NORTH CAROLINA TEAM DEFEATS CORNHUSKERS

The Universities of South Dakota and Mississippi were defeated by the Husker riflemen last week according to reports received yesterday from these schools. Nebraska made 3651 in the week, scoring 70 points ahead of South Dakota and 40 points ahead of Mississippi. North Carolina university beat the Nebraska mark 70 points. Mississippi fired in two positions only, contrary to the contrast which called for four positions. The Nebraska score in these positions was 40 points higher.

Dale Skinner with a score of 382 out of a possible 400 was high man for the week. Donald Roberts followed with 376.

The results from North Carolina were unusual in that all ten men made scores about the same. The high man made 375, and the low 369 a range of six points for ten men. The Nebraska scores ranged about thirty points.

Get Results From Pennsylvania.

The results from a match held two weeks ago with Pennsylvania Military Institute were received yesterday in the gallery.

Nebraska won by a good margin. About twenty advanced course cadets are firing the pistol in the gallery in preparation for formal pistol practice which will start as soon as the weather will permit. Captain Eggers says that there are some good shots among those firing and predicts a good team.

An outdoor pistol range near Lincoln will be secured as soon as outdoor practice begins. If there is difficulty in obtaining a course near Lincoln, the rifle range at Bennett will probably be adapted for pistol shooting.

Nebraska has already signed for pistol meets with West Point, and Pomona college in California, and will challenge Missouri.

There are several new gallery pistols as part of the regular equipment in addition to the 45 calibre automatics which will be used in firing the matches outdoors. Advanced course students are eligible for the team.

CHARRETON'S WORKS REACH ART GALLERY

French Artist's Paintings to Be on Exhibit in Library
Until Mid-March.

A collection of painting by Victor Charreton, one of the greatest of French artists, has been received by the School of Fine Arts and are to be placed on exhibition in the library in connection with the art exhibit sponsored by the fine arts department. The Charreton collection will remain until the middle of March, when it will be returned to the Dunsen gallery of New York.

The Charreton pictures comprise the largest representation of any one artist in the exhibit. Charreton has transmitted to his works the individualism which marks him as a man. He is an impressionist but with a style of impressionism that is peculiarly his own. He follows no school as a model; he has too rich a style of his own to need to borrow from any man.

Charreton paints landscapes almost exclusively, and the pictures in the collection are all French landscapes. The artist uses unmixed colors. This is the impressionistic style but Charreton achieves a different result from the other impressionists, the colors seeming to blend through the action of the eye.

The fine arts gallery now has many notable pictures on display, representing the best painters in the field of art. The gallery is open from 9 to 5 and from 7 to 9 daily, and from 3 to 10 on Saturdays.

Francis Williams, '24 left Tuesday noon for the oil fields of Oklahoma, where he will act in the capacity of petroleum geologist with his headquarters at Tulsa.

Council Suggests Sample Point System

A sample point system, which classifies major and minor activities, has been drawn up by the Student Council. A special referendum on such a point system has been called by the Council for next Tuesday at the general election for the second semester.

If the majority of the students are in favor of the limitation of activities the Council will act accordingly and outline a system which will be presented at a later election. The point system has been introduced successfully in many of the larger colleges and institutions of the country.

In the sample system outlined the activities have been restricted so that in any one year one student may hold but one major and one minor office and in his four years of school life he may hold no more than two major offices and three minor ones. The following classification is suggested for illustration:

The four armed affair pictured above is a windmill. Its original habitat was Holland where they make wooden shoes and green cheese and where the boy held the ocean back by putting his finger in the hole in the dyke.

It is prophesied that a windmill closely resembling the one depicted will appear on the campus soon. What its purpose will be is a mystery. Some students predicted that it will be a part of Hiram Johnson's presidential campaign. Others (Republicans) say that its whirling arms will represent the state of Governor Bryan's mind when he thinks about his chances for the Democratic nomination.

More astute minds predict that it has something to do with the night of February 23. They claim that the question stands for the way prominent students and faculty members will feel until that night has come—and gone. Others think that the real question is what will happen when the night is over.

FLING PRAISES WILSON IN MEMORIAL ADDRESS

Declares That He Dies a Martyr to Cause of World Organization.

"Woodrow Wilson died a martyr to the cause of world organization and world peace. In history he will stand beside the figure of Washington, who created a nation, and that of Lincoln, who saved a nation."

In these words Dr. Fred Morrow Fling, historian of the peace conference and acquaintance of the late president, expressed something of the greatness of Woodrow Wilson as he spoke at the memorial Vesper services in Ellen Smith hall at 5 o'clock last night.

"Not only was Wilson a great American, but he was a great figure in world history" declared Dr. Fling. "The whole earth will become the sepulchre of Woodrow Wilson. Not only will he be commemorated by the columns and inscriptions in his own country, but in foreign lands, also, shall dwell an unwritten memorial of him, graven, not of stone, but in the hearts of men." These words written by a distinguished Frenchman were quoted by Dr. Fling as an idea of what other countries think of the man who once occupied a position in the limelight of the world.

Tells of League.

Dr. Fling spoke of the league of nations which came into existence through the activities of Mr. Wilson. He related how this war president worked unceasingly for the league after his return from Europe where he was acclaimed as a savior, and how he finally gave his life for the cause.

"Because America has not yet entered the league, many people get the idea that it was only an idea and not a reality at all," said Dr. Fling. "This is a mistake. It is almost inevitable that we will some day enter into such a world organization. Wilson did not live to see his country accept his plan for world organization, but he did live to see a league of nations entered into by other nations. He also lived to see the creation of a world court with an American as one of the judges."

The memorial services began with Chopin's Funeral March, played by Elda Jedlicka, and followed by the singing of the hymn "The Day Is Dying in the West" and reading from the burial service of the scriptures. Prof. Laurence Fossler lead in meditation, reading from Ecclesiastics. After Dr. Fling's address the choir sang "O Paradise." Miss Emma Beckmann presided at the services.

Promise Uncovering of Hidden Truths on Annual Stunt Night

University night, annual festival of fun and shrieking proclaimer of the unold truth will make its bow ten days hence. It is anticipated with nervous apprehension by victims of campus latrists and with joyful glee by wits who can give full vent to their thoughts on that one night of the year.

Thirteen years of steady growth and continued popularity have made University night one of the traditions of the University. It was started by a group of students who saw that it would serve the purpose of bringing students and faculty together for a good time. W. L. Bates, now a member of the board of regents, was the first chairman of the event.

University night has had much to do with moulding Nebraska spirit, and a number of familiar yells and songs are products of University

"No one should miss this fine opportunity of attending these lectures," declared Mr. McCaffree. "Dr. Curry's pleasing personality, his manner of delivery, and the interesting way in which he presents the subject of his lectures should not be overlooked."

The main object of the six lecture sessions, are to help students in their study and interpretation of the scriptures, and to train them in the discussion method of conducting classes in Bible study.

Those desiring to attend these meetings should see Mr. McCaffree of the Y. M. C. A. or Miss Appleby, of the Y. W. C. A. A registration fee of 50 cents for students and $1.50 for others is payable at the first meeting.

"People should buy their tickets early," said Harold Edgerton, business manager, yesterday. Only 2045 tickets will be sold and they will go fast. I expect that few tickets will be left Thursday evening."

The entire program will contain about ten acts. The curtain will go up promptly at 8:30 and the program will probably last until 11 o'clock. Seven skits have already been accepted by the committee and several others have been handed back to organizations for revision and improvement.

Name Skits Selected.

Skits will be presented by the Military department, engineering students, Palladian Literary Society, Glee Club, Business Administration students, Corncobs. A curtain act will be given by Bill Wright who appeared on the program last year. Several curtain skits will be chosen at a meeting of the committee which will be held today in Ellen Smith hall to make the final selection. Rehearsals will probably start tomorrow evening.

"Students who do not think this year's program will be as good as in previous years because of the absence of The Shun will be mistaken," stated Welch Pogue, general chairman. A special attempt has been made to select some clever and original skits. This year's program will equal any previous production."
