CARES NOT FOR BOK.

That Nebraska students care not a whit whether the Bok Peace Plan will or will not solve our international difficulties, is the only inference one can draw from the results of the straw vote just taken here. Out of over three thousand ballots distributed by the Student Council, only 73 were returned.

Mr. Bok's one hundred thousand dollars might just as well have gone up in smoke, for all the good it did here and the plan excited no more interest on the campus than an automobile parked on twelfth street.

But the vote of 66 for and 7 against the plan is at least a hopeful sign. The majority of those who could not spare the time to put a cross upon the ballot were at least in favor of the plan or perhaps that represented only a group of well wishers, giving voice to their sentiments.

Regardless of the small number that voted, the University of Nebraska student body has gone on record as being in favor of the plan, and to the world it matters not that less than a hundred out of thousands participated.

Such is the futility of straw ballots, unless conducted on a large scale and widely participated in.

NEBRASKA SPIRIT.

Nebraska spirit has received another plaudit, and this time it comes from the south. In the editorial column of the Oklahoma Daily, the following appeared:

"School spirit undoubtedly plays an important part in building the morale of a team representing a University.

"Nebraska for days before her games holds pep meetings in the classes, on the campus, or any place where students are gathered there. Big Ten schools possessing teams of championship calibre think, feel and talk athletics between the games.

The men who will represent the schools are given the utmost of attention and consideration by both students and faculty."

Nebraska spirit bolsters the morale of our teams, and then, our teams bolster Nebraska spirit. It is a continuous process.

THE CORNHUSKER.

One of the largest student enterprises at the University of Nebraska, is the Cornhusker, the annual. Few realize the size of the undertaking, the amount of work that is necessary, the number of people that are engaged, the amount expended, the range that it covers.

$18,000 is the cost of issuing the yearbook this year, which puts it on the same basis as a business with an annual turnover of this amount. This money is handled by student executives, through the Student Activities office, and involves more responsibility than is to be taken lightly.

The number of students employed on the Cornhusker is approximately 250, including workers in both the editorial and business departments. This furnishes an idea of the immense amount of work that is involved in the production of one issue of the book.

Work on the yearbook is very practical, because of the valuable experience the workers receive. The editorial department offers training lay-out, photography, copy reading, proof reading, literary and art work, design and organization of material. The business staff receives training in salesmanship, advertising, collections and credits.

So aside from its chief duty—that of faithfully recording a complete resume of the school year—the Cornhusker is performing a valuable

We have met the enemy and we are theirs: two sixties, two seventies, one condition and one flunk.

WEEKLY ETIQUETTE LESSON.

H. M. Knibbs of two Wallas, Washington, wins the quart of banana oil! His solution of last week's problem is as follows: "Yes!" The problem for this week is rather simple so we are offering two prizes—a pair of chop-sticks. The question follows: You have asked a girl to accompany you to a show. She responds, "I'll go ask mother. You wait here!" Should you wait?

We wonder just what the Nebraskan sport writer meant when he referred to a track man as "mercury-footed."

Maybe he intended to say Mercury-footed.

One morning the past week, in looking over the front page of our favorite daily, we discovered these headings: "Drive to get Denby's scalp; Wood denies graft story; Head of New York anti-saloon league held guilty of forgery; Men high in the law to push the oil probe; Army air service inquiry asked." The time seems ripe for Senator James Reed to commence another "propaganda probe," for it appears that the "Prince of Darkness" is greeting a lot of free advertising for his notorious winter resort.

CAUSE OR EFFECT?

Since cheer leading has been made a subject in the curriculum at Sanford university, a precedent has been set that should mean much in the educational world. Now we need not feel surprised if in turning over the pages of a university catalog we discover:

35. Whist 3 hours

(Prerequisite, 6 hours of draw poker)

72. Correct dress 2 hours

1. Survey of the advantage of education..... 1 hour

81. Ford driving 3 hours

(Second semester, driving with one hand)

13. The vegetable and its influence on drama..... 5 hours

In whist 35 there will be a laboratory every Friday and Saturday nights. Wednesday evening of each week some field work will be given in Ford driving 81.

And we already have our golf courses.

OUR POETS CORONER.

Dear Editor of The Morning After: I offer a little triolet for your column. It was inspired by watching at the munny skating rink.

You may take a fall, but oh my!

You look simply bewitching on skates:

On one foot you glide gracefully by;

You may take a fall, but oh my!

Eyes distainfully noting the sky;

Looks to me like you're tempting the fates—

You may take a fall, but oh my!

You look simply bewitching on skates.

Great guns! She did! But she was.

Your, Oh Henry.

A glorious purple sun trailed its path across the green tinted sky. The world seemed at peace. Mauve-shaded cattle grazed contentedly in the cherry colored meadows, pausing occasionally to turn their deep violet eyes toward—(This sounds like an "off-color" story, so I guess that we had better call it a day).

CLASS ELECTIONS.

Interest in the class elections for the past few years has certainly lagged. Only a choice few would bother to go to the polls and vote. Nearly all the elections were fixed before election day. A man knew just how much support he could depend on. He relied upon the usual number not coming out.

Criticisms have been made of the personal nomination, and they are to some degree legitimate. The man who is best fitted for the office will not always be the man who has enough "nerve", if you will, to place himself before the public eye.

How does the general student body regard men who nominate themselves? Do they look on them with respect and honor, as a class officer should be looked upon? After nomination announcements, we have more than once heard dissatisfied rumors of the unfitness of the men running.

A man who would nominate himself must either have a certain degree of personal conceit, or have received sufficient suggestions from his fellow students to make him think he is desired. And it is often the degree of personal conceit that puts him on the ballot, and not the support of his fellows.

Some system should be established by which a man to be nominated should obtain a certain number of signatures, and his nomination should be sponsored by someone other than himself or there should be class meetings and regular nominations with nominating speeches made. Either of these two methods would help do away with the dissatisfaction felt by so many students, and would poll a much larger vote. It would help bring forth a better spirit, and help live down the reputation Nebraska has for not having a good spirit. The spirit we have shown this year has greatly increased, but the maximum amount will not be had until we have a system of nomination different than the present one.
