The University Y. W. C. A. supports Vera Barger through subscriptions received in this drive. Miss Barger was chosen to represent the university after Grace Coppock's death in 1921. Miss Coppock was national executive of the Y. W. C. A. in China.

"There are no public health centers in China as in the United States—the church does all such work," Miss Sutton explained in telling of Miss Barger's work of surveying eight or ten cities, for playground possibilities and other public health work. Her headquarters are in Shanghai where she is working out an experiment with a free physical training school instructed by students of the Normal school of Hygiene and Physical Training of which she was formerly a principal.

HUNDREDS OF PLEDGES FIVE MONTHS OVERDUE

Second Installments Have Been Owed by 720 Students Since October.

Seven hundred and twenty students have not paid the second installment on their stadium pledges. This installment has been due since October 24.

"I believe that the students who have not made their stadium payments do not realize the seriousness of the situation," Coach Schulte said recently. "Some of the students who say that they cannot pay their overdue obligations are among the best 'fussers' of the school. Money that they should have paid, we have to borrow, and the interest we pay does not go into equipping the stadium as it should."

"The stadium office tells me that it costs $14.40 for stamps every time they send out monthly statements to these students. This means that $72 has already been lost, so far as the stadium is concerned. Besides stamps, there is the cost of the statements themselves and stenographic expense. These three items plus interest on the borrowed money make a considerable total loss to the stadium and therefore to the school and to those of us who have kept up our payments."

Coach Schulte said that he does not believe that many people would allow their ordinary bills to run four months without paying them. This obligation is no ordinary bill, it is a pledge guaranteed by the honor of the maker.

"I certainly hope that the students who are back on their stadium payments will clear up this obligation at once. Every day I realize more what the stadium means to our University. Next year, for example, I will have 500 men doing track work in it if the construction now in progress is finished. Delinquent students should make every effort possible to pay their pledges and help equip our stadium."

HUSKERS DEFEAT AMES 27 TO 14

Kline Uses Second String in Final Period—Both Sides Foul Heavily.

FOOTBALL TACTICS FEATURE NEAR END

In a game that at times resembled a football melee rather than a basketball contest the Husker five overwhelmed the Cyclones last night at the coliseum 27 to 14. Coach Kline turned his second team loose in the final period giving every man on the squad a chance to figure in the game. Cozier and Usher were high point men on the Nebraska team. Each of them made 8 points. Jacobsen, star for the Iowa team, was held to 4 points by close guarding.

Nebraska took the lead early in the game. Usher made 2 points from free throws before the game got hot. Jacobsen made a free throw for Ames and then Cozier dropped one in the hoop for the initial field goal. Another free throw by Tipton put the Huskers four points ahead. A free throw by Anderson and a field goal by Jacobsen brought the Cyclones within one point of the Huskers.

Nebraska then opened up with a brand of ball that put the Huskers ahead 12 to 6. Kline substituted the entire second string squad at this juncture of the game. The Husker offensive with the reserves in the lineup continued unabated and the half ended 14 to 9.

In the second half the play began to assume a rough and tumble tone with both sides grappling for the ball. Voltz of Nebraska thought he was on the gridiron for a moment when he made a flying tackle at one of the Ames players. Ames was making a last desperate effort to tie the score and keep Nebraska from scoring, and fouls were committed right and left by both teams. Ames was penalized 8 times in this period of the game and Nebraska 4 times.

In the last five minutes Nebraskas second string men were again in the lineup. Rufus Dewitz was the big man on the Nebraska reserve squad, making one field goal and one free throw in the few minutes that he was in. Beerle made a free throw.

The victory over Ames put the Huskers a few per cent higher in the percentage column, but did not change their relative standing in the Valley pennant race. Ames was entrenched a bit deeper in cellar position. The Washington defeat ET tion.

The final game on the Nebraska basketball schedule will be played Wednesday evening at the coliseum against Drake university. The first game between the two schools this year was a victory for Drake by 19 to 15 score.
