

Nebraska's Stadium--A Memorial To Those Who Served Their Country

"In Flanders Fields the poppies grow,
Beneath the crosses row on row."
The speaker paused. Khaki-clad and erect, he stood in the center of the west stand of the new stadium. At his feet sat a companion gazing dreamily at the moon as it pushed its way above the opposite tier of seats.

"That marks our place," he continued, "just think, here we are at Nebraska U. again. Six long years ago we paid the price on Flanders Fields and now at last we've found our way back here. Pal, I think we've discovered that the poppies aren't all that mark our place."

Silence fell. They both watched the moon this time.

"Pal," finally sighed Bud, "I hope this sort of battlefield will always hold its head above the other. You and I know what the other is and what a great thing this kind is. Enough of this sort in the world and the other would be wiped out forever."

"Yes, Bud. It must be wiped out. It will. You know as I sit here I can almost see the battle going on among those white lines, I can almost hear the cheering. I can almost see the ball carried over the goal and a seven registered beside 'Nebraska' on the score board."

"And it's all for us."

They rose and started toward the steps. Half way there they paused and took one last sweeping glance. "Pal, they have kept faith. They certainly have," and they hurried on and out for ever.

Dean R. A. Lyman of the College of Pharmacy has been named a member of the advisory committee appointed by the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties to assist Dr. W. W. Chambers of Pittsburgh, Pa., in his study of pharmaceutical education in the United States from a functional point of view.

The trustees of the Carnegie Commonwealth Fund for Industrial Research have appropriated $9,000 for the coming year, and $15,000 for the following year to be devoted to this work. Dean Lyman is to serve in the department of physiology and pharmacology. Other members of the committee are Dr. Rusby of Columbia University, Dr. Dye of Ohio State University, and Dean Rudd of the University of Virginia.

Nine cooperating farmers in Nebraska have completed the accredited flock records and have met the requirements for entering the next year of the project of the College of Agriculture Extension service, which is testing poultry feeding and profit conditions.

"Bud, it makes me cold all over when I look at this stadium," rejoined the other, "Why, it's in memory of us. It's for you and me and the other Nebraska men who fell in France. I thought when I went across when I was fighting, when I fell, that I realized what a school this was but it never quite came home as it does right now."

"And there's U hall over there," Bud sat down. "Many's the time I've skylarked through its halls and slept through its classes. And there's the Armory and I guess if we walked just a little way from here we'd see the spot where we enlisted. But--this stadium!"
