For Nebraska and the Team

As you supported the football team during its season, as you maintained that supreme Cornhusker spirit in the recent days of gridiron conflicts, as you made every effort to give Nebraska a winning machine, turn out Saturday night and do as much for Nebraska and for the basketball team.

One of the hardest and most important games of the schedule will be played in the Armory Saturday night and the team and the coach are depending upon Nebraska students to back that team and to fight with that team. You, students, can do nothing better than to be at that game and show Missouri and show Nebraska that there it that same fire alive that turned back Notre Dame and that carried the grid team through a brilliant season.

Be there by all means. Coach Kline is making a great effort. The team is exerting physical and mental powers to give its best in that game.

Whether we win or lose, whether the score is big or small-if Nebraska's students and Nebraska's players give everything for the institution in that game, it shall not have been in vain.
