TRACK.

Following spring vacation, Nebraska's track team will open the 1925 outdoor track season, which promises to mark a great advance in the international sport at the Scarlet and Cream school. A short two weeks after the rest period, the Huskers will journey to the Kansas relays at Lawrence where they will compete against the premier athletes of the Valley. Then comes the Drake relays, several dual meets, and the high school meet. That great athletic classic, the Missouri Valley conference championship meet, which will be held here in the new stadium on May 24, will wind up the season.

While track is second only to football in popularity at Nebraska, the track and field sport is still in its infancy at the Cornhusker school. In past years the Huskers have been handicapped by the lack of facilities for achievement in the cinder sport. But this year things are different. The outdoor track in the stadium, one of the finest in the middlewest, is almost ready. One hundred and fifty aspiring Huskers in sweat suits report every day, drilling and training under the careful eye of the "Indian."

Coach Schulte and the entire athletic staff are "pointing" their efforts towards track this year. The untiring efforts of Schulte in building up track in the state high schools are bearing fruit. High school athletes are acquiring a greater respect and intenser desire to come to the Husker school because of Nebraska's growing prestige in track.

America is sending a great team to the International Olympics this year. Nebraska should be represented on this team, and Nebraska will be represented. Scarlet and Cream athletes, Coach Schulte's proteges, will be on this Olympic team which will compete against the greatest specimens of physical prowess in the world.

Nebraska's Olympic aspirants, and the Olympic possibilities of all the schools in the Valley, all potential world champions, will compete at Nebraska on the 24 of May. Ted Canty, the worlds greatest track meet announcer, will be here. Champions will run exhibition races. Truly, the Missouri Valley meet will bring together the greatest assemblage of spiked shoe performers the Valley has ever seen.

Coach Schulte's athletes have won the Valley title cup for the past three years. They are after a fourth championship. They will fight hard, sacrifice many things during the next two months, in order to bring home the honors on that day.

The Nebraska student body must support their track team this year like they supported the football team last fall. With the greatest program before them ever attempted by a Husker track team, the cinder athletes need support. Every man who can is urged to get out for track. Students should boost for the Valley meet when they go home for spring vacation. They should advertise this meet, that a crowd like that at the Notre Dame football game will pack the stadium on the 24 of May. Nebraska had an opportunity to gain national and international recognition in track athletics this spring. Everything is set to emblazon great achievements on Nebraska's athletic escutcheon. All Nebraska must help if the 1924 Husker track program is to be a success.

Blue week is right.

All of those who expect to get P. B. K.'s should meet in the telephone booth before the convocation.

Thug: Stick 'em up bo. How much you got?
Stude: I've just had a date with a co-ed.

Thug: Here, take this five dollars. Judge.

"It's the same old grind," remarked one of the Coffee-Mill players.

Sam: What they pumping all that water down that hole for?
Rastus: Huh, ain't you heard about the big fire in Japan, yet?

Anyway, mid-semester time is largely a matter of "Now you C it, now you don't."

Professor's Wife: Well, and how did you like the show?
Prof: Er, figuratively speaking it was excellent.

'She (cooly): You'll have to ask father, too.

of athletics in American universities, college men are getting the wrong idea of higher education, says Arthur Howe, captain of Yale's 1911 football team, in an article in the March issue of The Open Road. "They get a one-sided view of life and success," the former gridiron pilot opines. "They are sidetracked from things that last longer and are worth more. They live in a little world. Too many never explore the ranges beyond their athletic horizon. It is not that athletics are bad, but rather that they are not so absurdly important.

"In his saner and more thoughtful moods, many a graduate and ex-player must laugh at the absurd to do that is made over athletics," Mr. Howe continues. "To see what it amounts to, must bring a chuckle accompanied by the thought, 'What fools we mortals be!'"

"What was once the play and fun of the college man, has become the business of highly paid coaches, the serious concern of athletic alumni, the thing of supreme importance to the undergraduate," the Yale writer declares. "Sport has been so pushed and advertised that it is unwieldy and absurd."

When a man who himself has been carried along by the popular appeal of athletics literally picks to pieces modern college sportdom, a rather unusual circumstance presents itself. But, on the other hand, who is more capable of pointing out the evils in college athletics, if there are any, than an ex-grid star who has had years in which to consider his own glorious football career, never losing sight of what it cost him and ever realizing what it is worth to him? No one can doubt but that the griddler-scribe knows whereof he speaks. But what solution does he offer for the situation? What improvement can he suggest? There is none available. Athletics must continue to hold a powerful position in order to insure a high standard of morale so essential to university progress. The press must continue to advertise sports because the majority of readers demand it.

The Best Business Career

is what every ambitious college student and senior is thinking about at the present time. Life insurance is one of the best, one of the most desirable, and one of the most satisfactory as a permanent calling.

In assets and volume of business, life insurance is one of the three leading businesses of this country, yet the field is comparatively undeveloped. Only seven per cent of the economic value of all lives in United States is covered by insurance. This gives you an idea of the big field still to be developed.

As to REMUNERATION, reports of college graduates who have entered business indicate that life insurance is at the VERY TOP as a SOURCE OF INCOME. Now is the time to consider what you are going to do at the end of the semester.

If you are ambitious and willing to work hard and are interested to know about life insurance as a vocation, address the LINCOLN LIBERTY LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Lincoln, Nebraska, or call in person at 305 Ganter Building, 12th and O Streets.

Practice Field Near Completion

The football field for spring practice is nearing completion and, weather permitting, will be ready for use in about ten days, L. F. Seaton, purchasing agent, started yesterday.

The fence at the south end of the stadium has been torn down and a new fence will be built around the new field in order that secret practices may be carried on when desired. Ample room will be afforded for practice as the new grounds are regulation size and another small field has been provided for individual practice. Girls will be permitted to use the field at any time football practices are not being held.

Forester to Speak at Sem-Bot Today

G. A. Pearson, Forester of the Fort Valley Experiment station at Flagstaff, Arizona, is visiting on the campus and will talk at a meeting of the Sem-Bot at 11 o'clock today. Mr. Pearson received his bachelors degree here in '05, and his masters in '07.

I don't think I would ever get tired of looking at the pretty things they have on the Aisle of Accessories at Rudge's. I just came from here. I was looking at some new collar and cuff sets for my flannel dress. I bought an ecru linen set trimmed with lace. It sure is pretty even if I do say so myself. I got a tie too. It's orange with a little stripe in it. It's really better than a boys knit tie. It's so firm and nice.

They have some new gloves, scarfs and Kerchiefs too, that are awfully pretty.

To Europe for $125

YES—it can be done. At our $125 rate a crossing actually costs less than a stay at a summer resort. And what a different sort of a vacation you'll have!

Consider, too, that living costs appreciably less abroad than it does here. That your dollar will buy much more than a dollar's worth of pleasure, of experience, of beauty.

See the British Empire Exhibition—the life of a vast empire condensed into a picture before your eyes. The Olympic games—where the vigor and skill of humanity is put to the test. The great races, the art treasures, the quaint small towns—see Europe!

Our service is complete—in its range of sailing-dates, its types of accommodations, the speed and size of its ships, and—most important—its readiness to meet your purse requirements. Consider Europe this year—before you plan your vacation. Our services offer sailings to five European countries.

Big business needs big men

There is room and need for capable men in all the allied activities of big business. But nowhere is there greater need or greater opportunity than in that very essential service to all business—Insurance (Fire, Marine and Casualty).

Insurance, as a profession, affords contact with the most vital activities of the commercial and industrial world.

The Insurance Company of North America, the oldest American Fire and Marine Insurance Company, has been an integral part of big business since 1792 and the earliest beginning of national affairs. Out of this long experience it urges those who are about to choose a calling to consider the world-wide influence of the insurance field.
