BOOST NEBRASKA.

The University of Nebraska is a great institution, one of the greatest schools in the middlewest. It has high scholastic standards, its athletic teams are known from coast to coast, leaders in different fields of learning are numbered among its faculty, and its graduates are making names for themselves and Nebraska in the world at large.

Nebraska University, however, has not been given proper recognition for its high standing and achievements by the people of the state. A large share of the taxpayers of the state are not acquainted with the University and what it is doing for the young people of the state. They know of the University largely by hearsay, and while its great accomplishments are often passed without notice, the least fault or mistake by the University is brought before them.

Newspapers of the state are too ready with criticism of the University, and too stingy with praise. Take the matter of athletics for instance. When Nebraska is winning, all well and good, but let Nebraska lose a few contests. A concerted howl goes up, and the University is assailed in no uncertain terms.

Much of this mistaken and often antagonistic attitude toward the state school can be overcome by the proper advertising and boosting for the University. A constant publicity campaign should be carried on to give the people of the state a better understanding of the University. This understanding would lead naturally to a greater appreciation and respect for the institution.

Students can help a great deal in overcoming prejudice and building up esteem for the University. They can do this in various ways.

First of all, they should be careful of their own conduct at all times, remembering that people are judging the University by their individual actions. Again, they should become better acquainted with the University, and boost for the Cornhusker school at every opportunity. They should make an effort to learn more about the school and its accomplishments, an endeavor which will develop their pride for Nebraska. Then they should talk Nebraska to their friends and relatives, to high school students, and to everyone with whom they come in contact.

An exposition of the Bok peace plan on which a referendum vote of the American people is being taken through the newspapers, is published in today's Nebraskan. This article, which is written by Professor Fling of our University, briefly discusses the Bok plan in all its phases. Professor Fling is a student of international politics and affairs, and is widely recognized as an authority on the subject of foreign relations. Nebraska University students should understand the Bok plan and be able to discuss and vote intelligently on it. A careful reading of the article by Professor Fling will give students a clear understanding of this famous subject.

Following several serious accidents because of heavy traffic across the University campus, the Minneapolis city council prohibited certain classes of traffic from driving across the campus. This news should remind Nebraska that some more effective regulation of traffic on Twelfth street should be made. At present cars pass up and down this street at a high speed when students are crossing, and it is only by miraculous good fortune that no serious accidents have

RAG CARPET

Help! Help!

Ge! I wish I were an owl.
Why?
So I wouldn't have to worry about getting up mornings.

Now is the time for all good sleds to slide together.

My flivver has a rattle.
Well, it's a very young flivver.

The only notes some people take in class is to note whether the professor notes that they are taking a nap.

Even the janitors have their little pickups of the day.

He—Your bark sounds like a grave yard.

She—Oh, no. It's just a little coughin'.

A little examination now and then

Will often flunk the best of men.

AN ODE TO AN EXAM.
My pride you've unpolished,
My hopes you've demolished,
Since this you've accomplished,
You should be abolished.

Poets seek to solve the sea,
But that is easy, seems to me.
It is a salt solution—see!

AT THE CIRCUS.
Young thing: What on earth is this funny looking freak?
He: Hah! He's the manager of the side-show.

Prof.: Enforcement brings the idea home.

Yeah, even prohibition enforcement.

The Rag Doll says that cuts make the day a little longer.

Energy! Vigor! Happiness!

The soundest physical condition must lag and labor if the feet ache.

And the happiest mood must succumb when the feet begin to hurt.

And so we wish every woman who is "conscious of her feet" to try the Truauk Shoe—a charming shoe so supremely comfortable that it gives a new sense of energy and strength and a new joy in the daily work and play.

The Truauk Shoe rests and exercises the feet. It brings every muscle into play instead of burdening a few muscles. It is an experience and a discovery for you to know the amazing pleasure of this perfected principle in shoemaking.

Why we fit you with a pair?
