuesday evening. The following additional officers were elected: Merle Loder, Vice president; Raymond Lewis, secretary and treasurer; Donald Hollenbeck and Robert Slaymaker, sergeants at arms.

The band will hold its second banquet of the year at the Grand hotel Thursday, December 6.

GIVE ALL-UNIVERSITY PARTY ON SATURDAY

Games and Get-acquainted Stunts to Precede Dancing.

Thanksgiving spirit will be unloosed at the All-University party at the Armory Saturday night, December 1. Decoration, entertainment and refreshments will be in keeping with the holiday, it was decided at a meeting of the All-University party committee at Ellen Smith hall Wednesday evening.

Plans for different forms of entertainment that have been used at other all-university parties have been laid by the entertainment committee. Games and get-acquainted stunts will open the evening. They will be followed by dancing which will last until the intermission for refreshments and entertainment.

Decorations will follow out the Thanksgiving spirit, corn stalks and pumpkins being stacked about the hall. The refreshments will be more elaborate than previously.

Additional committees announced at the meeting were: Reception—Frances Weintz and Stanley DeVore, chairmen; Ruth Carpenter, Marjory Quinn, Margaret Drummond, Dick Young, Charles Light and Rolland Locke.

Y. W. Members Make Articles for Bazaar

Dear Y. W. C. A. Member: Take a bit of ribbon, a needle and thread, and fifteen minutes and bring a little gift to the big Christmas bazaar at Ellen Smith hall December 12, 13, 14. It will take you and all the rest to make this a success that will send our delegates to New York next summer.

The Conference Committee, Lila Wyman, Chairman.

According to the enrollment figures there are 4,882 students registered at Yale university, an increase of over 500 over the 1922 figures. The largest increase is in the graduate school.

HUSKERS AND KANSAS LEAD

Valley Championship to be Decided in Thanksgiving Games

RACE FOR FIRST PLACE CLOSEST IN HISTORY

By Judd Crocker.

The curtain will be lowered on the Missouri Valley football stage this afternoon when the conference championship will hang in balance waiting for the outcome of the Nebraska-Kansas Aggie grid mix and the Kansas-Missouri tussle. Modestly tucked away in the "Corn crib" is the little brown jug significant of the Valley pigskin honors, among the most famous of all football trophies. For this historic bit of pottery Nebraska and Kansas will attempt to remain undefeated this afternoon.

At present Kansas holds a single game lead over Nebraska having met and defeated one more team in the conference than the Huskers. Both teams are on even terms, however, boasting clean slates and two knotted scores. Should one of the two teams drop their only remaining twist today, to the victor goes the spoils which in this case will be about thirty cents worth of jug and a claim to the Missouri Valley championship.

The recent season has stamped itself as the closest competition in the history of Valley contests. Four games went full length to knots between the upper rated elevens, Nebraska and Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, Kansas and the Kansas Ag-

Alumni Everywhere Gather to Celebrate Annual Charter Day

By Julius Frandsen, Jr.

Alumni all over the world will celebrate the University's charter day, February 15. A special radio program will be broadcast by the campus station, WFAV. Nebraska clubs in cities throughout the country will hold banquets and groups of old grads everywhere will gather to discuss old times and make merry.

R. G. Simmons, congressman from Nebraska, president of the Alumni association, suggested two years ago that such a day be set aside for alumni to celebrate. Charter day, February 15, seemed the logical date.

According to Harold F. Holtz, secretary of the Alumni association the celebration this year will be more complete than ever before.

Charter Day Abandoned

From the founding of the University in 1869 until the World war, February 15 was always celebrated as charter day and was one of the

YEARBOOK SALES CAMPAIGN BEGINS

Historical Section to Be Featured—Announce Selling Staff.

EXPECT TO DISPOSE OF 3500 ANNUALS

The sales campaign for the 1924 Cornhusker will open next Monday and will continue until the following Friday. It is expected that the sales of the new annual will be large in view of its promised superiority over any so far produced. A sale of 3500 Cornhuskers this year is the goal set, and the sales staff believes that the merits of the book are great enough to make the goal possible.

The new Cornhusker will be the most representative annual ever published, according to Editor Robert E. Craig. One of its greatest features will be the Historical section. This will contain a complete history of every organization and tradition of the school. The founders of every organization, its principles, how it has developed, and as complete a directory of it as can be discovered in any way, will make the book invaluable to any student or alumnus of the University. This will be the only publication in existence that will furnish this complete and valuable information.

Another feature of the yearbook will be its increased size. The old book was 8 1/2 x 11 and the new one will be 9 x 12 and will contain at least as many pages as the old. More time and money will be spent on the publication. A larger staff than ever before is spending every effort to make it outstanding among the many that have been published. It will be a book that is more than a curiosity or a keepsake, it will have real value. New sections and features have been added and more pictures will increase its interest. Practically all of the junior and senior pictures and personal college careers will be included.

The sorority that sells the most Cornhuskers will be awarded a complimentary copy with a gold flyleaf stating that it was presented to them for winning first place in the sales campaign. A similar copy will be awarded to the sorority winning second place. This is a pleasing departure from the customary practice of awarding skins or cups.

The sales staff of the annual consists of the following teams of chairmen:

- Business Administration—Josephine Schramek and Robert Lang.
- Law—Julia Sheldon and Harris Paley.
- Teachers—Zella Roope and Arvilla Johnson.
- Library Booth—Burton Tripp and Dorothy Brown.
- Fine Arts—Pauline Gellatly and Gundell Goldansky.
- Agricultural—Francis Weitz and James Barnes.
- Dentistry, Charles Cox and Rinehart Oschner.
- Engineering—Judson Meier and Ellis Ekroth.
- Pharmacy—Esther Lyman and William Shoemaker.
- Arts and Sciences—Carolyn Airy and Marion Woodward.
- Campus Booth—Glenn Curtis and Mary Wigton.

most important events of the year. During the war activities of charter day were combined with those of commencement week and this arrangement has been followed since.

Charter day as it was celebrated before the war was one of the most colorful of all University events. All departments held open house and vied with each other in arranging attractive exhibits explaining their activities.

The charter day indoor track meet was one of the few of the day's activities that lasted until 1919.

The Association is also working on plans for the Cornhusker roundup to be held commencement week, early in June. Last year thousands of alumni flocked back to Lincoln to attend graduation exercises, alumni banquets, and other functions. Sororities and fraternities always are also an important part of the activities during roundup week.
