Ames vs. Washington at St. Louis, Saturday.

Coach Kline's Nebraska University basketball tossers maintained their knot with the Washington University hoopsters for the leadership of the Missouri Valley cage race following the results of the five contests last week. Kansas pried the lid off the Jayhawk court season with a win from Drake by the score of 49 to 14 and stepped into a triple knot with the Huskers and the St. Louis artists, with percentages perfect. Either Nebraska or Kansas will drop out of the clean slate division this week since the two quintets meet on the southerner's floor Friday night. The squad leaves for a three game trip starting Thursday, meeting the Aggies that night, the Kansas champions Friday, and Oklahoma Saturday night. The outcome of these three contests "make or break" Nebraska titular chances. Of the five games carded for the coming week, Nebraska will partake in the trio of toughest mixes.

Tonight Oklahoma meets Kansas and may cause last years champs to drop the clean record before meeting the locals. In the first game for the Jayhawks, Drake fell to the tune of 49 to 14 but a good account of the game states that the Bulldogs could not sink the Leather and that only one trial out of every four registered. Oklahoma on the following evening took the Des Moines five down by a 44 to 28 score and assures a hot test between the two upper division teams. In the other conference contest Washington is expected to have little trouble against Ames.

Missouri Loses Four
Last week Missouri, runners up to Kansas in the Valley scramble lost its fourth game in as many starts leaving the upper hand in the grasp of Nebraska, Kansas and Washington. Should Oklahoma defeat both its opponents this week the Indians would ride into the title ring. Three victories for Nebraska would put the Huskers ahead of Washington and make things easy sailing until the second Kansas Twist at the Colosium January 26.

The fifty-fifty condition in the Valley still exists. Last week Grinnell and Oklahoma had averages of .500 and both teams had scored as many points as their opponents, while this week the standings show Ames to have taken hold of the even figures.

From early exhibitions of Valley cagesters, comparative scores show very little. The title is anyone's. It is likely that the per cent column will undergo several decisive changes at the end of this week.

Wrestling Tryouts to Be Held Tonight

Try-outs for Nebraska's Varsity wrestling team will be held this afternoon from 4 to 6 in the Armory. One mat performer will be chosen to represent the University in each of the seven weight events against Northwestern at Evanston January 26. The coaching staff wishes any person interested in the mat game to try-out. All participants should weigh in at 11 o'clock in the Athletic offices.

CAGESTERS PREPARE FOR FOREIGN GAMES

Coach Kline Not Sure Yet Who Will Make First Journey with Squad.

The basket-shooting Cornhuskers went through their last workout on the gym floor Tuesday afternoon in preparation for their road trip. Although a short session will be held Wednesday in which they will be given a final opportunity to hit the basket, they will not be put through a scrimmage.

The team will leave here early Thursday morning and will be more or less train-weary in their first Valley game on a foreign floor.

Tuesday's practice consisted mostly of new out-of-bounds plays and other offensive plays that the team is planning on springing on the opposing valley teams on the trip.
